O verwhelmed by New Paltz, Great Danes Defeated 8-2

The Albany State soccer team suffered its fourth loss of the season this past Wednesday when they were defeated by New Paltz by a score of 8-2. The Bill Snyder Intercollegiate defeated them but was yet to begin anything commanding and had there been a chance to push New Paltz open a commanding lead and then began attacking feverishly. The Danes scored both goals for the Great Danes as he kicked the first of the two into the net unassisted and recorded the second one assisted by Pat Katz.

When the team has displayed a propensity for going for it or for the game, they have been unable to do anything worthwhile to prevent the turnover. However, the score was opened by a goal by Steve Kamen and the Danes have never challenged by their outclassed opponents.

Tuesday nights from 6:10 to 8:00 scheduled. Volleyball? teams will be arranged into two leagues.

Mastromarchi who were separated Paul Breslin and Jim Rounding out the first seven were Harvey Rabin and Bill Tackaberry who were denied Wednesday in the Auxiliary gym will be opened for another

Grape Strikers Supported By Students At Rally

By Kate Hauser

The only way to hurt the groves is through the picketers who have worked with the grape pickers for three years.

The Friday, October 13, 1970, rally held at the Student Union was attended by a large student crowd to protest the grape strike in California. The event was sponsored by the grape pickers' union and attended by over 500 students.

The rally featured speakers who addressed the audience about the struggles of grape pickers and the importance of supporting their cause.

Who's Who Elections This Week

Fifty-seven students were selected as candidates for election to Who's Who in America College and University. The winners were chosen by a secret ballot and announced in the Campus Center Times.

The winners included students from all academic programs and levels, from freshmen to seniors. The winners were selected based on their academic achievements, community service, and leadership roles on campus.

HHH Nears Stretch, Campaigns In New York

By John Hall

NEW YORK (AP) — Hubert Humphrey, the Democratic vice presidential candidate, dropped his running mate, Senator Edward Kennedy, from the ticket on Thursday.

Humphrey said he was withdrawing Kennedy from the vice presidential slot in order to focus on the general election campaign.

The move came as Humphrey sought to gain momentum in the presidential race, which he is running against President Richard Nixon. Humphrey's decision was widely seen as a strategic move to bolster his chances of winning the White House.

LAAC Nominees Listed

The LAAC (Local Administrative Council) has announced its nominees for various positions for the upcoming academic year.

The nominees include students from different backgrounds and majors, reflecting the diversity of the student body. The LAAC is responsible for handling administrative matters on campus and ensuring the smooth functioning of the university.

YSA Chairman Speaks On Revolt

The New York state chairman of the Student Mobilization Committee, Daniel Berrigan, told a group of students that he was not interested in any "boycott capitalism" or "war against the war" efforts.

Berrigan said that he believed that the only way to make the world safe for student revolution was through direct action and the establishment of social justice.

"We must have a revolution, a real revolution," Berrigan said. "We must not just talk about the revolution, we must do it."

The following is the official statement of the Alliance of American Labor (AAL), which is a student organization that has been advocating for student rights and progressive causes.

"We, the Alliance of American Labor, hereby declare our support for the National Student Association of America," the statement said. "We support the rights of all students to organize and express themselves freely."

The Alliance also called for a "wider and more active" involvement in the student movement and encouraged others to join in the struggle for social justice.

On Rosenberg

To the Editor:

Mr. M. Rosenberg, the editor of The Student, arrived in Albany, N.Y., on October 15, 1918, and has been in residence ever since. He died in New York City on July 28, 1931, at the age of 73.

Rosenberg was a journalist and author who wrote extensively on political and social issues. He was a founder and editor of The Student, a weekly newspaper that was published in Albany, N.Y., from 1918 to 1931.

The Student was the official newspaper of the Albany College of Pharmacy and was later renamed The Albany Student. Rosenberg was a vocal critic of the American government and its policies, particularly during World War I and the years following.

On The Other Hand

By Tom Ceresa and Doug Goldschtield

As we continue to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the founding of the American Legion, we would like to take this opportunity to discuss the role of the American Legion in relation to the modern-day military.

The American Legion was founded in 1919 as a veterans' organization to honor those who served in World War I. It has since expanded to include those who served in all subsequent conflicts.

Today, the American Legion has over 2 million members and operates in all 50 states. It is a non-profit organization that provides support to veterans and their families, as well as to active military personnel.

However, the American Legion has also faced criticism for its past involvement in the Vietnam War and its role in supporting segregation and Jim Crow laws.

We believe it is important to recognize both the positive contributions of the American Legion and the areas where it has fallen short.

The Way It Is

By Ray Breslin

On October 8, 1972, it was announced that the Supreme Court of the United States would hear the case of New York v. United States. The case centered on the constitutional issue of whether the federal government had the authority to regulate interstate commerce.

The Supreme Court's decision in the case had far-reaching implications for the future of federal commerce regulation, and it remains a landmark case in the history of American law.

Humphrey Shouts Down Angry Demonstrators

By John Hall

In response to increasing violence in the city, Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic candidate for president, decided to visit Albany, New York. Smith had been a candidate for the Democratic nomination in 1924, but lost to Woodrow Wilson.

During the campaign, Smith had been criticized for his support of President Wilson's policies in World War I. Smith was known as a moderate candidate, and he hoped to appeal to voters who were disillusioned with the countrys involvement in the war.

 Despite Smith's efforts, he was unable to win the nomination, and eventually dropped out of the race. However, he continued to campaign for Wilson, and in 1928, he was elected as the governor of New York.

Smith's visit to Albany was met with enthusiasm by many of the city's residents. However, a small group of demonstrators disrupted the event, shouting slogans and carrying signs.

In response to the disturbance, Smith's security team attempted to control the situation. However, the crowd continued to grow, and eventually, the police were called to help.

Despite the incident, Smith was able to continue his campaign, and he went on to lose the election to Herbert Hoover.

Communications

A letter to the editor of the Albany Student News, published in 1978, expresses concern about the declining quality of the university's food service.

The author notes that the food served on campus is often overpriced and of poor quality. The author also criticizes the university's subsistence-based living program, which he believes is insufficient to meet the needs of all students.

In conclusion, the author calls for improvements in the university's food service and subsistence program. He suggests that the university should consider providing students with more options for food and better resources for subsistence.

The next letter to the editor, published in the same issue, expresses similar concerns about the university's food service. The author notes that the food served on campus is often of poor quality and that the subsistence program is inadequate.

Another Opinion

By Anthony and Cooper Halls, made dull during the three week's of the summer vacation, made an effort to call the attention of the students to the subject. The students were informed that they should not have been taken off guard by the news of the great fire, which has occurred in the city of New York.

The first lecture, "Current Trends in Teaching Music," was given on October 18 by guest lecturer Dr. Daniel Jeremy Silver. The lecture series is sponsored by the university's music department.

The second lecture, "The Art of the Recital," was presented by Dr. F.V. Morgenstern on October 25. The lecture focused on the importance of the recital as a form of artistic expression.

The third lecture, "The Role of the Composer," was given by Dr. Bennett Hershkowitz on November 1. The lecture explored the contributions of composers to the world of music.

The final lecture, "The Future of Music," was presented by Dr. Koethen on November 8. The lecture discussed the changing role of music in society and the future of the music industry.

Each lecture was well-attended, and the series was well-received by the audience. The lectures were held in the Metropolitan Museum of Art's South Gallery, and admission was free.

The lectures were part of the university's annual lecture series, which features world-renowned experts in a variety of fields. The next lecture in the series will be given on December 1 by guest lecturer Mr. Gary Liberati, who will discuss the role of technology in music.
