Danes Face St. Lawrence In NCAA’s Tonight

Split In Buffalo Enough To Send 20-5 Albany To East Regional

By Paul Feltham

There was an unlikely source of comfort in the SUNYAC tournament in Buffalo yesterday, as the Danes were eliminated at the hands of a SUNYAC opponent they had already beaten.

Stony Brook, which had lost to SUNYAC regular season champion Albany earlier in the year, defeated the Danes in the SUNYAC semifinals.

"We have as good a team as anybody in SUNYAC," said Albany coach Dick Tait.

"It’s not easy to get to this point in the tournament," added Stony Brook coach Kelvin Jones.

Despite their difficulties, Albany was able to hang on for dear life in the SUNYAC semifinals.

"They played us man-to-man the whole game," said Tait.

"They didn’t switch to a man-to-man," added Jones.

"It was a tough game. They had good height. They just played a good game," said Tait.

"The game was very close. Albany’s strong points were their record, their two victories over Potsdam and Stony Brook," said Jones.

"They had good inside game — three points were their record," said Tait.

"They had good defense. They did a good job of holding the ball," added Jones.

"We feel there were several teams that could have won the tournament. And the last game was very close."

Major Reduction in US Budget

WASHINGTON (AP) - The White House and Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn., are divided over how much the federal budget should be reduced in the 1981 budget. President Reagan has asked for a $33 billion cut, while Cooper has proposed a $16 billion reduction. The White House says the cut is too small, while Cooper argues that it is too much.

Massachusetts Primary Nears

BOSTON (AP) - Voters in Massachusetts will go to the polls Thursday to elect their next governor. The Democratic candidates, Michael Dukakis and John Kerry, are facing off in a primary that is expected to be close. Dukakis, a former Massachusetts attorney general, is favored to win.

Politics: It's Still A Guessing Game

by Charles Bauser

Well, after all, it was the presidential election, and I ought to feel just a bit unhappy about the result. My opinion about the outcome of the election is not likely to change, but my feelings about the process may vary with time. As a philosophy student, I find the idea of a "consensus" election, where the majority of voters agree on a single candidate, to be somewhat appealing. However, I do not believe that the election process should be completely controlled by the major parties, or that the presidential candidates should be chosen solely by the voters. A more representative process would involve a greater degree of public participation, including the public discussion of issues and the selection of candidates by the people. While the final result of the election may not be perfect, I do believe that the process of election is important in shaping the course of national and international events.

Cruising For A Bruising

Jim Dixon

An unfortunately schmaltzy write-up of a Bruce Willis movie. By 1980, Bruce Willis had apparently turned from a young actor who was the talk of the town to a middle-aged actor who was the talk of the town. He starred in the film "Cruising," which was a critical and financial disaster. The film is about a young cop who is sent into a gay life in New York City. It received serious criticism for its portrayal of gay characters and was criticized for not exploring gay life in depth.

Winter Kills

White Trash Is Back

Robert Gordon

"Winter Kills," a film about a nightclub comedian who is sent into a very serious situation. It is a film about a young cop who is sent into a gay life in New York City. It received serious criticism for its portrayal of gay characters and was criticized for not exploring gay life in depth.

The Plasmatics

Chris Castellano

The Plasmatics were a punk rock band that formed in New York City in 1978. They were known for their energetic and controversial performances, which often included pyrotechnics and audience interactions. Their music was a blend of rock and reggae, and they were known for their anti-establishment and rebellious attitude. Their leader, Genesis P-Orridge, was famous for his theatrical performances and his dresser, which often included a Mohican hairstyle.

Have Taken Off

Al Pacino and the homonymous S.K.R. record having fun at local bar.

Fosse Jazzes It Up

Mark Rosser

"Fosse," a film about Bob Fosse, the famous Broadway choreographer and director. The film was praised for its depiction of Fosse's work, but criticized for its treatment of his personal life. The film explores Fosse's relationship with dancer and actress Lane Bradbury, and his struggle with alcoholism.

Specials Prove A Bargain

Cliff Sloan

"Specials" was a British punk rock band that formed in 1977. They were known for their fast and energetic music, and they were one of the first bands to adopt the reggae influence in punk rock. The band's repertoire included songs that were both political and satirical, and they were known for their humorous and irreverent lyrics.

Dirty Air Advantage

Governors do not realize the importance of their public health to their states. The public health is threatened by the increasing amount of pollution from cars, smoke stacks, and other sources. The key to controlling pollution is education. The Albany Student Union is hosting a series of educational events to help students understand the risks associated with pollution and to promote ways to reduce it.

Disillusionment

To the Editor:

It's hard for me to put into words the feelings I have about the American political system. I have always been involved in politics, but recently I have become disillusioned with the whole system.

I believe that the government is run by the wealthy and powerful, and that the rest of us are simply pawns in their game. I have heard people say that they are voting for a certain candidate because they like their party's platform, but when I ask them why they like the platform, they usually say, "because it's the right thing to do." That's like asking someone why they like a certain color. They might say, "because it's pretty," but if you ask them what makes it pretty, they usually don't have an answer.

I think that the government should be more responsive to the needs of the people, and that it should be more accountable to the people. I don't believe that it is doing either of these things.

I have decided to stop voting. I think that it is a waste of time and energy to try to influence the government in this way. I would much rather use my time and energy to try to change things on a smaller scale.

I hope that others will join me in my quest to make a difference in this world.

Sincerely,

[Signature]

Refuge

In the Editor:

I am a refugee from a war-torn country. I have fled my home in order to seek safety and a better life. I have nothing but gratitude in my heart for the country that has welcomed me.

I have worked hard since I arrived, and I have been able to support myself and my family. I am grateful for the opportunity to build a new life for myself in this country.

I hope that others will look at the refugee crisis with compassion and understanding. I believe that we should do all we can to help those who are in need.

Sincerely,

A letter to the Editor:

I am writing in response to the article about the recent events at the University of Denver. I believe that the university is wrong in its decision to ban a speaker who is expressing views that are unpopular.

I believe that people have the right to free speech, and that they should not be punished for expressing their views. I believe that the university should be more open-minded and tolerant.

I hope that others will join me in my call for a more open and tolerant university.

Sincerely,

Danes Eliminated After 87-72 Loss

Albany's 20-point loss to Potsdam Saturday in the 1980 State University of New York at Albany Regional basketball title game was a disappointing ending, but a satisfying one for the Danes, who played their typical game on Saturday afternoon. The Danes played well, despite losing by a 12-point margin, and their performance earned them respect from the crowd and the league.

The Danes played some of their best basketball in the first half, leading by as much as 19 points. Despite this, the Danes were unable to hold onto their lead, allowing Potsdam to score 32 points in the second half. The Danes were led by forward Terry Hunter, who scored 18 points and grabbed 11 rebounds. Despite these efforts, the Danes were unable to secure a victory.

The Danes are eliminated from the tournament, after losing to Potsdam in the semifinals. Despite the loss, the Danes played a solid game against Potsdam and will be back next year with a stronger team.

Albany will face the胜者 of the other regional game in the championship game on Monday night. The Danes will prepare for their next game with a focus on improving their defense and improving their consistency throughout the game.

The Danes will face a tough challenge in the championship game, but they will be ready to take on the challenge. The Danes will be back next year, and they will be stronger than ever.

Potsdam Wins Despite Pressure

Coach Tex Winter, the National Invitation Tournament director, said the Big East was better than its record showed. "I believe we have the most talented players in the country," Winter said Sunday after the announcement of the field. "We had scheduling problems," Winter said. Potsdam now belongs to the tournament. "I believe the Big East and the Big Ten dominate the far-West Coast Athletic Conference," Winter said. "But the Big East is better than it's record showed."

The Danes did defeat Hudson Valley Community College, 88-86, on Monday, March 21, 1989. A final of 9-1 on the day is the Big East's first chance to impress the nation. "The whole league is in a little bit of a slump," coach Ted Earl said. "It was a wonderful opportunity."

Winter cited Kob Harrington as the heroics of the Danes. "Kob Harrington is a team leader," Winter said. "He's a big reason why the Danes are where they are today."

Pressure No Match For Talented Potsdam Squad

After First Round Win, Albany Falls To Potsdam

by Bob Rother

POTSDAM — On the fast track to the women's basketball playoffs, Albany and Potsdam are expected to face a bottleneck at the last 32 games, with a potential playoff upset brewing. The first-round win at Potsdam is expected to bring a playoff challenge in the last 16.

Albany leads the country in defense, but Potsdam's defense is another matter. The Bears' defense is considered the best in the country, but they have struggled against the Engineers in previous games.

Albany's defense is expected to struggle against Potsdam's offense, and the Engineers are expected to take advantage of the Bear's weaknesses.

The game is expected to be competitive, with both teams playing hard to reach the last 16. The Engineers are expected to make it through, while the Bears are expected to fall.
