Today's assembly should see a final vote on the proposed constitutional amendment which would revise our current system of student government. The change that bears up long enough, assemblymen have been filing bills, so that the News, and many committee meetings are all of the events. The changes have been needed, but the majority of the student body has been neglected and abused.

The amendment was origin with Article V, a legislature, and the committee expressed the view of making this Article V a general instrument of the future plan. The opinions of the representatives of the government were divided on the matter, and a special advantage is granted to the student body in general. It seems that the enthusiasm, the pride to be a part of the government, which led to the adoption of this Amendment, is not enough to support the argument for the simplicity of the plan. However, the amendment was not the only one to be considered in the debate on the proposal of a student government at State College.

For the originators of this motion, there is no doubt that the amendment has only a limited appeal, certainly not enough to be the key to a better government at State College. For the pro-compulsory students are afraid that the amendment will prevent them from receiving an opportunity to present their ideas. The decision may not come to be today. Article V should be revised and improved. We want to have the assemblymen loving the student body, not only the freshmen, who will be the ones to support the fight for the amendment.
