Frosh Frolics . . .

The froshmen class in the past two weeks has proved itself in two instances to possess a degree of initiative and independence which the upperclassmen have tried to capture since "way back when."

Last Friday morning at "Ki Fraternity," the froshmen popped in on another initiation and, in typical froshmen fashion, started a vandalizing spree. The upperclassmen, in retaliation, placed a watch on the froshmen whenever they vistied the hall again. This watch is sure to continue as long as the froshmen show up in "Ki" at all. The upperclassmen are reported to have been caught putting something on a froshman's bed while "the watch was out."

Snow News Is . . .

State College was closed for the first time in 27 years last Monday due to the elements, and reliable sources report that there will be no similar recurrence for at least another 25 years.

Dick realized it was time for a favorable snowfall, and, what's more, Dick also realized it was time for him to get a little more sleep. He'd been up all night trying to decide whether he should go to class or not.

What, Me Go? . . .

Tomorrow a new tradition will be launched at State—that of inaugurating the new froshmen class. Actually, no froshmen disturbance has ever occurred in the history of State College. The seniors, who are responsible for the student body, are expected to show up at the new froshmen "light up the dance floor" and "break the ice." The seniors' attempt to throw the froshmen class off balance is expected to be a welcome change from academic ennui. To prevent such a possibility, the seniors and froshmen will celebrate "resurrection" for another day. We commend them for a job well done.

Now what are we doing for Black Rock?

Here's a film that will delight your taste and entertain your hunger. It is a film that is not only entertaining, but also educational. The film is called "The Art of Black Rock," and it is produced by the State College Film Department.

Kapital Kapers

On the campus of State College, a group of students has been forming over the past few weeks. This group, known as the "Kapital Kapers," has been organizing events and activities to bring attention to the importance of capital in our society.

Strands

There are two ways to spend a winter on campus: you can spend it in your room watching TV or you can spend it outside playing in the snow. Many students choose the latter, finding it more enjoyable and exciting. Whether you prefer hot chocolate or snowball fights, there's something for everyone on campus during winter.
