COMING OF AGE IN SAMOA SHOWS SOUTH SEAS ALSO HAVE PROBLEMS

By W.M.F.

Coming of Age in Samoa, by Margaret Mead. 200 pages.

Despite its alluring title, Coming of Age in Samoa is but a small slice of the island life of the native Samoan residents; rather, it is a psychological study of these primitive children of nature. Although a fascinating and vivid account of a very rare and natural type of isolated sociability, it might lead one to expect to find in it a novel of island life.

The book is a quartet with no additional charge above the regular price of the book. The four volumes are as follows:

1. The Kula Triad—A sociology of exchange
2. The Family of the Samoan
3. The Men, The Women, and Their Play—A psychiatric study of the native Samoan
4. The Flowers of the Field—A study of the native Samoan's art and culture

The relationships between the sexes, relationships within the family, and social customs and folklore are described in detail. The book is a valuable contribution to the study of primitive cultures.

ALUMNA IS PRAISED FOR RADIO DRAMA

Rosalin Greene Writes, Directs And Plays In Television Broadway

The work of Rosalin Greene, in the field of television broadcasting is being hailed by critics in New York city as unusual.

Miss Greene is an alumna of State College, and took part in drama work here as an undergraduate.

Her direction, staging, writing and playing in recent dramas before a radio audience from WMAA was recorded in a recent issue of the New York Sun.

Miss Greene, whose real name is Rosaline Greeneberg, broadcasts every Wednesday at 9:30 o'clock, from WMAA.

The article in the New York Sun said in part: "These dramas were staged, directed, written and acted in by Rosaline Greeneberg, who last month was in command as usual, assisted by Phil Hoenmeyers as leading man. The success of these dramas was discovered last night to be for the most part in the ability of the artists participating to make their own personalities felt across the air without seeming in the least unnatural or affected.

The play in which Miss Greene made her appearance was written by her. It portrayed the fate of two gunmen who were made the subjects of television while attempting to hold up a fashionable night club. Since police were furnish place recently at the home of Sanford A. Cortright, for thirty years a teacher and for seventeen years a district superintendent in the public schools at Middleton, recently died at his home in Middletown. Mr. Cortright was a graduate of the New York State Normal School at Albany, now State College. He specialized in bettering the conditions in rural schools of his district. He is succeeded by his son, A. M. Cortright, in the office of district superintendent.

Electricity opens a new era of ocean travel

"Miraculously quiet and vibrationless, luxurious and swift, the new electrically operated S. S. California, largest American-built passenger ship, has opened a new era in ocean travel.

Electricity drives the California so efficiently that the fuel bill for the initial coast-to-coast trip was even less than the usual tolls.

Electricity mantles the winches, bakes the bread, makes the ice and polishes the silver. And electricity cools the cabins and provides passengers with the comforts found in the finest hotels.

Complete electrification makes the California an engineering marvel and a commercial success; it is booked for advance, a sister ship has been launched, and another is under construction.

On sea or land, in every walk of life, electricity is in the van of progress. Undreamed of yesterday, the electric ship is a symbol of the electrical industry's part in modern civilization and a prophecy of even greater accomplishment.

Is survival in the college intimate? Is there any advantage or gain in extracurricular activities? Dr. W. H. P. Foster, president of Brown University, expressed in a recent publication the idea that social life in colleges is "thoroughly intimate." This is the art of extracurricular activities. Some of State College faculty members agree with him in part.

On the subject of student humor, Professor W. C. Decker, head of the German department, thinks that the word "interpersonal" is too little, and he does not like that same emphasis is put "oil extra-curricular activities. He says, "There are too many clubs, gatherings and meetings of various sorts. They demand too much of the students' time and attention. Also, the sports of American colleges, though not so oral in character, have too much emphasis. He says, "There are too many jokes, in our own college, get too much attention from the students.
