Rain and snow putting damper on Danes’ year

By Mary Schulte

The Albany State Great Danes baseball team’s schedule is in disarray, as a result of recent weather disruptions. The Danes are scheduled to play four home games this spring and are currently in the process of making adjustments to their schedule to accommodate the weather.

Since the season began, the Danes have had to reschedule several games due to snow and rain. The most recent delay occurred when the team was scheduled to play against SUNYA on April 15.

The weather has affected the team’s performance as well. Coach Rhenish has had to make several adjustments to the team’s practice schedule to ensure that the players are prepared for the season.

Despite the challenges, the Danes remain optimistic about their team’s performance. "We’re doing our best to prepare for the season," Rhenish said. "We have to be flexible and adapt to the circumstances."

Be aware of reality

For some unexplainable reason many women feel that their safety on this campus is a serious problem. A naive philosophy seems to exist here that women are safer on campus than anywhere else. This is not true. Women's safety is not a campus problem. This is an overall problem of safety conditions that can be achieved here. The women's safety movement has developed a real feeling of security at this university. It simply isn't true. There is a serious problem with women's safety on this campus. It's a problem that must be recognized and dealt with.

The Arab propaganda effort has promoted numerous myths about the Arab-Jewish conflict. It is time that the Arab world realized that the only way to achieve peace in the Middle East is through a two-state solution. The Arab leaders saw that this wasn't happening, they began fighting Arab armies, and that swift Arab victories would lead to the defeat of Israel. However, that is a far too easy solution. There is no solution to the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. The only way to achieve peace is through a two-state solution.

The Arab leaders have been forced to accept the reality of the two-state solution. This has been made possible by the Arab leaders' recognition that the only way to achieve peace is through a two-state solution. Legislation proposes aid to campus day-care

By Marica Adams

New York State needs to provide financial aid to college day-care centers, according to State Assemblyman Mark Alan Sicgel (D-1st). If passed, Sicgel's Legislation would allocate $10,000 or $20,000 of state funds per center as well as $10,000 of state funds per student to help create or support a day-care center on campus. This Legislation has been sponsored by the California University of Los Angeles, Los Angeles State University, and the Community College Program.

Community College Program operates centers and schools, according to a proposal before the legislature. The proposal would also include $10,000 to support a day-care center on campus. The proposal has been circulated among various people in the campus and it is postulated that the idea would be supported because of the need for such centers.

Richard Bennett, program director for the university and the proposal, has had a hard time finding the support people need on campus, since there is a need for support. Bennett said, according to the university, a community college program to provide day-care to students and faculty, and operated centers were not only not supported by the faculty, but also by the administration.

The campus was originally established to provide day-care services to employees of students and faculty, and faculty who work in a house for campus support, says Bennett.
