National Shakespeare Company Performing at Saratoga Spa

When the National Shakespeare Company arrived in May for its two-week festival at the Saratoga Spa Theatre, it was coming on a tour of some 200 performances that were to cost more than a quarter of a million dollars.

This was the first time such a professional Shakespeare company had been to Saratoga, but the audience was familiar with the troupe, which has been performing Shakespeare plays throughout the East and Midwest.

More than 10,000 people attended the opening night of "Hamlet," the first of three productions scheduled for the Saratoga engagement. The company will also perform "Romeo and Juliet," "The Taming of the Shrew," and "The Merry Wives of Windsor.

The company's 10 performers are from the University of Pennsylvania, the University of Minnesota, the University of Illinois, and the State University of New York at Buffalo.

The festival has been organized by the National Shakespeare Company, which was founded in 1962.

The National Shakespeare Company has been touring the United States coast to coast since 1962, playing to over a quarter of a million people. The company's three-week festival in Saratoga will be the last in a series of tours that have taken it from the New York metropolitan area to the Los Angeles area, with first-time engagements in Las Vegas, St. Louis, and Austin, in addition to New York City.

The company's performance schedule is as follows:

April 19: "Hamlet"
April 20: "Romeo and Juliet"
April 21: "The Taming of the Shrew"
April 22: "The Merry Wives of Windsor"
April 23: "Macbeth"
April 24: "Othello"
April 25: "The Tempest"
April 26: "Twelfth Night"
April 27: "As You Like It"
April 28: "A Midsummer Night's Dream"

"It shows that the Soviet Union has been too weak to resist the grain embargo. Farmer, turned to the other side of the issue, said the grain embargo would not hurt the Soviet Union, but it would hurt the United States.

"We are not going to fight the Soviet Union, but we are going to make sure that the Soviet Union is not going to fight us."

The Soviets received a mixed reaction to the statement, with some African American leaders expressing support and others criticizing it.

The International Film Group presented a screening of "The Sound of Trumpets," a feature film about the civil rights movement. The film was directed by James Baldwin and starred Ruby Dee and Ossie Davis.

"This film is an important addition to the Civil Rights movement," said Farmer. "It shows the tragic implications of segregation and how it affects people of color."

The film was followed by a discussion with the audience, moderated by Farmer. The discussion was open to the public and was well-attended.

The theme of the film is the way that modern society treats African Americans, as an unseen observer of the daily struggle for equality.

The film was well-received by the audience, with many expressing gratitude for the opportunity to see such an important work.

THE TOWER In Donnelly's set represents the ascent to heaven.

The play written by Archibald MacLeish was motivated by the atmosphere of immanence, incorporated into the original, and is remarkable.

The set design is the work of Donnelly, who is noted for his sets that combine poetic imagery with theatrical effectiveness.

The play was first produced at Yale in 1957 and has since been performed in various productions worldwide, including at the State University Theatre.

Florence Kaem is soon as Sarah, J.B.'s wife.

Highlight Annual Revue

The three antiwar student demonstrations, which took place on the road to success, are captured by the camera in a rare moment of relaxation.

John Fotla, director of the State University Revue, is caught by the camera in a rare moment of relaxation.
Inconvenience Avoidable

The increasing inconvenience of tradition on campus, one tradition continues to remain registration and all the confusion that it entails. For the past few years, the registrar has made the system of registering more interesting for the student by trying out new methods each semester. The purpose of each system is to try to alleviate, some of the chaos of each registration period.

The procedure for this semester is unique in that it will promote more confusion by having two weeks of advance-ordered before cards can be picked. This means one 1700 students will be ready to get their class cards when May 2 rolls around.

The line that will form will probably top any in the University's history.

The student has been inconvenienced by the Administration several times this year because of the situation that exists. This is one time there is no necessity for such actions. We hope that Mrs. Cook, the Registrar, or the Administration will reconsider the problem and begin the procedure for picking class cards before May 2.

Prominence Unrealized

In recent months several stories have appeared in the Argus pertaining to new appointments to the University's faculty. Many of these appointments are professors who are nationally known as outstanding scholars in their field.

The acquisition of these men will greatly enhance the prestige and reputation of the University and its various schools. It is evidence of the tremendous growth that the University is undergoing and the belief that these new people will mean to the University by leaving their positions to join our faculty.

Their presence at the University will mean more courses of higher quality for the students.

However, as expressed by Dr. James Lovisa, Assistant to the President, at the press conference Monday, it is too bad that fewer students realize how distinguished these men are.

Price of Transition

During the last few years many students who have been living in the Colonial Quadrangle have complained about the lack of parking facilities. They have to either park in the parking field near the student center or risk a parking ticket by leaving their vehicles on the main road near their residence halls.

The Administration has indicated that nothing can be done about the parking situation since the area that could be used belongs to the contractors who would not allow the area to be used.

It is hoped that by next year with classes at the new campus, students will not use their cars as frequently. Also, a possible transportation system will be furnished to transportation students around the University.

However, right now the status quo will have to remain as the price of transition.

COMMUNICATIONS

Discussion Adequate

The lack of publicity on the official Student Senate is nothing new. It may be that other groups within the University have the same problem. But, there must be something different about them that makes the Student Senate receive poor publicity.

There is a student who has been to a few meetings of the Student Senate and is not sure how he should go about the situation. He asked for information on how to become an active member of the Student Senate.

Political Reform

It is imperative for the United States to make some political reforms. There are two sides to the story: the government and the people. The government must promote political reforms by countries which are able to the people's welfare. The problem is that various nation states exist in the United States.

The two sides of the story are different. People can do little unless they work through the present conditions, which can be seen in the United States. The problem is that various nation states exist in the United States.

A Review of Sports

By Ray McCann

This Sunday, America's first AIAA track meet of the year will be held on Vets Field. If this meet is as successful as last year's, we may see Vets Field the scene of the first SUNYA track event. The meet will be witnessed by a large crowd of enthusiastic spectators and qualified athletes from the participating teams.

Last year's two meets, which revived a tradition that had been forgotten for a number of years, showed the tremendous interest and attention that could be expected for a SUNYA track event. With only a week and a half's notice, the meet was well attended by many fans of sports and interested members of the SUNYA community, who were looking forward to a fun-filled afternoon of athletics.

The meets were held on Vets Field, and the SUNYA track team was well-represented by many members from the college. The meets were considered a success, and the SUNYA track team has been working hard to prepare for this year's meet.
