Benecke Proposes Terms For Paying Class of 78

By Steve Beckett

Senior Country Squad member, Bob Sullivan, has said that he would like to negotiate on the payment terms for his class. "It seems that the school is under a lot of pressure to pay up, but I don't think we have to pay a lot," said Sullivan. The committee on Negotiation has been working on the terms for several weeks and is expected to present a proposal to the school in the near future.

Sullivan said that he believes that the school is being unfair in its demands for payment. "They are asking for a lot of money, but we are only asking for a fraction of that," he said. Sullivan said that he is working with his committee to come up with a fair and reasonable payment plan.

Sullivan said that he is confident that they will be able to come to an agreement with the school. "We are working on it and we will be ready to present our proposal soon," he said. Sullivan said that he is looking forward to the negotiations and is confident that they will be able to find a solution that is fair to both the school and the students.

Tenure Case Disputed by Ex Prof

The administration knew of the irregularities involved in her tenure case but did nothing, Lewther said. Former Vice President for Academic Affairs Allan Phillips was informed by Lewther of the irregularities at the last meeting on Dec. 23, 1976, and told her to contact the lawyer who had been hired then.

"It was a bad idea for the college to hire a lawyer," Lewther said. Lewther further said that the administration did nothing. "If you don't do anything about something, it will go away, that's their attitude," she said.

Lewther was denied tenure at all in 1974, and told to meet with the board again in 1976, but she was granted another chance. She said that while she was granted another chance, it was because of all the irregularities that had come to light, not the material submitted for the tenure case.

As a result, Lewther was removed from the faculty. She took the case to the State Department of Human Rights, along with discrimination in her position.

Alumni Robberies

Gatell said that the students get access to the campus, and some of them are taking advantage of this.

"The more that the students know about the campus, the more likely they are to think about campus security," said Gatell.

"Students can protect themselves by getting involved in campus activities and being aware of their surroundings," she said.

"I think it's important that people know what's going on on campus," she said. "I also think it's important that people know how to get help if they need it."

In the last two months, there has been a collection of events in South Africa which have prompted worldwide outrage and protest.

The first of these events occurred two months ago when a young black nationalist, Stephen Biko, died unexpectedly in police custody.

Some felt that Biko was beaten to death, but officially his death was attributed to a heart attack. The world was shocked into action.

Another event that has caused concern was the violent suppression of a protest by black workers in Soweto. The police used live fire and batons to stop the demonstration.

The third event was the arrest and detention of Nelson Mandela, the leader of the African National Congress. These three events have highlighted the repressive nature of the South African government.

The new black government in South Africa has moved to speed up the process of apartheid.

The government has announced plans to distribute land to black farmers and to abolish the pass laws. These measures are welcomed by many in South Africa.

The government has also promised to abolish the Bantu Education Act, which has been a major source of conflict.

In conclusion, the new black government in South Africa has taken some significant steps towards a more democratic society.

To the Editor,

I was interested to read your article on Women’s Sports and Title IX. However, I believe the authors have missed an important point in their analysis. Title IX was designed to promote sex equality in sports, but the article seems to focus solely on the impact on women.

In my opinion, Title IX has had a significant impact on all athletes, regardless of gender.

Sincerely,

Cocker Was Feeling Alright

By PETER SCOVILL

After being so familiar with Joe Cocker's life of drugs, drunkenness and depression over the past few years, it was a pleasant surprise to hear that Cocker had finally got his act together. In fact, he was performing so well that he was already making a name for himself in the music industry. Cocker was feeling alright, and it showed in his performance on stage.

The Story of Laocoon

By DAVID GOLDMAN

In the second act of his Deerfield High School production of "The Trojan War," Laocoon set the standard for dramatic presentations at the school. Laocoon, the father of the Trojan prince, did not have to portray himself as the hero of the play, nor did he have to portray himself as a god. In the story, however, he was portrayed as a man, and the play was presented with the help of a Greek actor, who portrayed Laocoon as a realistic human being.

Laocoon's role was to warn the city of Troy of the presence of the Greek fleet. In the first act, the Greek captain, Ajax, had been killed by Laocoon's son, and Ajax had been depicted as a man who was powerfully moving with the Greek fleet. In the second act, however, Laocoon was shown as a man who was struggling with the Greek fleet, and Ajax was shown as a man who was moving with the Greek fleet.

The play was presented in the auditorium of Deerfield High School, and it was performed by the students of the high school. The play was well received by the students, and it was presented with great enthusiasm.

Amstel-Busch, Inc. today asked the Federal Trade Commission to investigate the Miller Brewing Company in its purchase of the advertising agency, McCann-Erickson Worldwide, for alleged consumer deception in the advertising, labeling, packaging and merchandising of Lowenbrau beer.

Lowenbrau, a well-known German beer no longer imported into the U.S., is being produced by Miller Brewing at one or more of its U.S. breweries.

In 1978, Miller Brewing purchased exclusive rights to produce and market Lowenbrau in the U.S. but according to the complaint, the Lowenbrau produced by Miller is of different ingredients and was under a different process than the well-known German product.

Miller Brewing is charged with marketing the U.S.-brewed Lowenbrau as a manner to deceive and mislead consumers, causing them to believe

Editor's note: The information presented above was obtained through their distribution by Amstel-Busch, Inc. of N. Leans, Missouri.

Conversely to fact—Lowenbrau is traditionally produced and imported from Germany or alternatively that the domestically product is the same as the German-produced version.

The complaint that Philip Morris, Miller and McCann-Erickson are that:

All beer sold under the Lowenbrau label has its origin in Germany which is false it does not.

All beer sold under the Lowenbrau label is brewed in Germany and imported for sale into the U.S. when in fact it is not.

All beer sold under the Lowenbrau label is brewed from the same ingredients used by Lowenbrau Munch in when together domestic Lowenbrau is brewed with significantly different ingredients.

All beer sold under the Lowenbrau label is brewed using the same process as Lowenbrau Munch whereas domestic Lowenbrau is produced by significantly different processes.

To support the foregoing allegations, the complaint cites the following specific facts:

Domestically produced Lowenbrau wine-cask cousins are only supplied to those traditionally used package imported Lowenbrau in its traditional trade channels and featuring the Lowenbrau trademark and carriage LABEL: "Lowenbrau Establishment 1863 Munich, Germany." The only indications in the carriage appear on the bottom of the carton and carton ends which are not visible to consumers when the carton is displayed in stores.

The only indications in the carriage appear on the bottom of the carton and carton ends which are not visible to consumers when the carton is displayed in stores.

Point-of-sale advertising materials using the Lowenbrau Munch colors and trademark contain no disclosure that the beer being sold is Lowenbrau in U.S.-produced.

When domestic Lowenbrau is sold on draft there is no disclosure at the point of consumption that the product is a different product than imported Lowenbrau. On-premise point-of-sale materials make no disclosure that the beer being sold is domestic, and the use of the traditional Lowenbrau Munch colors and trademark give the impression that it is imported.

The wording on the back panel of some domestic Lowenbrau bottles includes the word "REINHEITSGUARANTIE" which is a 51.6 degree which regulates beer brewed in Bavaria and limits their content to barley, malt, hops, yeast and water. The domestic Lowenbrau does not comply with the decree because it contains other ingredients. Ingredient and process differences between the domestic and Munch Lowenbrau are detailed in the complaint.

The complaint requests that the FTC take appropriate action against Miller Brewing, Philip Morris, Inc. and McCann-Erickson Worldwide to discontinue the deceptive practices.

This is the debut album by the "new band" that's been getting a lot of buzz among rock critics recently, and rightfully so. To say the least, "Taking Heads" is an outstanding release. The band's unique combination of vocals, guitars, and percussion make for a sound that is both familiar and new.

The album opens with a track called "Taking Heads," which features the band's signature mix of electronic beats and guitar riffs. The second track, "Save the Last Dance," is a slower, more acoustic piece that allows the band's lead singer to showcase his powerful vocals.

With their unique sound and innovative approach, "Taking Heads" is sure to be a hit with rock fans everywhere.

Master of Ad-Lib

By DENNIS SCHEYER

It has been two weeks since the David Brenner concert which, for those of you who missed it, was held in the University Gym before a close to sell-out audience. Brenner had it all in addition to the usual blender Lilting there were going to be some-what-comfortable chairs. They are not the usual breather. No major problem...but it could have been worse.

The evening begins as a tall lanky man with a big nose wearing a brown and nubby three-piece suit appears on the stage. After a bit of the usual (a standing cordial to the billed Brenner went to work. The audience already was psyched for Brenner. Even the opening, "How ya Doin’?" got a big laugh.

Brenner had a joke for everything...and they were funny too! There were some jokes, some people jokes, and of course, mother jokes.

Brenner said to the audience, "what happens when standbys get to the funny parts?"

Furthermore, there were other brother jokes, orange color jokes, etc. The best was the stand-up joke. "What happens when standbys get to the funny parts?"

Brenner’s outfit consists of the one-line of a male actor who describes as "dude." His routine, which primarily rhymes, follows a well-choreographed format. Brenner mentioned his upcoming appearance on "The Tonight Show" Dec. 5, 6, and 7th. He told the audience that a majority of the routine they heard that night was new material that he was testing. His audience was the catalyst for what he would use on "Tonight." He thanked them for their help.

Brenner's performance lasted almost two hours, a long time for the listener’s standards. Throughout, he kept the audience laughing, the obvious hallmark of any good comedian.

Media Blitz

Not since the Australian Sex Baron swept the island of Manhattan has there been such a flurry of interest and activity in the newspaper business...

The Tower Tribune is now being run by the lions to make room for the University News, a SUNYA News Bureau/Community Relations Office collaboration. The Tower Tribune, which is a student-run, monthly publication, is dedicated to covering women’s and intramural sports, SUNYA’s own Baron, suite President Kathy, is working with President Dave Gold on the launching of the SUNYA News, a one-page newsletter designed to, surprisingly, enough, SUNYA news.

Add to this the off-campus student's newsletter, Getting Off, Fuentes Latina’s La Vez Del Pueblo, which is presently published within the pages of the ASP, and two new Albany community papers, No Exit Press and downtowner’s South End Scene, and the result is a sudden wave of communication that you can shake a pipe at. Throw in WCDM-FM next semester, and SUNYA becomes a real media hub.

Which is nothing short of fantastic. With a total student population of over 20,000, this university can surely support more than one newspaper, and competition is a healthy means of improving the quality and quantity of news coverage on campus.

The University News will be an especially welcome addition to the fold. The ASP is run by students, and covers the news on campus from a student perspective; it will be interesting to see how the new service compares to the SUNYA News and to see what impact it has on the student body.

The Season Ticket should also be interesting to watch, as an alternative in the sports field. It might be published monthly, and therefore should have the time to go into more depth in their coverage than the ASP, which can only fill twice weekly deadlines. Competition, again, should ensure that the ASP efforts are professional, and cover a variety of topics.

It is imperative, though, that these papers be spared the fate of the Self-Dossier, the Albany State and the Albany Press and the Washington Post. That's going to require involvement, and with such a large selection of papers to choose from, there should be something for everyone.

The Albany Student Press welcomes, in open arms, its journalistic brethren. And wishes them the best of luck.

To the Editor:
The ASP has stopped all SA groups in the face of yielding in as it was in reaction to the synthetic trenching of the day. A reasonable way to make the ASP is to attract that SA is more than a handful of us here at the school. The ASP was started by the SA, but the ASP’s way is not as important. The SA has been criticized for its lack of balance and clarity. The SA has been criticized for its lack of balance and clarity. The SA has been criticized for its lack of balance and clarity. To the Editor:
The readers are many people are often more interested in what is going on in the world than in what is happening in the South. The ASP is a good source of information, and there are many people who read the ASP, but the ASP is not as important as the SA.

Men Swimmers Tie RPI In Great Dane Relays

by Mitch Schiller

The Albany men and RPI's men's swimming teams tied for first place, with 12 points each, at Friday's Great Dane Relays held at UAlbany's Gold Pool from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Last year's victor, Dutchess, finished second to both teams in the 11 men's college campuses division. It was also the first time that the Dutchess was out of the top two places.

A very tight race, the Dutchess men's relay team left for the front, with the final race for the RPI men's relay team.

Ex Comp Lit Prof Files Suits

by M.J. Mozurait

Suits naming the SUNY Board of Trustees and various members of the SUNY administration for alleged violations of academic freedom and due process have been filed in the Southern District Court of New York by former members of the Comparative Literature faculty.

The suits revolve around the tenure proceedings of the three faculty members at the end of the 1970s and early 1980s, when the Comparative Literature professor emeritus, professor of Comparative Literature, professor emeritus of Comparative Literature, and professor emeritus of Comparative Literature, respectively.

The suits claim that the tenure decisions were made in violation of the professors’ rights to due process and academic freedom.

Lepore was not on the SUNY board at the time of the tenure decision, and her suit has been filed separately.

The suits seek damages and injunctive relief, including the reinstatement of the professors to their former positions.

SA Delays Stipend Payments

by Matthew Cox

The SUNY Administration’s delay in paying stipend payments to student athletes has sparked frustration among the Sun Devils.

In a letter last week, the SUNY Athletic Council asked the SUNY administration to prioritize the payment of stipend payments to student athletes.

The SUNY administration has acknowledged that the delay in payments is due to internal budget problems.

The SUNY Athletic Council has threatened to take legal action if the stipend payments are not made in a timely manner.

Benecke Refuses Penalty

by Dennis Leary

Former SUNY President Marc Benecke has refused to pay the $10,000 fine imposed by the SUNY Board of Trustees for his role in the 1994-95 financial crisis.

Benecke, who served as SUNY president from 1989 to 1995, has praised the SUNY Board of Trustees for its handling of the crisis.

Benecke has stated that he will not pay the fine and will appeal the decision to the SUNY Board of Trustees.

Class of ’79 President Gary Bentz sends a letter to former Class of ’79 President Marc Benecke, which has a penalty clause of $10,000 for his proposal to pay back $500,000 to the Class of ’79.

Bentz, who has served as president of the SUNY Alumni Association, wrote to Benecke that he was unable to pay the fine due to financial difficulties.

Bentz has stated that he will continue to fight the penalty and that his decision to send the letter was based on his belief that Benecke was wrong.

In a recent letter, Benecke stated that he would appeal the penalty and that he was not able to pay the fine due to financial difficulties.

Benecke has stated that he will continue to fight the penalty and that his decision to send the letter was based on his belief that Benecke was wrong.
