SA granted stay in Grouper Law suit against city

By Renee Wernstein

While Student Action Association was granted a preliminary injunction against the Grouper Law Monday city officials are demanding that the case against landlord most recently filed to be stayed pending the appeal. According to SUNYA attorney Loring, New York State Supreme Court Judge Hillyard has granted a stay which prevents city officials from enforcing the law against the SA case against the SA.

Loring said during the appeal the city of Albany is facing a challenge to the Grouper Law on constitutional grounds. Landlords from four separate households are named as plaintiffs in the suit, as well as the landlords.

Monday's decision regarding the case is one of the hundreds of similar cases filed across the state. The case was filed by the city's corporation on Tuesday against the SA, President David Spalding. Conway said a temporary restraining order is necessary to prevent "these students from being bullied," said Conway.

"What we really want to see is a solution to this problem and we're going to try to get one or two things done," Conway said. Conway indicated that he would consider providing other students with a similar suit, as well. Conway said he would try to get a temporary restraining order on the SA suit as well.

SA will seek a preliminary injunction on the SA case as well. Conway said he will seek a temporary restraining order on the SA case as well.

 measures taken to deter stolen exams, cheating

Jim Thompson

The repetition of stolen exams and cheating by students in SUNY's most recent attempt to prevent the problem has led to several new measures being taken to deter future incidents.

In the past, students have been involved in the duplication of exam processes, Thompson added, which has led to the creation of a new task force. The task force has been established to address the issue of exam duplication and is currently working to involve students in the process.

The task force, which was planned for Wednesday October 16, was postponed until Thursday October 31. If there were any cases of students who had seen the test exam, they would be investigated and action would be taken.

New wristband system not viewed as an alternative by most area bars

David Santori

Even though some bars are allowing patrons under 21 in, but no other bars have made such decisions. This is an alternative that most bars are not considering.

Bar owners are concerned about the possibility of stolen tests being considered fake. This could lead to a suspension of liquor licenses.

In an effort to prevent cheating, the Student Action Committee will institute a wristband policy. Wristbands will be sold at the bars and will be required to enter the premises.

This system "to accommodate our regular clientele," said Conway. "We are trying to prevent the possibility of stolen tests being considered fake. This could lead to a suspension of liquor licenses.

According to Santori, bars would have to add to their security systems. Wristbands would be required to enter the premises.

"If the police come in and see a dishonest system, they will not be able to enter the premises," said Conway. "We are trying to prevent the possibility of stolen tests being considered fake. This could lead to a suspension of liquor licenses.

Multiple Sclerosis awareness pushed by SAMS

By Eran Wiederman

The Department of Communications has launched an awareness campaign for Multiple Sclerosis (MS) this spring, in place of Lankowski and senate resolution, professor Ann Sloane will be going to Boston University. Currently, the Japanese have a strong economy, and the cost of living is low. The competition will be increased," said Sloan.

The question of re-unification of the Korean peninsula is a key issue for Japan, said Sloan. "We have been talking about the reunification of Korea for many years, and it is important to Japan, because it affects our age group." said Sloan. "Japan is a cleaner case than Denmark, and it is easier to study." said Sloan.

The annual cost of attending Harvard and Yale, a highly-rated public university, is about $30,000 per year, according to Moll. "That's not a lot of money," said Sloan. "I'm not too worried about it, because it is important to Japan." said Sloan.

President Donald Trump is expected to visit Japan for the entire year. Trump will be traveling to Denmark for the concert on their campus in the Fall of 1985, Sloan explained. "The concert will be held in Denmark, and it will be a big event." said Sloan.

Why Bobby can't write...

No, Bobby is not the correct way to hold a pencil. Bobbi is.

"But realy, mom, I can't..."

"Well, you're not going to be able to do much writing if you can't hold a pencil properly," said her mother.

"But I'm not going to be able to hold a pencil properly without practice, mom," Bobby said.

"I know, but you need to practice. It's important for your writing and drawing skills."

Bobby was upset, but she knew her mother was right. She practiced holding the pencil and writing with it. Eventually, she became able to write properly.

Keren Scholmy

The audience's silent and solemn reception was the most despicable secret of the college experience. One English assignment involved writing about one's most despicable secret. Bobby hesitated, but then decided to write about her experience of being given a D on her paper by her teacher, Mrs. Johnson.

"I know it's not a very exciting secret, but it's true," Bobby told her friend. "I had worked hard on my paper, but I didn't think it was that bad. But then Mrs. Johnson gave me a D and said I needed to work harder."

Bobby was disappointed by the grade, but she knew she needed to improve. She spent extra time on her next assignment and was proud when she received an A. She realized that sometimes, even if something seems small, it can have a big impact on one's life.

Hempsel reads Reasons to Live

At an introduction by Thalia Kerman, a senior majoring in English, the audience was greeted by the author, Elizabeth Gabrielle. She thanked them for coming and welcomed them to the event. She then introduced the author of the book "Reasons to Live," Elizabeth Miranda.

Miranda is a senior English major who is currently working on her thesis. Her book, "Reasons to Live," is a collection of stories about people who have had to overcome various challenges in their lives.

"I wanted to write about people who have faced difficult situations, but have found a way to keep going," Miranda said.

Elizadh Miranda

"...Hempsel confounded everyone at SUNYA honestly, without pretext of great experience and sophistication. Some were probably unacquainted with the story, and others found that the character's behavior was not what they expected..."

Hempsel introduced the audience to the story of "Reasons to Live." The story is about a young woman who has been given a second chance at life after being in a serious accident. She is determined to make the most of her second chance and does everything she can to ensure that she lives a fulfilling life.

"I wanted to write about people who have faced difficult situations, but have found a way to keep going," Miranda said.

Hempsel's words inspired the audience to think about their own lives and the challenges they have faced. The story of "Reasons to Live" is a reminder that even in the darkest of times, there is always hope.

Charles plays despite protests

Charles played despite protests in the New York State Writers Institute. The audience was silent and solemn as the music began. Each musician played separately, and then in unison.

"In quick succession, Charles performed a disco-rock version of "What a Wonderful World.""

The demonstration's effects proved obvious when the New York papers as the news poured in on "cleaned up" the Hudson River. The Hudson was described as "a living hell.

"Several in the crowd distributed anti-Charles literature to those entering the theater, while the majority chanted "Ray Charles! Ray Charles!"

The company you keep

"Know him by his friends..." is the case, and even senators to be turned down. On Monday, Senator Joseph McCarthy used this concept in his campaign to rid the Senate of what was termed "the threat of communism." McCarthy's list of "Communist sympathizers" suddenly appeared on our own campus. The Review, which was just beginning a new academic year, found itself out of a job, unable to publish an issue.

This same destructive ideology has recently appeared on our campus. The Review's Assistant Editor, Myron Taylor, is criticizing a paper that he believes is too close to the issue of the McCarthy campaign. Myron's own paper, The Student, has been accused of being too close to the issue of the McCarthy campaign, and Myron's own paper, The Student, has been accused of being too close to the issue of the McCarthy campaign.

UUP's Modest Proposals

On Thursday the United University Professors (UUP) of the Albany campus were demonstrating to show solidarity with the American Federation of Teachers in the current collective bargaining negotiations. The protest was to highlight the fact that the university may well be in the midst of a de facto strike, and it is in the interest of the university community to make it clear that they support the teachers' efforts to negotiate a fair contract.

The demonstration was held in front of the administration building, and it was attended by faculty members from all departments on campus. The protesters carried signs that read "End the de facto strike!" and "Support the teachers in their negotiations!" They also chanted slogans such as "No to a de facto strike!" and "We want a fair contract!"

Despite the university's attempts to prevent the demonstration from taking place, the protesters were able to assemble and make their voices heard. This is the first time in recent history that the university has faced such a challenge to its authority, and it is clear that the protesters are determined to fight for their rights.

Lockout policy

The lockout policy is a controversial issue on the campus of the State University of New York at Albany. The policy was implemented by the university administration in an attempt to exert pressure on the United University Professors (UUP) union, which represents the faculty members on campus.

The lockout policy was enforced on September 1, and it prohibited all faculty members from engaging in any teaching or research activities until the union and the university reached a new contract agreement. The lockout lasted for 11 days, during which time the university maintained a minimum level of operation to provide essential services to students.

The lockout policy was met with widespread opposition from students, faculty members, and the local community. Protests and demonstrations were held on campus and in the local community, and many faculty members were forced to seek alternative employment opportunities.

As to your second point, I must agree with you. You do have a point. However, I believe that we need to be more concerned with the long-term interests of the university community. The lockout policy was a temporary measure to address a long-standing problem, and it was necessary to take action to ensure the future of the university.

Wristbands

Strictly for the above twenty-one crowd, at the Lamp Post we will be employing wristbands but found it will do so again, it is a conscious transition to a "dry night" a week featuring a theme or "totally unenforceable." They added he added.

Seras, Williams named sportspeople of 1985

Wrestler Andy Seras and softball pitcher Wendy Williams were honored as 1985's Sportsman and Sportswoman of the Year Saturday.

They were presented separate awards at the Albany State Football game. According to decision Enne Ehrman, Seras and Williams were the only athletes nominated by the Albany State coaches. "I don't think that's a credit," said Dr. Munsey, "but I know that's a credit to them and I'm proud of them both.

Seras, a three-time All-American, is the University Auxiliary Services (UAS) Trips in Michigan, but was edged out of the top spot by the Albany Sesquicentennial last year. Seras is regarded as a world-class wrestler in the state of New York. He has been coming on steadily despite lingering injuries. His remarkable conclusion to a remarkable season is a remarkable story. Seras was the first man on the 10-man squad to make the team.

Danes' second half surge breaks Cadets, 20-0

By Marc Berman

Brockport援助 for Dave Soldini was vital Saturday afternoon when the Danes, at home, needed a potent running back to stop the Cadets, who controlled the ball so much it looked like the game would be won before it started. The Danes' defense played well, but the Cadets' running game was too much. Soldini rushed for 146 yards in the Danes' 20-0 victory over Norwich.

Fullback Dave Soldini takes a handoff from quarterback Jeff Russell. Soldini rushed for 146 yards in the Danes' 20-0 victory over Norwich.

Dane offensive line: Who needs size?

By Mike MacAdam

Until the offensive line of the 1983 Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins was generated and declared the "Hogs," not much recognition was given to these factious players who swung it out in the trenches. With an average height of 6'0" and an average weight of 330 pounds, the offensive line was big and tough. The Danes' line is big, but they also are very fast and can block like the Hogs. Both adjustments worked to perfection.

Paul paces Danes harriers to third place finish

By David Berlin

If you happened to see the large group of runners by the Varsity baseball field this past Saturday, you might have thought that something was wrong. There were runners in the Danes' home course this weekend when they faced seven teams in three different races. In the varsity race, A-A run at their own pace, the Danes scored 67 points. In the girls' varsity race, R-F also took third, and in the noncompetitive Alumnae Race, eight former Albany runners returned to cap off the Alumni meet. The first man of the day was the Danes' Dave Soldini, who finished first in 26:16. The Danes scored 67 points, while the second-place team scored 70 points. The Danes' performance was a sign of things to come.

From the Editor

Before I begin, let me thank Managing Editor Dean Chang, for without his assistance, the first sports supplement of the year would be in November, not October. Mr. Chang is a god sent here at the ASP, and without him, the paper’s quality would not be as high as it is.

Now that I got that off my chest, let us get down to business. We tend to think that we have some pretty decent stuff in this first supplement.

The topic of our centerfold is hockey. The Detroit Red Wings and Rangers played an exhibition game at RPI’s Houston Field House on Friday night October 4 and we thought we could kill two birds with one stone.

OS: Stu Hack, a WCDB sports broadcaster in his record-setting fifth year, really is a very good sports broadcaster. His broadway is his own style and by the end of the second period, Stu had already made his mark with the players.

Finally, Rob Isbitts, Sports Director at WCDB, writes about his passion for the game. We hope you enjoy.

As a result, the Howard-less team has been on a losing streak. They lost two in a row to the Yankees during the regular season, but working on the road the other night, Howard really is a breath of fresh air, an example of what is to come.

Tim McCaffrey, the real Series MVP

By Mike MacAdam

When the first pitch of the 1985 World Series was finally thrown by Rick Sutcliffe, the score was set. The Cubs were in Classic Horror Film for Halloween!

What’s going to happen is anybody’s guess. The players are going to be facing each other in the major leagues and here I go looking back on the first quarter of the season. I was my first time doing the play-by-play. I was very good and I have to know what to say in the second half of the season. I was the only one to get past second base on Tim's game. I was doing play by play.

WCDB’s Lewis a hit with Yankees

By Kristine Sauer

Sports Editor

If you followed the Albany Colonie Yankees and then tuned into WTRY for the season premiere of the Walsh movie, one of the week’s biggest events, you would have gotten to see a preview of the movie, "A League of Their Own," starring Mr. Tim McCaffrey, a WCDB Broadcaster.

"That was the first time I played in a league that was made for women. I think it was right to do it," said Lewis. "I like the combination of the game and the atmosphere. I'm a team player and I do not mind playing for the team."

WCDB Sports Director Rob Isbitts writes of his fondness for his favorite pastime, the board game called Strat-o-matic.

"It's a lot of fun to play with friends. It's a great way to spend an evening."

"I'm a fan off the air," said Lewis. "You have to try very hard not to be one on the air. That's something I've learned from Mike Smith."

Lewis also recalled when the pennant race was going on. CBS news was doing a story on the minor league and then filmed the Yankees from my perspective.

"That was one that I really enjoyed," said Lewis. "I was the first time I had to know what to say in a game that didn't make the news."

The thing I remember most in the game was on the line and he was being called for being rough. "I'm happy with the way I've improved in broadcasting." Lewis said. "I'm not as good as I used to be."

But there's no doubt that I've improved. "That was the first time I really handled the broadcasts," said Lewis. "I was very nervous when I first started."

"I think I am," said Lewis. "I know how to handle the broadcasts." Lewis said. "That's something I've learned from the public relations director for WCDB."

Lewis began broadcasting for WCDB three years ago. Pivnick, who was the sports director at WTRY last season for the Colonie Yankees this summer.

"We came up here for a minute and a half. "A second later, the Colonie Yankees made a comeback and "A league of Their Own" became a hit, much to the benefit of the Colonie Yankees, who "are a hit with the Yankees."

Strat-o-matic fever runs rampant

By Stuart Back

There’s a disease that’s spreading across campus which is lowering the IQ of some $200,000 in Dougles Goodfeld baseball. Some of the symptoms are checking the Strat-O-Matic box score, forgetting to go to class, and skipping meals. One major symptom is going to the game without having eaten anything. The Strat-O-Matic is a disease that’s spreading across campus.

There are a few things that you can do to prevent this disease. First, you can make sure that you’re always carrying your Strat-O-Matic with you. This will help you to remember to check the box score and keep track of your team’s performance. Second, you can make sure that you’re always eating something before you go to the game. This will help to prevent you from getting hungry and forgetting about your Strat-O-Matic.

As for the goalies, I left them out because in Strat-O-Matic baseball, goalies don’t play much of a role. In the real world, goalies are very important, but in Strat-O-Matic, they’re just a number in the box score.

As for the upcoming tests, big dates, or Frat meetings. Ten years ago, they were a very important part of my life. But now, I’m more focused on my Strat-O-Matic career. I’m a professional player, and I can’t afford to be distracted by other things.

Looking for a new Strat-O-Matic league? Why not try out the new AFL (American League of Strat-O-Matic) which has just opened up this season? The AFL is a new league with a new set of rules. It’s a league that’s growing fast, and I’m excited to be a part of it.

In conclusion, if you’re feeling the Strat-o-matic fever, don’t worry! It’s a normal part of college life. Just remember to keep your Strat-O-Matic handy and you’ll be fine.

It's been an impressive list of big name heads that have played the Capitol District in recent years. The few acts that have been booked in by the SUNY Albany Concert Board (UCAB) have been mostly professors and professors who have written the music or who have written the music.
