Dramatic Comeback Lifts Batmen Over RPI, 7-6

Trailing 6-2, Albany Gains Second Spring Win.

By Paul Sullivan

Things were not looking particularly bright for the Albany State softball team when trailing 6-2 against RPI. It was already the second game of the doubleheader and RPI were the defending national champions. But with two outs in the bottom of the eighth inning, the Dame girls suddenly got hot.

The game was tied at six after the eighth inning, and RPI couldn't close the game out in the bottom of the ninth. Albany's third run came on a bases-loaded walk to center fielder Marla Buhl. The final score was 7-6.

"We got what we needed," said Coach Mike Cullen. "We weren't content to stop there. On the other hand, they had a great chance to win that game. But they didn't get it done.

US Correspondent, Wife Abused in Central Asia

MOSCOW (AP) A U.S. envoy—reportedly to the Soviet Foreign Ministry on March 28—has been found drugged unconscious and his wife had been similarly affected during a trip to Soviet Central Asia.

The trip, to the capital of Tajikistan, followed a visit to the Soviet Ministry of Foreign Affairs at which the envoy had reportedly been quilted. The trip to the capital was expected to last several days.

The envoy, who is a veteran of the Soviet Foreign Ministry, was found lying unconscious outside his suite. He had been drinking heavily during the course of the mission, and his wife was found similarly affected.

The trip to the capital was a 'priority' for the envoy, who is a member of the Soviet Foreign Ministry's most senior ranks. He had been invited by the Soviet Foreign Ministry to discuss a range of issues, including the situation in Afghanistan and Central Asia.

The envoy had been met by a high-level Soviet official at the airport, and was driven to his hotel in a embassy car. He had been seen drinking heavily during the course of the mission, and his wife was found similarly affected.

The trip to the capital was expected to last several days, and the envoy's wife had been invited to join him. She had been found lying unconscious outside her hotel room, and had been rushed to a hospital.

It is not known whether the envoy will be able to continue the mission, or whether he will face disciplinary action. The Soviet Foreign Ministry has not commented on the matter.

Oil Companies May Be Getting Most From Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) Sen. Trent Lott, R-Miss., introduced a proposal Tuesday that would give oil companies a tax break to encourage development of new oil fields in the United States.

Under current law, oil companies pay a 40 percent tax on new revenues that result from the development of new oil fields. Lott's proposal would reduce the tax rate to 30 percent.

Lott said his proposal would encourage oil companies to invest more in the United States, and would help reduce America's dependence on foreign oil.

Lott's proposal would also allow oil companies to take a tax deduction for the cost of developing new oil fields.

Lott said his proposal was necessary to keep the United States competitive in the global oil market. He said oil companies in other countries were able to develop new oil fields without paying a tax on new revenues.

Death In the Dorms

by Tom Ditomaso

LARRY, I Curse, in 1972, at Cornell University, there was a large number of alcohol-related deaths. The year marked the beginning of a trend that would continue through the late 1970s and early 1980s. The trend was also observed at other universities across the country. The trend has been attributed to a number of factors, including the increased availability of alcohol on campus, the increased use of alcohol by students, and the increased prevalence of alcohol-related problems on campus.

One of the reasons for the trend was the increased availability of alcohol on campus. During the 1960s and early 1970s, many universities began to relax their alcohol policies, allowing students to have alcohol on campus. This made it easier for students to access alcohol, and it also increased the number of opportunities for alcohol-related problems to occur.

Another reason for the trend was the increased use of alcohol by students. During the 1960s and early 1970s, many students began to drink more frequently and in larger quantities than they had in the past. This led to increased alcohol-related problems, including alcohol poisoning and alcohol-related deaths.

The increased prevalence of alcohol-related problems on campus also contributed to the trend. During the 1960s and early 1970s, many universities began to recognize the importance of alcohol awareness and prevention programs. These programs helped to raise awareness about the dangers of alcohol use and to encourage students to make responsible decisions about alcohol.

In the end, the trend was a result of a combination of factors, including the increased availability of alcohol on campus, the increased use of alcohol by students, and the increased prevalence of alcohol-related problems on campus. The trend was a cause for concern, and it led to increased efforts to prevent alcohol-related problems on campus. Today, alcohol awareness and prevention programs remain an important part of many university campuses, and they continue to play an important role in preventing alcohol-related problems.

Fred Lynn Predicts A Great Season If Healthy

BUSTON (AP) Centerfielder Fred Lynn, who has showed some signs of weariness this season, doesn't see the Boston Red Sox getting off to a slow start in the American League East, says maybe he'll have to hit a home run or two to show the opposition he's still got it.

"It's just a matter of striking out some of the bunting breaking balls and hitting them far enough," Lynn said.

The left-handed hitter is believed to be even better than last year. He had lost almost all of his 10-point lead in the American League batting race last season. At this point in the baseball season, Lynn has a one point lead over Seattle's Ken Griffey Jr., with injuries. However, he had his 11 straight hits without an out. Lynn has hit 14 straight singles in his last 33 at bats.

"I believe I can have a great season," Lynn said. "I've missed my chance to get started, but I'm still in the neighborhood."

The young outfielder, now in his third major league season, never knew how much 100 games during spring training in Florida, he wanted to play. He's hitting the ball, but it's not going to get him to the plate.
