VARSITY WILL PLAY COOPER UNION HERE

Kuczynski, Hurt in Tuesday's Game, Probably Will Not Play Tomorrow

The men's varsity basketball outfit will play its second contest of the second semester tomorrow night, meeting the Cooper Union basketball team in the home court. Although successful in its first intercollegiate game last week, the Vargis New Year with University for Tuesday night will be a test of its mettle. The Purple and Gold will suffer because of that game as Kuczynski, who broke his leg in the Norwich game, will be unable to play tomorrow. Atterbury will probably fill his position with the first team. It is probable that the second team will start the game and the first string men will be given a rest in preparation for the New York trip which opens Wednesday with a game against St. Stephens on the Astoria court.

Cooper Union opened in the capital district two weeks ago losing to Bingham Polytechnic Institute in the first game by a 34-19 score. Whiston, former Union guard, who is the leading scorer on the New York team, scored 17 points and Klein starred with 4 points getting a double double.
