Union nips Albany in overtime to win tourney

By Marc Hilgen

The Albany State Great Dane basketball team held off a valiant comeback in overtime to win the Capital District Tip Off Tournament. In the title game, Albany defeated the Union Dutchmen 15-11, 15-10, 11-15, 15-13, 15-12.

The Danes were led by forward Wilson Thomas, who scored 22 points and grabbed 17 rebounds. Guard John Mcllwain also contributed 14 points and 10 assists.

The Danes looked strong in the first set, building a big lead early and holding it to win 15-11. However, Union came back in the second set, taking a 10-6 lead. But Albany regained control, winning 15-10. In the third set, Union took a 1-0 lead, but Albany fought back to tie it at 1-1. The fourth set was evenly matched, with both teams scoring 13 points. But in overtime, Albany pulled away, winning 15-13 to claim the title.

The Danes ended the season with a 15-11 record, while Union finished 15-10.

Noble urges blacks toward unity and identity

By Mark Hammond

New York City manager GE Noble spoke at a meeting of the Black Student Council at the University of Albany on Thursday, November 18. He discussed the importance of unity among blacks and the need to work together towards common goals.

Noble, known for his work in the civil rights movement, encouraged students to come together and overcome the divisions that often split the black community.

He emphasized the need for education and personal development to prepare young people for leadership roles. Noble challenged students to take an active role in shaping their own futures and contributing to the greater good.

His message resonated with the audience, who were inspired by his words and examples of the fight for civil rights. The event was well-attended, with many attendees expressing their gratitude for Noble's words.

Noble urged students to stay committed to the cause of social justice and to continue fighting for equality and freedom. He reminded them that the struggle for civil rights is ongoing and requires consistent effort and dedication.

His message was clear: unity and solidarity are the keys to overcoming the challenges facing the black community. Noble's words served as a call to action, inspiring students to work together towards a better future.

State requires road work

New York, N.Y.

The state's roads are in terrible shape, Governor Mario Cuomo said on Thursday. He indicated that the state will have to spend $1.5 billion in the next five years to repair and maintain the state's roads and bridges.

"The roads are in terrible shape," Cuomo said. "We have a responsibility to the people of New York to provide safe and efficient transportation."

The governor said that the state will have to find the funds to repair the roads and bridges before the state can move forward on other issues.

The situation is dire, he said, with many roads in poor condition and many bridges at risk of collapse.

Tonight marks last legal drink for 18 year olds

SUNY Grants

When the clock strikes midnight on Friday night, New York will join 49 other states in the union in raising the legal drinking age to 18. The SUNY Auxiliary Services has announced that students will not be served alcohol at any of its facilities on Friday night.

More rigorous enforcement of the law comes after the Regents' recent decision to deny grants to SUNY institutions that violate the new law. The Regents have also threatened to reduce the number of Regents scholarships awarded to students at SUNY institutions.

SUNY students have expressed varying opinions about the new law. Some believe it will lead to a decrease in the overall number of parties on campus, while others are concerned about the potential for increased drinking and related problems.

Student Association Budget Committee

Assist in writing the Student Association Executive Budget. Over $800,000 to be allocated to over 80 different groups on campus.

Applications will be accepted at the Student Association office.

Campus Center 116.
Students who are completing their undergraduate degree requirements in December, their families, and friends are invited to the December Graduates’ Assembly to be held on Sunday December 12 at 2pm in the Campus Center Ballroom. A reception will follow.

Orchestrating a race war

The story is not a recent one in South Africa, where tension between the races has been a constant feature of the landscape. The violence and discrimination that have characterized the region for decades persist, and efforts to address these issues continue to be bogged down by political and social divides.

Japheth M. Zwane

The story of race in South Africa is one of conflict and struggle, where efforts to reconcile differences have often been met with resistance and resistance. The struggle for equality and justice remains a constant feature of the region, and efforts to address these issues continue to be bogged down by political and social divides.

The cornerstone of the apartheid policy is that basically, Africans do not have human, civil or political rights...
Letter To A Father

To a father of many minds there is no deeper proclamation in abstract fortresses of enemies than in simple children with animated hearts. The quiet emotions are filled in thy soul above all.

To be driven or care without mercy, this she must do for you, as if mad; her head thrown back in danger, offering her neck for your freedom.

The quiet emotions are filled in the fire of your soul above all.

You choke back the inward knowledge, your mouth bleeding in cold defense.

Whose sighs will free you from that which you choose to dismiss in solitude, in passion, in your grief.

"Blasphemy against the son of man will be forgiven in this world or the world to come," and yet your daughter will wait in the room at the top of the stairs no wind will shift the paper atop her desk in the damp dungeons the state of beaten flesh of men.

On her mouth also, in the high pitched sound of her laugh, the sun glaring in her eyes, she makes the crowd come, dreams grinding the days, the foul evidence in darkened caves.

Yes, memory is a difficult trait, in her outstretched hands you desire to forget, to envelop, to deny.

The taste of bruised flesh of men on her mouth also, in the damp dungeons, in her outstretched hands you desire to forget, to envelop, to deny.

"One can ban water, but not thirst!" A classic from Mr. H.K.D., Edel and B.O.B. are back again, Condon's appraisal of the draft, and the legendary Carroll comes to Basil's defense.

Word On A Wing

Ultimately you can listen to only one thing, not your president, not your misguided leaders, save a few, not the Communists or the Socialists or the Republicans or the Democrats, but you must listen to your own heart, and do what it dictates. Because your heart is the only thing which can tell you what is right and what is wrong. And after you have found out what you think is right and what is wrong, then you must know that you can say yes to what is right and no to what is wrong... because it is not the leaders and the dictators, it is not God who is going to get us out of the bloody mess we are in. It is only you and only me.

Why don't the military use the 23-year plan like the one the American government in the 1940s established to build nuclear weapons. The 23-year plan is responsible for 40% of the active Air Force equipment as well as the development of half of the other members of its forces at any time. If we focus on the morale of its active personnel, the impact could be catastrophic. The 23-year plan, in its current form and as a concept, is a weapon of mass destruction. It must be stopped.

Alex Condon

It's not enough to believe something is true simply because others believe it. We must critically examine the evidence and consider alternative perspectives. The world is complex and our understanding of it is evolving. It is important to question and challenge our assumptions, to seek knowledge and truth, and to engage in open and respectful dialogue with others. The pursuit of knowledge is a lifelong journey, and we must remain curious and open-minded as we navigate the challenges and opportunities of the modern world.

I WANT YOU TO THINK
BEFORE YOU REGISTER
FOR THE DRAFT

1970

I was about nine years old. Two evenings prior to an entrance exam into the third grade, I ran into the backyard of our farmhouse to find my parents arguing. My father had just come home from a meeting with a group of people who were holding a demonstration against the local draft board. He was angry and upset, and my mother was trying to calm him down. I overheard their conversation, and it was the first time I realized that people could have different opinions about important issues.

1971

My parents both went out of town that week, and I had to handle myself. I immersed myself in reading, playing, and engaging in activities to keep myself entertained. I found solace in the pages of my favorite books, exploring different worlds and perspectives that I would not have encountered otherwise.

1974

The anti-war movement in our school gained momentum, and I became more involved in it. I attended rallies, participated in protests, and met other students who were also fighting against the war. I started to feel a sense of community and solidarity with others who were seeking change.

1979

I was a high school senior, and the time for registration was approaching. I didn't want to be drafted, and I was determined to find a way to resist it. I met with other students who were also resistors, and together we formulated a plan to avoid registering.

1980

I was a budding activist, and I was deeply invested in the anti-war movement. I attended protests, rallies, and meetings, and I was always ready to lend a hand or offer support to others who were also fighting for change. I was grateful for the sense of purpose and belonging that I found within this community.

1981

I was a college student, and I continued to be involved in the anti-war movement. I attended protests, rallies, and meetings, and I was always ready to lend a hand or offer support to others who were also fighting for change. I was grateful for the sense of purpose and belonging that I found within this community.
Joni Mitchell's Moderation

Joni comes full circle in an album reflecting fifteen years

"Nothing has been so long ago (or so long ago, nothing has been so long ago) as the song from which Joni Mitchell's "Both Sides Now" was taken. The album from which it was taken, "Jug Band Blues," was released in 1970. And that's a long time ago."

Joni has grown up and she's so straight.

Gone are the heart-wrenching, love-lamenting, lyrics, in its place are the acceptances of love, attachments, and corny, heart-warming responsibilities.

In the sixteen years she has been a recording artist and started making more music, Joni Mitchell has become a more sophisticated, more mature person. This is not to say she has grown up. In fact, she has grown up."

The album opens with an absolute classic, "Woodstock," a song that has been covered by everyone from Jimi Hendrix to Elvis Presley."

Regardless of my personal opinion, I'm still a music lover."

Kissing To Be Cultured

Lene Lovich and Culture Club find no affection

"Love me, love me, I think it's time to begin being my real self."

You think this all sounds very confusing because it is."

Calvino's Curse

"You know that I could never-read a book in a normal way, that I would have to read it in a way that would put me in the same position as the character."
Her Nerves Are Shot

The Lord and the record companies both keep on making more and more of the same old stuff. For example, Chess releases the latest in a series of blues albums. It's called 'The Best of Howlin' Wolf'. Well, it may be the best of Howlin' Wolf, but it's still the same old stuff. The music is good, but it's just too much of the same old thing. It's like listening to the same old song over and over again.

While we're on the subject of record companies, I have a question for all of you music lovers out there. Why do record companies keep putting out albums that are just like the last one? Don't they ever try to do something new and different?

Robert Schneider

Before their famous movie, there were many people who had never even heard of Charlie Sheen. But then 'Twins' came out, and suddenly everyone knew who he was. And then 'Major League' came out, and now everyone knows who he is. But do you know why he's so popular? It's because he's just like all of us. He's got his own unique style and way of doing things, and that's what makes him so special.

Confronting apathy

I [Editor]

Sometimes on your own you're a big confrontation but in Albany it seems like all people are part of a group. Everything you can imagine from the House of Representatives to the City Council. Everyone says they're part of something or another but the things they do have little impact. I'm going to be a bit critical of my own school, SUNYA, because I think it's possible to make a difference. I don't think our school is doing enough to confront apathy.

There are many reasons why apathy exists: the students might not feel part of anything, they might not feel that they can make a difference, or they might not feel that it's worth the effort. But I believe that there are some things we can do to combat apathy.

First, we need to recognize the problem. Many students feel that they are not being heard or that their opinions don't matter. We need to create a culture where students feel welcome and included. This can be done through inclusive events and activities, such as student clubs and organizations.

Second, we need to provide opportunities for students to get involved. This could be through volunteering, internships, or other forms of community engagement. It's important that students see the value of getting involved and that their contributions are meaningful.

Third, we need to encourage students to speak out. This can be done through open forums, debates, or other forms of public discourse. It's important that students have a platform to express their thoughts and ideas.

I hope that these suggestions can help us combat apathy on our campus. We need to work together to create a community where everyone feels like they can make a difference.

There's no denying that there are many challenges facing SUNYA, but I believe that we have the potential to make a difference. We just need to be willing to work together and take action.

NUCLEAR STUDY

CASCADIAN RESEARCH CENTER

Tired of nuclear weapons, geologists are coming to Cascadia for a new study with a purpose. A group of scientists from around the world have arrived in the region to undertake a series of experiments aimed at understanding the potential effects of a major earthquake on the Cascadia Subduction Zone.

The project is expected to last several years and involve multiple phases of data collection and analysis. Scientists will use a combination of geophysical techniques, including seismic monitoring and geodetic surveys, to track changes in the earth's crust over time.

The Cascadia Subduction Zone is a region along the Pacific coast of North America where the Juan de Fuca Plate is subducting beneath the North American Plate. Earthquakes along this zone can have devastating effects on coastal communities and are one of the most significant natural hazards in the Pacific Northwest.

Scientists hope that the results of this research will help improve our understanding of the Cascadia Subduction Zone and enhance our ability to prepare for and respond to major earthquakes.

Women cagers down Skidmore College 66-53

By Mike Drury

The Albany State women's basketball team turned back the Skidmore College women in a 66-53 victory Wednesday by scoring 18 unanswered points before halftime. It was the first win of the season for the Danes.

"It was a good win for us," said Head Coach Dick Warner. "We had played a few games before Thanksgiving and it was important to get back on track."

The Danes came into the game with a 1-2 record and were looking to improve their conference standing. They had lost a close game to Plattsburgh in their last outing and were eager for a chance to avenge that loss.

Warner had set up a game plan to limit the Skidmore offense, but the Danes were able to force turnovers and get easy baskets on the fastbreak.

"We knew they were a good team and we wanted to be aggressive on defense," Warner said. "We didn't want to give them easy shots and we were able to force some turnovers which led to transition baskets."

The Danes scored 15 points in the first quarter and had a 29-11 lead at the half. They were able to maintain their lead throughout the game and put the game out of reach early in the second half.

"We were able to get the lead we needed and keep it throughout the game," Warner said. "Our defense was key in limiting their scoring and we were able to capitalize with our offense."

The Danes were led in scoring by Point Guard Karen Stabile with 17 points. She also had 10 rebounds and four assists.

"I'm very happy with our team," Warner said. "We have some young players who are improving every game and I think we can continue to improve as the season goes on."

The win was a morale booster for the Danes and they will look to build on this momentum as they prepare for their next game. They will host Union College on Saturday and are hoping to continue their winning ways.

"We look forward to the next game," Warner said. "We have a lot of confidence after this win and we want to keep that going. We are excited to see what we can do as a team."
