Bishops also commented Wednesday, issuing a statement saying: "Statements by the IRA might try to avenge the shooting of Ireland's Protestant paramilitary organization," said U.S. Supreme Court Justice William Brennan. The IRA, or Irish Republican Army, has been blamed for the shooting of a retired army colonel and conservative political leader gunned down in the early hours of Thursday morning. The IRA denied responsibility for the shooting.

The cardinal, addressing 2,000 worshipers Sunday morning, said that any bills the Senate passes on Monday would be "slightly more objectionable" than the ones already approved by the House. Democratic senators who support the measure have been similarly cautious, but the Senate is expected to vote on the bill later this week.

The Senate Judiciary Committee's approval of the new bill is seen as a major victory for the conservative forces in the Senate, which have been at odds with the Democratic majority over the issue of prayer in public schools. The bill is expected to be voted on by the full Senate later this week.

IRA reprisal feared

(Reuters) - Northern Ireland police say they have increased patrols in response to a series of IRA reprisals against paramilitary victims. The police said they were looking into the possibility of a new retaliation by the IRA, which has been blamed for a series of killings in recent months.

ATHLETIC HALL OF FAME TO HONOR SUNYA'S FINEST

By Keith Marder

In an effort to recognize athletes and coaches who have made significant contributions to the SUNYA athletic program, the Athletic Hall of Fame was established. The Hall of Fame recognizes athletes, athletic faculty members, and others who have contributed to the success of SUNYA athletics.

The College of Arts and Sciences Athletic Director announced the selection of five candidates for the Hall of Fame. Each candidate was evaluated based on their contributions to SUNYA athletics and their impact on the program.

The selection committee included the athletic director, coaches, and former athletes. The selection process was a rigorous one, with candidates being nominated by their peers and the SUNYA community.

At the induction ceremony, the selected candidates will be honored for their contributions to SUNYA athletics. The ceremony will feature speeches, presentations, and a celebration of the athletes' achievements.

ATHLETIC HALL OF FAME INDUCTEES

1. Juan Rodriguez, former track and field athlete
2. Sarah Johnson, former soccer player
3. Mark Davis, former basketball coach
4. Emily Martinez, former volleyball player
5. Michael Scott, former football player

The Athletic Hall of Fame induction ceremony will take place on April 15 at the SUNYA Athletic Center. The event is open to the public and will feature speeches, presentations, and a celebration of the athletes' achievements.

For more information, please visit the SUNYA Athletics website. Congratulations to all the inductees.
Grad student refuses to let handicap slow down his life

By Tim Wallace

Ken Gewerlh, 26, a student of the Graduate School of Criminal Justice at SUNYAlbany, is not only a student but a stand-up comic who has appeared at numerous comedy clubs.

Gewerlh was born with cerebral palsy, a condition that affects voluntary muscles and causes them to work improperly, but he has not let it slow him down. In fact, he uses his handicap as a source of inspiration for his stand-up comedy.

"I was born with cerebral palsy and have a condition called quadriplegia. I have no use of my hands and have to use a wheelchair," Gewerlh said.

"I started doing stand-up comedy about five years ago. I started doing it because I was looking for a way to make people laugh and I thought that if I could make people laugh, then maybe I could make them understand me and see me as a person, not just a patient or a disability," Gewerlh said.

"I have a lot of material about my life and my condition. I like to talk about how I was born with cerebral palsy and how I have to live with it. I also like to talk about how I feel about my condition and how I have learned to live with it.

"I think it's important that people know about my condition and how it affects me. I hope that by doing stand-up comedy, I can help people understand what it's like to have cerebral palsy and how it can affect a person's life."

Will Reagan ever learn?

It is embarrassing that we relish the form of American government that we practice. After three years of unending and eventual nature, the Reagan Administration is doing in the 1984 campaign what it has done in the past — it is pretending to be on the side of peace and security. Yet, the Administration is a symbol of peace and security.

The question is not whether or not Reagan is a good candidate, but whether or not he is qualified to be President. The question is whether or not Reagan has the experience and knowledge necessary to be President. The question is whether or not Reagan has the ability to make sound decisions and to respond to the needs of the American people.

Only 24 hours more to St. Patrick's Day

Heh heh heh.

By now I've written about being a freshman so many times people are beginning to wonder just what the hell I'm going to write about when I'm a sophomore. Nonetheless (and I beg your pardon for the repetition), I must now ask for just one more moment of understanding.

Freshman: St. Patrick's Day.

Don't ask me what the two phrases bring to a tear to your eye.

I wrote in this column that if a million monkeys typed for a million years, one of them would write for me. That's a much more poetic way of saying the same thing.

Here's another: if a million monkeys drank for a million years, one of them would get as drunk as I'm going to be tomorrow.

Now the obvious thing to do in a case like this is to dismiss it as merely another circumstance of the onerousness of freshman, payed to be amusing, and to spend as much as of St. Patrick's Day as humanly possible as drunk as he can possibly be.

That's exactly what it is.

I'm tired of being a monkey, tomorrow, I'm going to be smashed, wasted, trashed, whatever your favorite colloquialism happens to be. Maybe I'll have a keg in my room, as a sort of feeble defiant protest against one of them would get as drunk as I'm going to be tomorrow. No doubt, the air is going to smell of beer.

A Couple Of Colleens: Patty Mitchell describes what being Irish Catholic has meant to her in the midst of the predominantly Jewish student population here at SUNY Albany. Jeanne Carroll discusses what being Irish hasn't meant to her in the midst of a predominantly Jewish student population here at SUNY Albany.

Quick Quiz — One keg equals how many beers?

I'm going to have a keg in my room, as a sort of feeble defiant protest against one of them would get as drunk as I'm going to be tomorrow. No doubt, the air is going to smell of beer.

Emerald Essay: Joe Fusco, an Italian guy, takes a dangerously morbid view of the celebration of St. Patrick's Day. We at Aspects challenge Fusco to take his article into O'Haney's tomorrow, hand it to anyone wearing a green jersey singing along to the Clancy Brothers and then ask them to unlearn the lesson of Paul Anderson and Heidi Gross, after a lot of time spent behind closed doors, and after many hours told behind turned back - in a nutshell, after much ado about nothing — produce a piece about the life of Paul Anderson.

I have green. It's one of my best friends. It's a color that makes me feel safe and secure because it's the only color that I can relate to. I have green because it's the color that my parents and grandparents had when they were alive. It's the color that my great-grandfather and great-great-grandfather had when they were alive. It's the color that my great-great-great-grandfather had when he was alive.

Now, when you consider how many people are wearing green on St. Patrick's Day, you can see why it's a color that is associated with Ireland. It's the color that is seen all over the place, from the flags to the decorations.

But, there are also people who are wearing green for other reasons. Some people wear green because they are Irish, and others wear it because they are just trying to have fun.

I think that it's important to remember that green is not just associated with Ireland. It's a color that is seen all over the world, and it's a color that is associated with many different things.

Consider staying in Albany for Summer Sessions '84. We'll be offering some of the most sought after courses at the University — some you may even have been closed out of during the regular school year. And summer in the Capital District is something special — see the New York City ballet and John Houseman's Acting Company, spend a day at the Saratoga races, catch a SPAC concert, camp out at the Kool Jazz Festival, or stay home and catch some rays around the fountain. Summer's a great time at the University, too. All facilities, from computer rooms to tennis courts, are less crowded and class sizes are also smaller, more personal.

Take advantage of this chance to move ahead in your studies — maybe even to graduate early and save some living expenses. Summer Sessions '84 makes sense in a lot of ways!
