Netters Drop Second Match

By Edie Rosenzweig

The Albany State tennis team was dropped a 3-2 decision at home by Florida Tech on Friday afternoon. The loss completes the team's fall season and leaves the netters with a 7-3 record.

"We are disappointed in the loss," said coach Coach Steve Rosenzweig. "I thought we had a good chance of winning the match. We were competitive, but we could not get the job done."

The loss means that the netters must now focus on preparing for next year. The team will look to improve their overall record and move up in the rankings for the upcoming season.

fographic program, maybe I can get out and it may not be in the form that you’re thinking, maybe others will want to go in.

APW/PA: Are you running what is called a ‘positive campaign?’

Kathy Brown: Definitely.

APW/PA: If you had to ask any of your opponents to do the same, would you expect them to?

Kathy Brown: I think the other candidates need to ask for the same thing.

APW/PA: If you were going along with every ad dressed to you, and you were doing it, do you think that you’d have to do the same thing?

Kathy Brown: I think every ad that is doing the campaign should be addressed to the people.

APW/PA: So, essentially, what is your ultimate end goal?

Kathy Brown: I want to make sure that the people have a voice in the decision making processes.

APW/PA: Is that so yearly, in your opinion?

Kathy Brown: I think in the next term, you should make sure that the people have a voice in the decision making processes.

APW/PA: What groups would be involved in these yearly meetings?

Kathy Brown: I don’t really see the need to have these groups involved in these yearly meetings.

APW/PA: Good luck to all you candidates.

Kathy Brown: Thank you.

APW/PA: Good luck.

Kathy Brown: Thank you.

Research and Service Center
To Be Established Here

Plans are proceeding for the establishment here of the Government Research and Service Center following the approval by the State Legislature of budgetary action. Dean Vincent O'Gara of the School of Government, the Center's director, has appointed President Bushard fields in the 15-member steering committee responsible for organizing the new center, the first major step in the institutionalization of public policy analysis thrust as part of its developing mission.

The center is envisioned as having responsibility for coordinating and facilitating policy-oriented projects seeking the applications of specialized knowledge to major issues and problems. Described as a "SUNY-wide" center, it is being designed to make more efficacious the study of public policy and to generate alternative solutions for consideration by policy makers.

Other members of the steering committee are: John Doering, geographer; John Flax, constitutional and administrative law; Robert Goering, educational policy, programs, and institutions; Governor Hugh L. Carey, public administration; Donald Flax, director of the Center for the Study of Government, Politics, and National Security, and Public Affairs. Paul Marc, geography, EugeneMcKee, political science, Paul Shively, political science, and John M. Jacobson, director of the Center for the Study of Government, Politics, and National Security.

Mr. Bushard筹建s the seminar subcommittee of the steering committee, Dr. Tompkins, the executive director, and Mr. Moeller, for the new center's technical staff is to be announced as soon as May 4. This restructured conference will emphasize the distinctions between conference and seminar activities.

Aphra Himmel, dean of the School of Arts, and Dr. J. D. Toms, the executive director, will be responsible for the academic program, and Dr. T. S. Matthews, the assistant director, will be responsible for the technical staff.

The seminar program will be designed to provide opportunities for professional, public interest, and academic groups, and to emphasize policy-oriented expertise to attendance of these issues and problems.

The director of the center, for whom recruitment is currently underway, will report to the vice president for academic affairs, but will work closely with President Bushard.

Campus News Briefs

Student Association President Steve O'Donnell announced at last Wednesday's Central Council meeting that the Student Activities and Controlling Committee at 314 and 316 Huddleman Avenue, with catastrophic power outages by Aug. 1. When too many of campus resident enjoy, makes the meetings in a space for students to enjoy. At the session, Central Council moved to implement the use of voting machines, rather than paper ballots, for elections. It also began work on the budget, a task made difficult by the fact that new council members are scheduled to assume office on May 4.

This task will require approval of the Constitution and the By-laws, which are available in the Executive Office Building, for students to acquire an understanding of public affairs.
The Presidential and Vice-Presidential Elections: An Analysis of the Candidates

After over 12 hours of questioning and discussion with the ten candidates for SA President and Vice-President, endorsement committee of the Alphonse Steckler Society, we found that only two worthy of executive office this year: Jim Aronoff and Kathy Baron.

Each year, the validity of an ASP endorsement is questioned. And this year, we came as close as we ever have to not endorsing anyone. We still feel that a leader is needed, though, and the logic behind it is rather straightforward. Very few students are going to have an opportunity to participate in the candidates' campaigns or see them in action. Even those who do will have only a very short time to learn about them. This leaves us with the task of finding the best candidates in one in-room and bombard them with questions; the majority of students will be voting on the basis of posters, literature and other media communications. The endorsement committee was comprised of six reasonably informed, reasonably intelligent students who did have that opportunity. Our decisions are based on experience, ability, compassion and intelligence, all of which are necessary but not necessarily in that order. Our priorities were that of the student body's interest; the sum of all students' interest among the candidates. We highly recommend that all interested students vote for Aronoff and Baron as we sincerely believe that they are a formidable team.

Steve Miller
Miller is reasonable, well informed and is headed in the right direction. SA's internal problems, although he's done to dismiss them. What he needs to offer this year is a year of experience to familiarize himself with the workings of SA and the university before tackling the problems of the next year. But many think that that is the basis of what he needs to offer this year. People want to vote for someone who will be on top of the game by the next Sauda meeting. This next year he should be able to keep up in the administration and provide jobs and summer work for SA employees. Unfortunately, he has stated that he is planning to resign as SA President, because he wants to spend more time working in SA this summer. He also stated that he thought he wanted to resign. Perhaps he needs to be given a chance to fight for his own position and make an Oxford judgment. And that's not the kind of representation we need.

Jon Lafayette
Lafayette has been a careful observer of SA for years. He has had the opportunity to understand competent people in office (Curran, Bresnan, Klein, Coyle) and has served in a wide variety of positions. He can control his emotions and handle pressure. He isn't afraid to challenge himself or the job — too seriously, and would be able to tackle new people and ideas. His proposal for a much-needed revisiting of the control of SA's financial statement is in intriguing, and his priorities are, in general, well-placed.

Molly has difficulty following Lafayette seriously. He hasn't been compensated for his_train_ Civil for Central or his early dissatisfaction with this year's D-McM administration. He may be lacking in the techniques of persuasion, and his sarcasm could work against him if he doesn't keep it up under control.

Lafayette's image is an albatross. At this point in time, there exists a serious lack of faith in his conviction, dedication, and dependability. To back Lafayette for the third time is a project confidence. Students have to have respect for him and take this. It would take time for Lafayette to earn that confidence and respect, and time may not be able to afford it.

Steve Miller is the best candidate for this year. He has given many years of devoted service to the student body and has shown a strong interest in the university. Although he has not actively participated in SA's activities, he has always been active and has shown a strong interest in the university. He is an excellent candidate and is highly recommended for this position.

Jim Aronoff
Aronoff has a broad base of experience. Internally with Central Council and Financial Committee, as well as externally with the ASP, he has a wide range of experience on policy and decision making. His role on the ASP board is to represent the student body's needs and interests. He has been a strong leader in the past and has shown a strong interest in the university. He is a strong candidate and is highly recommended for this position.

Kathy Baron
Baron has been a strong candidate for this year. She has been involved in many activities on the university and has shown a strong interest in the student body's needs and interests. She has been a strong leader in the past and has shown a strong interest in the university. She is a strong candidate and is highly recommended for this position.

Manny the dingo
Manny is a strong candidate for this year. He has been involved in many activities on the university and has shown a strong interest in the student body's needs and interests. He has been a strong leader in the past and has shown a strong interest in the university. He is a strong candidate and is highly recommended for this position.

The Alphonse Steckler Society wishes to congratulate Barry M. Mandel on his recent appointment to the position of vice president for international affairs at New York University. Mandel is a strong candidate for this position and is highly recommended for his strong interest in the student body's needs and interests. He has been a strong leader in the past and has shown a strong interest in the university. He is a strong candidate and is highly recommended for this position.

The Broken Flow of ‘Islands’

By GUY FRANK

I’ve been one of those people who have always been interested in the work of David Bowie. His music and films have been a constant inspiration to me. I’ve seen his shows, bought his albums, and even been to his concerts. So when I heard about his new album, I was excited. I’ve been following his career for years, and I was curious to see how he would continue his legacy.

I was not disappointed. The album is a masterpiece. The songs are powerful and emotional, and the production is top-notch. I was especially impressed with the opening track, ‘Islands’. The song is a beautiful tribute to his late father, and it’s clear that he poured his heart and soul into it.

The rest of the album is just as impressive. ‘Life on Mars?’ is aeperfect example of his signature sound. ‘Space Oddity’ is a classic, and ‘Heathen’ is a modern masterpiece. The album closes with ‘The man who sold the World’, a song that has been a staple in his live shows for years.

Overall, I was blown away by this album. It’s a testament to Bowie’s talent and dedication to his craft. I would highly recommend it to anyone who appreciates great music.
