Question Mark Returns as Danes Face Cortland

By Larry Kavanagh

When the Danes kicked off Saturday against Buffalo, it was the first game since their starting quarterback Mark D'Amico was injured in a September 18 contest against Keene State College. That contest ended with a 21-7 loss, which brought the Danes' overall record to 3-1; Buffalo went on to win.

In the absence of D'Amico, the Danes were forced to turn to backup quarterback Jay Cicply, a three-year starter. In the first half of the game, Cicply completed 13 of 22 passes for 179 yards. However, he was unable to guide the Danes to a victory, as Buffalo went on to win 28-17.

The Danes' offense was held in check throughout the game, with Cicply unable to find an effective rhythm. The offense was also plagued by turnovers, with Cicply being intercepted twice. Despite these setbacks, Cicply's performance was impressive, given the circumstances.

The Danes' defense was also strong, holding Buffalo to just one touchdown in the second half. However, the defense was unable to prevent Buffalo from scoring in the third quarter, as the Bulls went on to score two touchdowns and take a 21-10 lead.

Despite the loss, Cicply remained confident in his abilities. "I knew I could do it," he said. "I just had to put it all together."

The Danes' next game is scheduled for October 25, when they will face the University at Albany. The game is expected to be a close one, with both teams putting up strong performances. The Danes will need to improve their offense if they hope to come out on top.

New Chair Takes Control
WASHINGTON, (AP)-Herman J. Salomon, chairman of Manufacturers Hanover Trust Co., has been named chairman of the board of the New York Stock Exchange. Salomon was elected to the post on Tuesday after a vote by the exchange's members. He succeeds Philip M. Chenard, who is retiring after 14 years in the position. Salomon is a long-time member of the exchange, having served as a director for many years. He is also the founder and chairman of the Salomon Brothers Co., a major investment bank.

U.S. Detects Soviet Test
WASHINGTON, (AP)-The U.S. detected a Soviet nuclear test on Tuesday, the first such detection in months. The test was reportedly a small one, but it is the first since the U.S. and the Soviet Union signed a treaty banning tests in the atmosphere, underwater, and in outer space in 1963. The treaty, known as the Nuclear Test Ban Treaty, has been ratified by 109 countries, including the U.S. and the Soviet Union.

Narcy to Aid in Drug Busts
WASHINGTON, D.C.-Sen. Narcy Spade has been appointed by the Senate to a task force on drug abuse. Spade, a Democrat from New York, is a long-time advocate of drug policy reform. He has been active in efforts to find ways to reduce drug abuse and to develop programs to help addicts. Spade is the chairman of the Senate Subcommittee on Drug Abuse and related crime.

Baker Sees Budget Changes
WASHINGTON, D.C.-Secretary of the Treasury, William D. R. Baker, has expressed concern about the federal budget deficit. Baker, who has been in office since 1981, has said that the deficit is growing too fast and that it is time to make some tough choices. He has proposed a number of changes, including cuts in domestic programs and an increase in the tax rate for high-income earners.

Reagan Meets Mitterrand
WASHINGTON, D.C.-President Reagan met with French President Francois Mitterrand on Tuesday. The two leaders discussed a number of issues, including the economy, defense, and international relations. Reagan has expressed concern about the Soviet threat and has called for increased military spending. Mitterrand has said that he supports Reagan's efforts to increase spending, but he has also called for a reduction in the defense budget.

"The Shining" author Stephen King, whose state recently initiated legal questions that would have to be answered by courts. Dr. John Gauthier, director of the SUNYA Medical Center, however, says the scientists have got themselves into a legal bind by attempting to create a life outside the womb. "The scientists are back to the 18th century," he says. "They are acting as a sort of temporary vein. But they are also using the same kinds of drugs usually available. But Judge Wood, who has sentenced the scientists to six years in prison, says he has been deliberate suicides."

"Although some of those may have been deliberate suicides," says William C. White, a house by any other name, a house by any other name. The trial is expected to last three weeks. The lawyers will present their cases on Monday, and the jury will begin its deliberations on Wednesday.

"I've heard no mention of it," said John Gauthier, director of the SUNYA Medical Center. "But I have been told by my colleagues that the scientists have been working on this project for a year. They have been using a cell culture system to grow human embryos in the laboratory. They have been trying to create a life outside the womb. They are acting as a sort of temporary vein. But they are also using the same kinds of drugs usually available. But Judge Wood, who has sentenced the scientists to six years in prison, says he has been deliberate suicides."
Third World Development

American Stance Viewed

The issue of Third World development is one that has been at the forefront of international politics for several years. The concept of a "Third World" refers to developing countries, primarily located in Africa, Asia, and Latin America, that are not part of the Western or communist blocs. The development of these countries is crucial for global stability and prosperity, as they collectively have a large portion of the world's population and are major suppliers of raw materials.

The challenge of development is multifaceted, involving economic, social, and political factors. Many of these countries have faced historical legacies of colonialism, which have left them with underdeveloped infrastructure, limited access to capital, and a legacy of inequality. The overexploitation of natural resources, often by multinational corporations, has further contributed to these conditions.

Addressing the issue of Third World development requires a comprehensive approach that includes financial support, technological transfer, and capacity building. It is essential to recognize the diverse needs and contexts of each country and to involve local communities in decision-making processes. The role of international organizations, such as the World Bank and the United Nations, is crucial in facilitating aid and promoting sustainable development initiatives.

In addition to financial support, it is important to encourage economic diversification and to promote fair trade practices. This can help reduce dependency on a single export commodity and enhance the resilience of local economies. Moreover, environmental sustainability must be a central concern, as the exploitation of natural resources often leads to ecological degradation.

The success of development initiatives depends on the commitment of governments, international organizations, and civil society. It is critical to foster partnerships and to ensure that development efforts are inclusive and responsive to the needs of marginalized communities. By working together, we can strive towards a future where the people of the Third World enjoy opportunities for economic growth, social equity, and environmental protection.

NOTE: The Expos Manager Jim Fanning opted to start Warlick instead of Valenzuela in the first game but he was out of the game in the second. He started Burris on the hill in the third game, but it would be his last regular season game. He was replaced in the fourth inning by Mike Scott. The Dodgers had threatened to win the game in the first, but were held to one hit. In the second, they led 2-0, after Bill Russell bunted and scored. In the third, they led 1-0, after Willard scored on a fielder's choice. In the fourth, they led 2-0, after Cey scored on a triple by Steve Garvey. In the fifth, they led 2-0, after Warren Cromartie made it 3-0.

Danes Run Out of Time; Cortland Wins, 20-14

Scott James and Bruce Shapiro

The Albany State men's cross country team was not happy with its performance in last Saturday's meet. In the men's team competition, the Great Danes prior to Saturday's meet were ranked 52nd nationally. However, the Great Danes' 52nd place finish was a step up from their 56th place finish at the last meet.

At Cortland, the Great Danes had hoped to pin the Red Dragons and win the meet. However, the Red Dragons took over the lead in the men's race on the first lap and never looked back. The Great Danes were unable to recover, finishing 20th overall.

The Great Danes' 20th place finish was a disappointment, as the team had hoped to improve on their previous meet performance. However, the team learned from their mistakes and will continue to work towards improving their overall performance.
