Freedom In Sight!

Credit is due the Administrative Committee for taking the necessary steps to make freedom in sight possible for all. (see editor's note.)

The action taken by a number of the college's societies in adopting the policy of free speech should be emulated by others of the college units, and by other colleges in the country. The freedom movement must be made to take root in the college units, and it is the responsibility of each to see that it is made to take root in the college administration.

The students of the college have the right to freedom of speech. The students of the college have the right to freedom of thought. The students of the college have the right to freedom of action. The students of the college have the right to freedom of opportunity. The students of the college have the right to freedom of choice. More Weaknesses

In the last line of the news we have been reading about the third strike against the college administration. The third strike was made by the college students, who have been asked to observe three days of silence in protest against the college administration. Students To Organize New Photography Club

A new student photography club will be organized this spring at the State College, it was announced recently by Richard S. Hauser, Instructor in Biology. The club will hold its first meeting Thursday, December 15, in the office building on College campus. No one, new or old, is required to join the club; all are welcome to attend and discuss photography with the members. The club will have regular meetings to discuss photography, and plans to give talks on various topics such as the history of photography, techniques, and the latest trends in the field. The club will also have a show of their own photographs, with the hope of gaining recognition and increasing interest in the field of photography. Anyone interested in joining the club is encouraged to attend the first meeting and learn more about the club's activities and goals.
