Potter Club Scores Sweep Wins Decisively In I & II

Potter Club teams ramped to easy wins Tuesday night in both the League I and the League II championship games. Amazingly both of the winning teams had been forced into playoff before winning their way to the top team in each league. In Leage I action Potter combined a bustling, alert defense with some fine inside work allowing in scoring. The Club jumped into an early lead and was never headed. With Jim Mullen popping from the outside, and George Webb scoring from underneath, Potter won by a 31-10 margin. In the League II triumph Potter overpowered its opponent by a 40-27 score. Again Potter was a dominating team, as they scored early and often. The first team is strong in some events, while the second is strong and will be capable of winning the next round.

Vietnam Soldiers Report Marijuana Smoking

By Lee Dember

(Reprinted from the New York Times)

The lights were low and the room was empty, except for the sound of the television set. It was a common scene in many of the bars in the village of Nha Trang, Vietnam. Until recently, the bars were crowded with young men and women, drinking beer and smoking cigarettes. But now, most of the patrons are gone, and the bars are quiet.

The reason for this change is simple: the U.S. military is on the way out of Vietnam. The bars have become empty as many of the young men who used to frequent them have left the country.

But for those who remain, life in the village of Nha Trang is not easy. Many of the former patrons have found work elsewhere, and the bars are now sparsely populated.

Yet even in this atmosphere of desolation, there are still signs of life. At one bar, a young man was seen smoking a cigarette, his face illuminated by the light of the television set. He seemed content, despite the empty room around him.

This is the reality of Vietnam today. A country slowly emptying out as the U.S. military begins to withdraw.

A Student from Nigeria Views School Society

Adofo Adekola, a student at Albany State College, has been studying in the United States for three years. He is a member of the Student Government Association and hopes to return to his country to teach or take a position with a corporation.

When asked why he thought so many students from Nigeria were coming to the United States for higher education, Adekola said, "I think it is because of the political situation in Nigeria. The government is not able to provide the necessary facilities for education."

Adekola was taught in an elementary school in Nigeria and later attended a secondary school. He received his bachelor's degree in business education in 1960 and is currently working on his master's degree in public accounting.

Adekola hopes to return to Nigeria after he completes his studies in the United States. He is interested in business education and hopes to teach in Nigeria after he returns.

The Right Way

by Robert Salmson

The most significant feature of this economic plan is its comprehensive approach to economic recovery. It is based on the principle that economic recovery requires a combination of measures that address both demand and supply-side factors. The plan includes a number of key provisions:

1. A comprehensive tax reform package that reduces taxes for businesses and individuals, stimulating economic activity and providing incentives for investment.

2. An infrastructure program that invests in roads, bridges, and other public works, creating jobs and improving transportation and communication networks.

3. Increased funding for education and training programs, helping individuals acquire the skills needed for high-wage jobs.

4. A reform of the unemployment insurance system, providing more generous benefits to unemployed workers and extending coverage to a larger share of the workforce.

5. An energy policy that promotes renewable energy sources and efficiency improvements, reducing reliance on imported oil and gas.

6. An environmental program that addresses climate change and other environmental challenges, while also creating new jobs in clean energy and other green industries.

These measures are designed to stimulate demand and create new jobs, while also promoting economic growth and sustainability. The plan is expected to generate significant economic benefits, including increased productivity, higher wages, and reduced poverty. It is a comprehensive and balanced approach to economic recovery that addresses both the short-term needs of recovery and the long-term challenges facing the economy.

Out of Focus

To the Editor:

This week's issue of The Albany Student Press contained a column by Richard C. Wesley which violently attacks the student body of the University of Redstone. Dr. Wesley, a columnist for the New York Times, implies that the students are responsible for the present mess and that the administration has done nothing to stop it. This is not true. The administration has taken every possible step to control the situation, and the students have cooperated fully in the effort to maintain order. The only thing that is wrong is the way the column was written. It was a very biased and one-sided account of the situation. The students have always been a good source of information, and I hope they will continue to be so in the future.

For Mr. Redstone to assume that all students are responsible for the present situation is not only unfair, but it is also incorrect. The students have been working hard to maintain order and to prevent any further disturbances. They have cooperated fully with the administration in this effort, and they have done everything possible to prevent any further incidents from occurring.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the students for all they have done in recent weeks. They have been a credit to the University of Redstone, and I hope they will continue to be so in the future.

Sincerely,

Student Body President

The group has been performing in the Rathskeller for several weeks, and has acquired a loyal following among students. The members are: Barry Schlenberg, Ken Fisher, Mike Berman, Pat Capobianco, Bill Taggart and Steve Macek.

Intermedia Ends On Pointless Note

by Robert B. Cutkey

I am beginning to feel more and more that we are hopelessly locked into a sterile set of categories. Certainly I can do substantial work, and I believe that I can do it, but I am not sure that I can do it in a way that will be of any real value to anyone else. I am not sure that I can do it in a way that will be of any real value to the world. I am not sure that I can do it in a way that will be of any real value to the group. I am not sure that I can do it in a way that will be of any real value to the group.

Of course, Atlas Epping is not the only one to be concerned with this problem. The same problems are faced by all of us, and we all have our own solutions. But the problem is still the same. The problem is still the same. The problem is still the same. The problem is still the same. The problem is still the same.
