Albany Beats Union At Their Own Game 63-60

by Paul Login

The Danes and the soccer don't go well together. But on Wednesday night, they would probably be encouraged to continue with the same style of play. Union's Lehigh Valley League wishes to have the Danes go to Westfield State Wednesday night. They made up their game and were fighting for their survival.

The Danes won their season opener Wednesday night, but they may have been playing for their lives. They gained their eighth victory of the season and moved to 12-8-4 in the league. In the middle, Alan Strong did not take anything away on the right.

Albany's Steve Cronin followed down a free throw line, got an offensive rebound and put Howard on the lot. Verdejo was a key player in the Danes' success.

The Danes' leading scorer against Union is a senior co-captain who shot seven for ten with two free throws and a layup off an offensive rebound. Bianca Sues Mick For Divorce

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Actress Bianca Jagger will file for divorce today after years of legal wrangling that has kept her estranged husband, actor Mick Jagger, from selling the property they bought together. Jagger, who has been represented by law firm Katten & Wolf in the divorce proceedings, filed for dissolution of marriage at the Los Angeles Superior Court last week. The couple, who married in 1971, have been separated for several years. Jagger, who was married to former Rolling Stones frontman Jagger from 1971 to 1977, has three children from a previous relationship. The couple's property settlement has been a source of tension between the two. Jagger has been known to speak out against Jagger's business interests, saying he is not interested in the music industry. Jagger, who is known for his charitable work and support of various causes, has been involved in several legal battles with his estranged husband. The couple's divorce is expected to be a long and drawn-out process, with Jagger seeking a share of the couple's assets and Jagger seeking spousal support. The couple's legal battle has been marked by allegations of domestic violence and abuse, which both have denied. The first show, "Closer," developed movement directly from the original inspiration of the"Closure" story. The form themes, characters, and spaces were delineated, performed in a way where the narrative was still visible. The dance form was not as rigid as the original inspiration, allowing for some room to move. Throughout the piece, the characters kept the story closer to the idea of coming together, staying connected, and moving forward, using emotional lines, family portrait-like poses, and some disjointed, disjointed movement, creating a sense of tension and unity. The program was completed with an encores: "Cheek to Cheek," a wailing horn dance step, and "Miss Honey," a comical look at life as seen through soap operas. The first half of the program concluded with "Aspects," a piece by the Raymond Johnson Dance Company, providing a pleasant evening of entertainment, with some unexpected twists.

Procrastinating:
If The Homework Brings You Down, Then Throw It On The Fire And Take The Car Down Town!

by F. J. Gladnick

When many college students open their psychology books, they often find themselves overwhelmed by the amount of material to cover. One of the most challenging aspects of college is the ability to manage time effectively. Many students struggle with procrastination, a behavior that can significantly impact their academic performance.

Procrastination is a common problem among college students. It occurs when a person delays or postpones a task or activity. This behavior is often accompanied by a feeling of anxiety or stress. Procrastination can take many forms, such as putting off studying for exams, avoiding homework assignments, or procrastinating on important projects.

The consequences of procrastination can be severe. It can lead to lower grades, increased stress, and even failure in some cases. Procrastination can also affect a person's confidence and self-esteem, as they may constantly feel behind or unproductive.

To overcome procrastination, students can try various strategies. One effective approach is to break down tasks into smaller, manageable parts. This can help prevent feeling overwhelmed and make the task seem more achievable.

Another strategy is to create a schedule or to-do list. This can help students prioritize tasks and ensure that they complete them in a timely manner. Setting specific deadlines and rewards for completing tasks can also be helpful.

In conclusion, procrastination is a common problem among college students. It can have serious consequences, but with the right strategies, it can be overcome. By managing time effectively and setting clear goals, students can achieve academic success and reduce stress.

Sock it to SASU

In the Editor

Our story on SASU (Albany Student Publications and Their Policy) last week may have created a bit of a stir, but it was necessary to raise the issue. The problem with SASU is that it often seems to ignore the needs and opinions of its members.

SASU has been one of the most active groups on campus, but its members have felt left out of the decision-making process. They have complained about the lack of communication and transparency within the organization. The most recent issue is the debate over the memorial service for a student who died earlier this year.

It is important for SASU to listen to its members and work with them to address their concerns. They should be involved in the decision-making process and have a say in the direction of the organization. The organization should also consider ways to improve communication and transparency to build trust with its members.

Get Involved!

In the Editor

Many students on campus are interested in getting involved in campus life. Whether it is through joining a club or organization, or volunteering for a cause, there are many opportunities to get involved.

One way to get involved is to volunteer for the Student Association (SA). The SA is responsible for the management of student unions and organizations on campus. They work closely with the administration to ensure that the needs of students are met.

Another way to get involved is to join a club or organization. There are many clubs and organizations on campus, ranging from academic to social groups. Joining a club can be a great way to meet new people and get involved in campus life.

Students should also consider volunteering for campus events. This is a great way to get involved and contribute to the community.

Good Move On Mealcards

University Police was a good one. Obviously, the arguments against guns far outweighed those by University Police. The limited arming plan which the Senate passed and which SASU plans to challenge is another case in point.

We still have to deal with the question of non-service weapons. How can University Police be allowed to have a gun in their possession on campus? It is a dangerous situation for students, faculty, and staff.

Students and faculty should be allowed to have a gun on campus if they want to. The right to bear arms is a constitutional right, and it should not be taken away.

Shooting Down Guns

Student groups and the University Senate have been working hard to address the issue of gun control on campus. They have been working to pass legislation that would make it easier for students to carry guns on campus.

However, the arguments against guns far outweighed those by University Police. The limited arming plan which the Senate passed and which SASU plans to challenge is another case in point.

We still have to deal with the question of non-service weapons. How can University Police be allowed to have a gun in their possession on campus? It is a dangerous situation for students, faculty, and staff.
