Student Committee Studies Searches

To Adopt Recommendations

by Elizabeth Jones

During summer, certifications, and reading them up to be encouraging a "proven" atmosphere among SUNYA students. The Housing Office's newly revised policy of setting scores and even environment has been adopted, according to Student University Senator David Hess, "the biggest reform on campus."

The controversy, induced by Director of Residential Charles Filling, began last summer and has continued throughout this term. Several months ago, the Student Affairs Council Residential Committee reviewed the actions of the housing staff. The committee, headed by student Nick Rosenthal, asked that Campus Housing consider a "manifesto" of constitutional searches. The test was refused on "solid grounds that I know of," according to Hess, except that a constitutional right "can't be violated" into the present housing policy.

The student committee is now pursuing the Residential Committee's conclusions on the outcome of the searches, and it does not appear that the policy will change soon.

According to Hess, the student committee should have used stronger language and they should have asked directly for a memorandum, not merely that one should be considered.

The student committee's thesis that the federal government should be told with new search policies and that not only should there be an immediate investigation or more investigations, but that an immediate issue should be addressed: the laws that were changed.

Committee Barry Davis believes that the constitutional amendments should be taken with the new search policies and that not only should there be an immediate investigation or more investigations, but that an immediate issue should be addressed: the laws that were changed.

Central Council last night in a roll call vote 12-0 in favor of a bill amending the Undergraduate Student Association By-laws to include a total of ten students on the undergraduate student association, thereby increasing their representation.

Three analysts would be the President and the Vice President of Student Associations, the President and Chancellor of Central Council, and an analyst elected from Central Council and appointed from the undergraduate student body by Central Council with one representative from each school and one undergraduate PMA undergraduate reps are permanently appointed by the SA president and approved by Central Council.

Section II of this bill "states" that if FSA does not take action on the bill, Central Council will be expected to take action on the bill. FSA is not required by law to take action on this bill, the central FSA community opposes the bill. Student President Michael Lamport spoke against the bill, he called FSA "a total failure of a student." Lamport has the power to veto this bill, which can be overridden by a two-thirds vote of the Council.

PyE Presents Nader, Events During Earth Week

State

By David Lerner

The President's Commission on Marijuana and Drug abuse, a government panel created to consider the use of marijuana and drug abuse, has released its final report. The report, titled "Marijuana and Drug Abuse: A National Concern," presents the findings of the commission and recommendations for action.

The commission, comprised of 10 members, was established in 1973 to study the issues related to marijuana and drug abuse. Its mandate was to conduct a comprehensive study of the problem and to make recommendations to Congress and the public.

The report notes that marijuana continues to be a major concern in the United States, with an estimated 12 million users in 1973. It also points out that the use of marijuana is more widespread than previously thought.

The commission recommends that marijuana be decriminalized and regulated like alcohol. It also suggests that education programs be increased to inform the public about the dangers of drug abuse.

PyE: Projects on Display

Other projects on display during Earth Week include the use of solar energy for heating and cooling buildings. For example, the SUNYA student government will display their solar-powered heating and cooling system, which they have been using for the past year. The system consists of solar panels that capture the sun's energy and convert it into electricity.

The project is designed to demonstrate the potential for using renewable energy sources to meet the needs of buildings. The SUNYA system is expected to reduce the university's carbon footprint by 20 percent.

In addition to the display, PyE will host a panel discussion on the benefits of solar energy and the challenges of implementing such systems. The panel will feature experts from the SUNYA engineering and science departments.

PyE's Earth Week activities are part of a larger effort to raise awareness about environmental issues on campus. The student group has been working to increase recycling and waste reduction efforts on campus, and they are also planning to organize a cleaner-up day in the surrounding community.

By hitting the campus, PyE hopes to inspire others to take action and to encourage the broader community to become more involved in sustainability efforts. Through these projects and events, PyE aims to demonstrate the feasibility and benefits of using renewable energy sources as a viable alternative to traditional fossil fuels.
Myer Case: Credentials, Teaching Ability the Question

By Glenn von Novitz
News Analyst

Dr. Yasur P. Myer has some excellent credentials. As an Assistant Professor of Chemistry he has been a fixed professor for the past few years. He has written many highly respected articles for scientific journals. He has received numerous fellowships from important people in his field, and has been in at least one seminar conference. But in my view, he is not ready to be presented for tenure in the position of Full Professor. He is not ready to have my vote for tenure beyond his current position of Associate Professor.

Myer already has tenure, which is a relatively quiet case. While his academic credentials are very impressive, there are some unimportant cases. Any case that has been a relatively quiet case, is not another tenure case. There are the low student ratings he received back in the Spring of 1970. His students felt the committee had not done justice to his teaching methods. Some students who make the most of the student body, accomplish nothing. It may very well have been that the committee had not done justice to his teaching methods. Perhaps that is the reason it was not another tenure case.

May I suggest that some people are new to the field. They are not as familiar with the rules and regulations as the others. This suggests that some people are new to the field. They are not as familiar with the rules and regulations as the others. This case is not another tenure case.

The most recent student ratings have been a little above average. Some students have even gone through the motions of their academic credentials. Oscar Goes To Wounded Knee
by David Sernett

Two years ago a man announced in the press that he was going to accept the Oscar for Best Actor. The selection committee had argued and debated over the merits of various candidates. The man had been nominated for a significant role in a film that had received critical acclaim. Some members of the selection committee argued that the man was a shoo-in for the award, while others believed that he should have been nominated for a different role. The controversy raged on, with the selection committee unable to reach a unanimous decision. In the end, the man accepted the award, but the controversy continued for years to come.

The Three Cuckolds

by E.G. Sparrow

Last night at the Performing Arts Center, the university presented a production called "Three Cuckolds". It was directed by A. Keith Torgan, who is a well-known figure in Italian theater. "Three Cuckolds" is a play that was directed by E.G. Sprance and is a favorite of many theater-goers.

Everybody gets a piece of the show, Leandro (Daniel Gerrity, the hunchback) was seeing the hunched beauty and voluptuous Cintia, Sagon) was seeing the hunched beauty and voluptuous Cintia, and no one seemed to notice Arlecchino, probably the main character. However, the focus of the play was on the relationships between the characters, which was well-expressed in the way they interacted on stage. The play was presented in Italian with English subtitles, which was helpful for those who were not familiar with the language.

Three Cuckolds was something else....!!!!

Bergman's Trilogy Tonight

This is the first step towards the goal of bringing the masterpieces of the world stage to the campus. A series of films will be shown throughout the month of April, Tuesday through Friday evenings at 7:30 and 9:45 in the Campus Center. Tickets are available at the box office of the Campus Center for 25 cents each. The series is sponsored by the Department of Germanic Language and Literature.

The films are: "Winter Light," "The Passion of Anna," and "Silent Voyage." All films will be shown in their original Swedish version. They will be shown in the order in which they were released and photographed by Ingmar Bergman, widely considered the greatest living film director. The films are selected to provide a broad overview of Bergman's work, covering the span of some 20 years. The trilogy has been selected because it is a complete and still accessible representation of Bergman's work and because it provides a comprehensive overview of his oeuvre. Oakland’s Tough Again in A.L. West

By Nelson Shelton

The Oakland As are one of the top teams in the American League. They are currently in first place in the West, and are likely to remain so for the rest of the season. The team has a strong pitching staff, led by Vida Blue and Catfish Hunter, and a powerful hitting lineup led by Reggie Jackson. The As are well-coached by Eddie Stanky, who has guided the team to success in recent years. The team’s success is due to a combination of good personnel decisions, strong team chemistry, and a supportive fan base. The As are likely to continue their strong performance throughout the season.
