It was Washington

Well, look at that—this thing is impossible! So, it was Washington! I'm so cold! It was cold prison bars, Get down, get down, we can't see! So? Who could? Peace! When? Now! How? Perhaps more thing in case peace made a too profound impression. There wasn't much, though, that could be said for the cold, in any way. It was cold.

Editorial Applications

The current edition of the ASP is accepting applications for the position of editor-in-chief. All upper division students at the University are encouraged to apply. Applications should be submitted to the ASP office, Campus Center Information Desk. They should include the nature of previous experience with any publication, reasons for interest in the position, and one letter of recommendation. Applications will be accepted until November 20.

Black Educators' role

To the Editor:

I am of the view that the best way to effect the Black Community in this country would be to state, clearly and firmly, the role of Black educators. The Department of Afro-American Studies at the University is an example of how this can be done. Black educators are in a unique position to help develop the Black community, and they are not always aware of this.

We should encourage students to be aware of the role of Black educators. They should be exposed to the work of these educators and their contributions to society.

Committee on Publications & Community Relations

Stranger vs. ASP

To the Editor:

Re: the article in the November 14th ASP.

We feel that it is important to discuss the issue of racism in the ASP. It is not acceptable for anyone to use racist language or make racist statements in the ASP.

We encourage the ASP to take a stand against racism and to promote a culture of respect and equality.

Faculty-Follies

To the Editor:

Recent events at the University have been covered by the faculty and administration. It is not clear how these events can be related to the social and political issues of the country.

We must continue to discuss these issues in order to understand the role of the University in society.

WASHINGTON (AP) - In the shadow of the Washington Monument, applicants for the draft are waiting their turn. In the Vietnam, the United States Information Agency (USIA) has produced a film which will provide an explanation of the draft lottery system. The USIA which is primarily concerned with public relations for the United States, also conducts a number of programs to promote the interests of Americans abroad. The lottery, which is a joint effort of the USIA and the Department of Defense, is designed to assure equal opportunity for all Americans of draft age to serve in the armed forces.

rpa dept. faces problem, meeting set to clarify issues

by carol highman

in a letter published in the Albany Student Press last Friday, students Richard Lyons and Karl Felsen strongly criticized the Department of Budget and Public Affairs for its policy of not releasing budgetary information to the public. According to the students, the department is not following the guidelines established for the release of budgetary information.

the problem was precipitated when Mr. Robert E. K. Andris, Acting Chairman of the RPA Department, sent a letter to the students of the Albany Student Association in which he stated that the department would not disclose the information. the students then decided to call for a meeting of the Student Association to discuss the issue.

the meeting will be held on Monday at 7:00 pm in the Student Union.

council concerned with communications in a three-year special student association, the major problem has been the lack of communication between the students and the faculty. the students have attempted to bring about a change in this situation by establishing a student-faculty communication committee.

the committee has been formed to work toward the resolution of this issue. the committee consists of three members: the editor of the Albany Student Press, the president of the Albany Student Association, and the president of the Albany Student Council.

the committee will meet on a regular basis to discuss the issues and to work toward a solution. the committee will report its findings to the Student Association and the faculty at the end of each semester.
