CHESTERFIELD

Red Cross Knitters
More Headquarters

The headquarters of the college's Red Cross knitting group has been moved from the bulletin board to the small room on the main floor of the Milne Gymnasium. The room will be used chiefly for receiving and coordinating red and white knitting for the Red Cross. The sweaters, scarves, and caps which are being knitted for patients in England are being sent to the Red Cross headquarters in New York City. The funds raised are used to buy the supplies needed for the work. The Red Cross headquarters at the college is conducted by a student committee headed by Milne.

Dr. Watt Stewart—Devil, Officer, Professor

"to worry about it."

If it is, I'm willing to bet that it's not the first time it has happened.

As a professor, I have always enjoyed teaching. I believe that the best way to learn is by doing, and I try to instill this attitude in my students. I believe that students should be encouraged to think independently, and I try to provide them with the resources they need to do so.

I have always been interested in the history of science, and I have written several books on the subject. I believe that history can provide us with a great deal of insight into the way that the world works, and I try to share this knowledge with my students.

Postlude to Perlman

As the violinist approaches the end of our time, we feel the need to reflect on the significance of his return to the RPI auditorium stage. Perlman has once again demonstrated his unparalleled talent through a performance that left an indelible mark on the hearts of the audience. His virtuosity on the violin is a testament to his dedication and passion for music, which has earned him widespread recognition and respect in the world of classical music. Perlman's return not only marks a rekindling of applause but also a demonstration of how music can connect us across generations and cultures.

Egelston Shatters Old Tradition At Recent Montreal Discussion by Edwin J. Holstein

To the north of us there is a city that is only seven times as large as Albany, this city in another country — the country of war, is Montreal, Quebec, Canada. To this city on November 26th a delegation of the American Foreign Policy Association was sent by the University of Toronto through the arrangement of Mrs. Martha A. Egelston, instructor in History at State, returned to tell the public life of Quebec. In their conversations.

Mrs. Egelston told that they could speak in the English language, and Mrs. Egelston told that they could not speak in the English language.

The gospels of honor will be published in the American Foreign Policy Association, 41, and left on the committee's premises.

Mrs. Egelston is a member of the Montreal Union and the most striking are those national customs and practices which will be approved of by the Department of Defense.
