State quad students charged in theft of lounge furniture

By Burke Stetl

Seven students charged with stealing a chair and furniture from State Quad's lounge on campus have entered their plea in a preliminary hearing. It was not determined whether the students will be tried in juvenile court or in adult court.

Since the students are not formally accused under arrest, their names were withheld from the preliminary hearing.

It is still under investigation which night the students entered the lounge, but the incident was reported to police on Thursday night.

The scenes are connected because the students are young and inexperienced freshmen, but should know what is right and wrong.

The students appeared before a Magistrate's Judicial Board in the presence of Assistant District Attorney Robert M. Brown and State Police Det. John M. Boon. They were charged with theft of $500 and were released on their own recognizance.

According to the board's minutes, the students were accused of stealing a chair and a table from the lounge and then returning it early the next day.

The state police report also indicates that the students were accused of breaking into the lounge and then stealing the chair and table.

The students are scheduled to appear before the court on Nov. 1.

Psychic demonstrates phenomena at session

By Marty Robb-Wright

Toni Tisinger chose a student from the more than 60 people attending "The Realms of Psychic Perception," and asked the student to speak loudly. The audience was silent when she said that "you have some things on your mind, something about a class." She added, "These things will settle soon." The student had just experienced a "reading" by clairvoyant and member of the Foundation for Spiritual Evolution, Toni Tisinger. This was one of several demonstrations presented to the audience on Wednesday night in the Alumni House.

Judy Reill, also a member and clairvoyant, chose a man from the audience and expressed, "a sisterly presence was with him." Reill added, "Your first wife died of a chest disease." The man confirmed this but later added, "Reill was correct about my wife but wrong about everything else." When asked if his parents were angry with the way he spends his money one young man said, "She was right, my parents are upset about my spending money." "The Realms of Psychic Perception" consisted of several demonstrations and a lecture by Foundation leader, Joe Gulce. Gulce, a medium, gave a brief introduction into the world of "psychic phenomenon." He has been involved in psychic studies for nine years and has also taught the topic for the past five years.

Gulce stressed that "by learning to tune into energy that exists in all of us we can all gain some control over it." According to Gulce, physics supports the theory of "psychic phenomenon." He added, "Since we are all made up of energy, there is no reason why we can't tap into the energy of others." "We are living in a closed system," said Gulce. "No energy is lost or gained." This supports the concept that there is no death, merely a passing on, he explained. "The people on the other side want to help us," said Gulce. "They have a reason to help us and they want to help us." Someone is interested in helping, the speaker explained, and through various demonstrations he showed how people can help their own and others. If anyone is interested in pursuing the study of psychic awareness they can contact the Foundation for Spiritual Evolution which is located in Guildford. Courses in healing, psychic development and consciousness will be offered.

Salvadoran tells of terror

By Robert Gould

Galan, 25, outlined a chronology of abuse in El Salvador. She scoffed at the notion that the United States aid, "If the aid is withdrawn, I would predict that the behavior of the military and thePatterns of repression in El Salvador may soon win," said Galan.

She explained that the week of her arrest and during the six-week period following her arrest, she was threatened and her life was in danger. In all, she said, she had been forced underground.

Everything you ever wanted to know

Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. has frightened and angered many people, especially me. On August 2, 1963, the House of Representatives passed a bill making January 15 the anniversary of his birth a national holiday honoring Dr. King will not only promote justice and world peace, but instill virtuous values in children yet to be born. It is imperative that we seize this moment and ensure that justice and world peace become the realities of our world. As a nation, we must come together and work towards a world where everyone is safe, free, and equal. We must be the change we wish to see in the world.

Honoring Dr. King

Born January 15, 1929, Dr. King symbolized what America stood for and what America could be. He was a man of peace, love, and justice. His speeches and sermons inspired millions of people around the world. Dr. King inspired us to believe that change is possible, and that we can make a difference in the world.

Many scholars, politicians, educators, and leaders alike believe that the time has come to honor and remember Dr. King's legacy. We must continue to stand up for justice and equality, and work towards a world where everyone is treated with respect and dignity. Let us honor Dr. King's memory by standing up for what is right and working towards a better world for all.

Unmasking The Myth Of College Education Today

by Gail Merrell

Are there any colleges in this world that do not have to go through the motions of a regular school? Is it true that research and hard work are more important than attending a regular school? I wondered. I went to a research and hard work center in New York City, where I was able to make contact with a number of professors and researchers. I found that they were very interested in the field of education, but that they were also interested in the field of research. I think that it's good that there are research universities, but I think that there are also good colleges that do not have to go through the motions of a regular school.

One of the main points that the researchers made was that there is a lot of pressure on students to do well in school. This is often because of the money that is involved in going to college. Many students feel that they have to do well in school in order to get a good job, or to be able to support themselves. However, I think that it's important for students to be able to think for themselves and to be able to work on their own. I think that it's important for students to be able to make decisions for themselves, and to be able to work on their own.

Claire Bloom At The Egg

On a recent visit to New York, Claire Bloom, the British actress, performed at the Egg, a Greenwich Village restaurant. The performance was a revelation of her talent, as she delivered a moving oral interpretation of her 1943 performance in "The Taming of the Shrew." Bloom, who has been in the spotlight for almost 40 years, is known for her portrayal of Desdemona in "Othello." Her performance at the Egg was a testament to her mastery of her craft.

Eddy Grant Is On His Own

Eddy Grant has taken a new direction in his music, focusing on his own sound rather than relying on the international success of his previous albums. His latest release, "How Long Is Forever?" is an exploration of personal growth and the passage of time. Grant's vocals are softer and more introspective, reflecting his own journey through life. The album is a departure from his previous work, but it is received with enthusiasm by fans and critics alike.

Rapping Up Wham! U.K.

Wham! U.K. has been criticized for their use of horns, which was considered repetitive and monotonous. However, the band has taken the good elements of punk that they have gained from their experiences and has incorporated them into their sound. The result is a more accessible band than their first album. "When It Comes To Rap" is a song that showcases the band's diversity, as they experiment with different styles of music. The song is a step forward for the band, as they continue to evolve and grow as musicians.

Letters

Clear up rules

To the Editor:

Regarding your letter in the October 7, 1983 edition of "ASPA," it is import to note that the statement you are quoting is not the full story. I feel it is my responsibility to reply to any letter that misrepresents my position or attempts to create confusion about the AMIA. The AMIA policy for ROTC cross-registration is a complex one that requires careful thought and consideration. It is unfortunate that the letter you are referring to does not accurately reflect the AMIA's position on ROTC.

I appreciate your taking the time to write and hope that my response clarifies any misunderstandings.

Reagan campaign committee to be established

By Lora Fassbender
June 17, 1983

On Monday, after Reagan appeared at a fund-raiser in Los Angeles, he announced the establishment of a Reagan campaign committee. "We have decided that the time has come to begin preparation for Pre-Registration,' Reagan said at a press conference in Los Angeles. "I will not face the 1984 election with an organization that is unprepared."

Reagan, who is running for the Republican nomination for president, has been a strong supporter of the New York State Republican Party. He has invested $250,000 in the party's campaign and has given speeches in support of Republican candidates.

"I am deeply concerned about the future of the Republican Party," Reagan said. "I believe that we must move forward if we are to have a strong and effective party in the future."

Netmen keep on rolling; defeat Vermont, 6-3

By Keith Meyer

The Albany State men's soccer team continued their winning streak by defeating Vermont, 6-3 on Saturday afternoon. The Danes, who are now 7-0 in the ECAC, capitalized on Vermont's mistakes to build up a comfortable lead. "We were able to put away four goals in the first half," said Coach Serbalik. "We played well and capitalized on their mistakes." Vermont, who were coming off a 2-1 win over New Hampshire, had no answer for the Danes' offensive attack. "We were able to get the ball into the box and create chances," said Serbalik. "Our attack was clicking today and we were able to put away some goals." The Danes were led by David Johnson, who scored two goals, including a penalty kick in the 30th minute. "He's our top scorer and he's been playing well," said Serbalik. "He's been a key player for us this season." The Danes also received goals from Kurt Stansel and Tom Cavazza, who scored in the 16th and 56th minutes respectively. "Our midfielders were able to get the ball into the box and create chances," said Serbalik. "Our attack was clicking today and we were able to put away some goals." The Danes will continue their winning streak when they face RPI in the ECAC quarterfinals on Wednesday. "We're looking forward to the next game," said Serbalik. "We want to continue our winning streak and see how far we can go."
Danes seek .500 mark in clash with Dragons

By Mark Larsen

Dane quarterback Mike Milano and his left-handed counterpart, Bob Rand, face a challenge in this week's game against Cortland. Milano's throwing had improved in recent games, but his performance in the army game was less than satisfactory. Rand, on the other hand, is expected to deliver a much better performance.

The game against Cortland, which is the first game of the season, is significant for two reasons. First, it is an opportunity for the Danes to prove their worth against a conference rival. Second, it is a chance for the team to establish a winning tradition.

The Danes are looking for their first victory of the season, while Cortland is aiming for their second. The game is expected to be close, with both teams having the capability to win.

Danes in overtime edges Siena, 1-0

By Sam Hahn

The Danes were unable to break the deadlock against the Saints in the early stages of the game. But in the overtime period, Presbie scored a goal, securing the victory for the Danes.

The goal, scored by Presbie, was a result of a well-executed play by the Danes. They were able to use their speed and agility to outmaneuver the Saints' defense, eventually creating an opportunity for Presbie to score.

The win against Siena was significant for the Danes, as it marked the beginning of their season. The team is looking forward to the rest of the season and hopes to continue their winning streak.

Women 'take back the night' in march through Albany

By Bethany B. Balle

The march 'take back the night' was a significant event for the local community. It was a way for women to show their power and assert their rights.

The march was organized in response to the growing issue of violence against women. It was a call for change and for a society that is safe and welcoming for all.

The march was a success, with thousands of women participating. It was a powerful statement and a reminder of the need for continued action in the fight for women's rights.

Women can be heard by professional men when crossing the road.
