This year's cross-country team deserves a special note of praise for the outstanding performances which it has turned in this fall.

Before the season began, it looked as if the runners might be lacking in depth as both Mike Attwell, last year's top varsity runner, and Don Moyer, the leading freshman, were no longer at Albany. Attwell is spending the year in France, and Moyer transferred to Cortland.

In the first meet of the season, the team did not look particularly impressive as they lost to Coast Guard. However, with their victory over Plattsburgh, the team developed a consistency which has enabled them to work into a well-disciplined team.

Under the direction of Coach Moyer, the runners have been shown capable of forming a formidable opposition with a lot of depth. In their subsequent meets, the determination of the runners has been the most noticeable change. Whether it be in practice or in actual competition, the runners have demonstrated their ability to work together as a team.

The second annual Albany Invitational further exemplified the runners' finest competition. Although they were overpowered by Stony Brook, where their team was a dear, the runners were able to maintain their score of 75-101. The team has also managed to come out of the meets with a number of valuable experiences.

The keyWas the ability of Coach Moyer to mount an efficient cross-country team is proven by his ability to select and train his runners. He has been particularly successful in his work with the freshmen.

Both rolling and Moyer have proven themselves very capable as they have performed remarkably well in addition to their consistent effort.

The men's cross-country team, many members by the way, has had the ability to continuously place runners in the top ten. They have always been consistent in improving their performances. Moreover, and most notably, they have maintained their ability to work together as a team.

However, their lack of depth, especially among the younger runners, has been their greatest weakness. They have been unable to maintain their high level of performance in the later meets. This has resulted in a decline in their placements.

The frosh had the same trouble. Their performances have been inconsistent, and they have been unable to consistently perform at their best. This has resulted in a decline in their placements, especially among the younger runners.

The men's Frosh team, however, showed signs of improvement this year. They have performed consistently, and their performances have been more consistent than in previous years. This has resulted in a higher placement for the team.

The second annual Albany Invitational was run this past Saturday, October 12, at Greenbush Mill. There will be a meeting of the members of the University's students on the Saturday of the meet.
