Danes crush Plattsburgh in SUNYAC opener

By Dick Nason

The Albany State University basketball team was victorious in the SUNYAC opener on Wednesday by beating Plattsburgh College, 93-66. The Danes improved their overall record to 2-1 with the win. The Danes had not played a game without their junior center, Andrew Pivnick, who missed last week's game with a lower back injury. Pivnick returned to action Wednesday and scored 15 points off the bench.

The Danes took the lead in the first half and never looked back, outscoring the Cardinals 53-30 in the opening half. The Danes outrebounded Plattsburgh 28-17 in the game and held Plattsburgh to just 25% shooting from the field.

Senior forward Mike Gallo scored 14 points in the victory over Plattsburgh.

College women face classroom discrimination, study reveals

By Ken Mauer

Albany's women students experience a "chilly climate" in college classrooms, according to a recent study. "I'm not sure if a teacher is being mean to me or if they are just being hard on me," said one female student.

The study, which was conducted by the Department of Psychology at SUNY Albany, found that women students face discrimination in the classroom. The study's findings are consistent with previous research that has shown women to experience discrimination in various settings.

The study's authors recommend that more women be included in the research on gender discrimination. They also suggest that future research should focus on the experiences of women of color.

Tight budget forces SUNY to limit allocation of state funds

By Michael D. Denny

With New York State's financial situation in crisis, the State University of New York (SUNY) is considering reducing its allocation of state funds.

"We must cut back on our spending," said SUNY Chancellor Robert L. Johnson. "We cannot continue to allocate funds beyond what we can afford." The Chancellor noted that SUNY's budget is facing a significant reduction due to the state's financial crisis.

The move is expected to affect all SUNY campuses, with reductions in a variety of areas including academic programs, research, and infrastructure.

SUNY is considering a number of options to address the financial difficulties, including cost-cutting measures and increased efficiencies.

Council reps debate roll-call ballots after illegal voting

By Holden O'Neal

The Capital Region Council for Action (CRC) debated the use of roll-call ballots after a recent incident raised concerns about the validity of the votes.

Council member Mike Corso said that roll-call ballots are necessary to ensure accurate voting. "Voting by roll-call is the only way to ensure that every vote counted," he said.

However, other council members expressed concern about the time and resources required for roll-call ballots. "I don't think it's practical," said Council member Dan Robb. "It's too time-consuming and bureaucratic."
Economic growth hampered

A group of prominent economists predicted that the two percent annual growth rate would mean job layoffs and the government to withhold the wages from student loan recipients, the government to increase the taxes on the wealthy, and the government to increase the amount of money that must be borrowed by students to bridge the gap between the cost of education and the amount of money that they can earn.

Graduate study in public history and preservation in SUNY. According to Dr. Robert Binney, the public history program has the only available degree program in public history in the Northeast, and it has received recent approval from SUNY. It is administered by the Department of History.

The program, which should be initiated by the fall 1982 semester, is designed to teach students about the profession of public history, including its theory, methods, and practice.

The program's founders, including Professor Robert Binney, have designed the program to be flexible and adaptable to the needs of students with diverse backgrounds.

The program provides both theoretical and practical training, with students completing thesis or capstone projects. The program also offers opportunities for internships and fieldwork.

The program is unique in the Northeast, and it is the only program of its kind in the state.

Wallenberg's fate remains a mystery

Boguslaw Twardon, the Polish foreign minister, in his opening address on Monday, March 10, in Brussels, said that the Polish government had received a report from the Polish embassy in Washington, D.C., that Raoul Wallenberg had been found alive in Russia on December 9. The report was based on an anonymous phone call from a woman in Russia who claimed to have seen Wallenberg in a hospital in Moscow.

Twardon said the Polish government had made no official statement but had informed the Organization for European Integration (OEI) and the United Nations. The OEI had asked for confirmation from the Soviet government, which had not yet responded.

Twardon added that the Polish government was still investigating the report and would not make any public statement until further evidence was obtained.

The report was widely regarded as a breakthrough in the long-standing mystery of Wallenberg's fate, who disappeared in 1945 during the Soviet occupation of Hungary. He is believed to have been a Soviet prisoner for many years, and his death was officially declared in 1957.

Wallenberg's fate remains a mystery

Wallenberg was born in Sweden in 1906 and was a member of the Swedish parliament. He was deeply involved in the rescue of Hungarian Jews during World War II and was later arrested by the Soviet authorities. He was reported to have been found alive in Moscow in 1957, but his fate remains a mystery.

Wallenberg is widely regarded as a hero and a symbol of courage and sacrifice. His story has inspired countless books, films, and documentaries.

Wallenberg's fate remains a mystery

The mystery of Raoul Wallenberg's fate has captured the attention of the world for over 70 years. The Swedish diplomat, who saved thousands of Jews from the Holocaust, disappeared in 1945 and was declared dead in 1957.

In recent years, however, there have been reports of sightings of Wallenberg alive, including a call to the Swedish embassy in Moscow in 2011. The Swedish government has not confirmed these reports, but they continue to investigate.

The story of Wallenberg's life and legacy continues to inspire people around the world, and his story serves as a reminder of the importance of standing up for human rights and justice.

On a sunny day, a woman stands in a park. She is looking at a small child playing on the grass. The woman has a smile on her face and seems to be enjoying the day. The child is happy and carefree, running around and playing with a ball.

Once upon a time, in a small town by the sea, there was a young woman who dreamed of becoming an actress. She spent her days practicing her lines in front of a mirror, while her family thought she was putting on costumes for a school play. One day, she received a call from a casting agency, asking her to come in for an audition. It was for a role in a movie that would make her dreams come true.

Rehumanizing America

The concept of human rights is often misunderstood and misapplied. It is important to remember that human rights are universal and should be respected by all nations and individuals. The United Nations has established a framework for the protection of human rights, and it is up to each nation to ensure that its citizens are protected.

As a student and a member of the Central Council, I feel compelled to address some of the concerns raised in our recent editorial. The Central Council is a body that represents the interests of students, and it is important to ensure that its actions are fair and just.

The Central Council is responsible for making decisions that affect the lives of Columbia University students. It is important to ensure that these decisions are made in the best interest of the students and that they are made transparently.

In regard to the recent decision to have a roll-call vote during the executive meeting of the Central Council, I believe that it was necessary to ensure that the vote was fair and just. The Central Council is composed of students, and it is important to ensure that their voices are heard in the decision-making process.

The Danes will face the stiffest test of the season, as they travel to Boston University for the Terriers' season opener. The Terriers are looking to avenge last season's loss to the Danes, who beat them in the East Coast Invitational. After a 2-0 start to the season, the Danes' record was tarnished by a 21-13 loss to the Terriers. The game was played in Providence, Rhode Island, and featured a packed house.

Joe DeMeo said about the Danes, "We were a much better team tonight, with a 21-13 victory. Mike played a great game for us, and we were able to score eight consecutive points during that stretch." He also credited the Danes' defense for holding CSR scoreless for the final 4:06 of the game. O'Malley had 21 points to lead the Albany attack. "Everyone was very happy and pleased with the performance of the team," said DeMeo. "We were patient on the offense and we got good shooting and good rebounding."
Albany captures Ithaca Tournament

By Marc Haggel

Albany, N.Y.

The last time the Albany State Credit Union held a tournament away from University Gym was nearly two years ago in the SUNYAC. One week from now an Albany opponent nearly did the same thing.

That opponent, the senior forward from Union College, was a star named Mike Gatto who provided the high point in Friday's winning second place finish in the Capital District Tournament. The Danes lost by 12 points, but Albany had won the tournament.

Mike Gatto

Gatto had 14 points in Albany's first-round win over the Mid-Hudson College, which Albany also won 86-53. Indicative of Gatto's scoring ability, he netted eight points in the first eight minutes of the game.

The last four games have seen the return of Dickelman, a senior named Mike Gatto who provided the heroics. For the Albany State basketball team.
