YWCA To Have Discussion

The Young Women's Christian Association of State College for Teachers will continue its weekly discussion groups, Thursday at 8:30 o'clock in the Lecture of the Reform Club. The discussion will continue on Tuesday by a speaker on "The Philately Today." New York State College for Teachers.

Alumnae Institutes Course

Jerome Frank, a graduate of State in the class of 1913, is the instructor in the alumnae institute in charge of the college of liberal arts and sciences at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia. Miss Frank is to give a course in "The Profession of the Physician" at the Presbyterian Hospital, New York City, from April 10 to May 7. The course will be divided into six sections, each section dealing with a different subject: medical ethics, medical history, medical education, medical research, medical practice, and medical literature. Miss Frank will be assisted by M. B. Stiles, chief of the medical library of the hospital; W. H. Cameron, chief of the department of psychology; and J. S. B. Watson, professor of pathology at the university of Pennsylvania.

To Give Shakespeare

The college is to give Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" on Tuesday evening in the college auditorium. The play will be presented by the college dramatic society, under the direction of the college president. The cast includes M. B. Stiles, chief of the medical library of the hospital; W. H. Cameron, chief of the department of psychology; and J. S. B. Watson, professor of pathology at the university of Pennsylvania.

New Additions to Ensemble From Building Noise

The additions to the ensemble from building noise include M. B. Stiles, chief of the medical library of the hospital; W. H. Cameron, chief of the department of psychology; and J. S. B. Watson, professor of pathology at the university of Pennsylvania. The new members of the ensemble will be introduced at the next meeting of the college dramatic society.
In Consolidation The Answer To The Problem!

Last week's assembly debate brought into the open one of State's most questions. The problem is to consolidate the Bible and the Law, and this has been a topic of discussion in many quarters this year.

The wording presented to the debate was in a large degree original. We ask that you not be surprised that the conclusions may not be entirely satisfactory. In fact, the original version of the debate was in a much more detailed form, including a long list of references and arguments. The debate was divided into two main sections: a brief history of the Bible and a critical analysis of the Law. The main argument was that the Bible is not to be taken literally, but rather as a historical document that reflects the values and beliefs of the time in which it was written.

The result was an interesting debate, and the conclusion was that the Bible is not to be taken literally. This was not a surprising conclusion, given the nature of the debate, but it was an important one, as it highlighted the importance of critical thinking in understanding religious texts.

The Future of Debate

As debate continues to evolve, it is important to remember that the debate is not just a competition, but a means of rigorous discussion and critical thinking. The future of debate lies in its ability to inspire and engage young people, and to provide them with a platform for expressing their ideas and opinions. The debate should be seen as a means of promoting tolerance and understanding, rather than a means of winning or losing.

Last week's position of the panel led some to compare this week with the last. The debate in a large auditorium, however, proved that the publication was not a failure of location. Discussion of the main points proved sound; a number of worthwhile ideas were finally listed.

The ability to think also, this year, was a success. This ability is to be nurtured and encouraged, this year in particular.

The Pledge:

Last Friday afternoon, the student council met and set up an all-student debate program for the future. It is to be discussed in the near future.

Songster:

Syracuse University's student publication the Songster was due to be published this week. The Songster will feature some of the publication's best songs this year.

Vacuum Cleaners:

Vacuum cleaners lost all their mysteries this week. Prof. F. B. Wright tells Barbara MacLeod the fine points concerning what goes on inside the rug cleaning machines. Prof. Robb, assistant in the course, is at the left.

University Bells:

University Bells will feature a song next week. Helmuth B.清除, Alpha Delta Pi, and Charles D. Riggs, Sigma Nu, will lead the grand march for the annual Nibbitt formal dances at the University of Tennessee. Kay Kyser provided the music.

Blind Wrestler:

Robert Allman, blind University of Pennsylvania wrestler, for he must learn to fight without sight. Prof. F. B. Wright, assistant in the course, is at the left.
