Diver Klotz nails All-American honors at NCAAs

Sophomore is first Dive swim team member to achieve such status

By Dean Chang

Kasia Klotz became the first All-American diver at Albany State University this year. When she was announced as an All-American, it was only fitting that her name was called because Klotz has been an outstanding diver for the past three years.

Klotz was one of three divers to make it to the All-American team. She is the first diver to make it to the All-American team in the history of the Dive program.

Bailey and Armstrong: Two all-arounders

By John F. Prentler

Although the matches have been over for the past month, the thoughts of the past season are still fresh in the minds of Bailey and Armstrong.

As the season comes to a close, Bailey and Armstrong are looking back on the year with pride and satisfaction.

Bailey and Armstrong were both named All-Region Selections for the second time in their careers. Bailey was also named All-Region Selection of the Year.

Humanities Lounge reopen after group sit-in

Students with Dean Wallace; agree to clean up regularly

By Jane Anspach

The Humanities Lounge was reopened after a group of students staged a sit-in to protest the poor condition of the lounge.

The lounge had been closed for a year due to renovations. The students were unhappy with the way the lounge was being used and decided to take action.

The students were able to reopen the lounge after they cleaned it up and agreed to maintain it in the future.

SA Supreme Court lifts ban on campaign posters

The Student Association (SA) Supreme Court lifted the ban on campaign posters on SA property.

The SA Supreme Court ruled that the ban on campaign posters was unconstitutional and that the SA should allow campaign posters on its property.

The SA Supreme Court's decision was based on the First Amendment right to free speech and the fact that the ban on campaign posters was discriminatory.

The SA Supreme Court's decision was praised by the students who had been protesting the ban on campaign posters.
students debate democratic issues for '84

by Alicia Cimmino

While some still possess the political inclinations of a baby to negotiate, others take the political system very seriously. And this election year, over 200 students showed up to the student debate with the purpose of getting informed about the issues and the candidates. It was a very educational experience for the students who attended.

Oil takeovers studied

Washington, D.C. (AP) The House of Representatives voted today to allow the President to initiate international trade negotiations and enter into agreements with other countries to outlaw hostile oil takeovers.

The vote took place on the floor of the House, where 218 members voted in favor of the bill, 191 against, and seven abstained.

The measure, known as the "Oil Export Control Act," would give the President the authority to negotiate with foreign governments for the purpose of preventing hostile takeovers of U.S. oil companies.

The bill would authorize the President to negotiate agreements with other countries that would prohibit or regulate the acquisition of U.S. oil companies by foreign interests.

The legislation is part of a broader effort by the administration to address the growing concern over the vulnerability of the U.S. oil industry to hostile takeovers.

The bill has been opposed by some congressional Republicans, who argue that it would give the President too much power over U.S. foreign policy.

But supporters of the bill, including the administration, argue that it is necessary to protect the U.S. oil companies from foreign takeovers that could have adverse economic consequences.

The vote was 218-191, with 7 abstentions. The Senate is expected to consider the bill in the coming weeks.
Consider staying in Albany for Summer Sessions '84. We're offering some of the most sought after courses at the University - some you may even have been closed out of during the regular school year. And summer in the Capital District is something special — see the New York City ballet and John Houseman's Acting Company, spend a day at the Saratoga races, catch a concert or camp out at the Kooc Jazz Festival, or stay home and catch some rays around the fountain. Summer's a great time at the University. Too. All facilities, from computer rooms to tennis courts, are less crowded and class sizes are also smaller, more personal.

Take advantage of this chance to move ahead in your studies — maybe even graduate early and save some living expenses. Summer Sessions '84 makes sense in a lot of ways.

There were three names: Daniel Brubeck, a scholar and an artist. Of course, I had heard of his view that education should be more than just a transmission of knowledge, but the first time I met him was in 1972, during a visit to his home in Berkeley. He was filled with the same enthusiasm and energy that he brought to his music. He was also a very kind and generous person, who always had time to listen and talk. His music has always been a source of inspiration to me.

The subject matter of Testament is nuclear destruction. In the movie, the characters talk about the effects of nuclear war, and the way it affects the population. The story is set in a post-nuclear world, where people are trying to rebuild their lives. The movie is a poignant reminder of the destructive power of nuclear weapons, and the need for peace.

Confessions Of A Confused Undergraduate

The school I went to was a very competitive one, and I had to work very hard to keep up with the rest of the students. There were a lot of pressure to get good grades and to be successful. I remember one time when I didn't do well on a test, and I was really upset about it. But my parents always told me that I should never give up, and that I should keep trying. They were right, and I eventually did well in college.

A tiny midnight now, and I'm sitting in a windowless room. It's dark and quiet, and the only sound is the sound of my own breathing. I'm thinking about the things I've done, and the things I want to do. I'm trying to figure out what I want to be when I grow up. I'm not sure yet, but I know I want to be happy and successful.

Activism Reborn

For the first time in a collegial generation — four years ago — a student activist administration has taken office at UCI. The Student Action Committee and the Student Action Commission were elected in November of 1976 and have been working to implement programs ever since. This past year has been an outstanding one for us in that we have been able to make real changes and to achieve meaningful goals.

We are pleased to announce that the Student Action Committee has been elected again this year. The new committee will be working on the Fair Housing Act, the New Student Union, and the Student Action Commission will be working on the Black Student Union. We are also pleased to announce that the Student Action Commission has been awarded a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to support its work on the Black Student Union.

We would like to thank all of our supporters for their continued support. We look forward to working with you in the future.

Bowling Green wins first hockey championship

(AP) The National Collegiate Athletic Association announced this week that Bowling Green had captured its first national title in hockey. According to the Central Collegiate Hockey Association, Bowling Green had earned a total of 27 points in the CCHA competition, including a 3-2 victory over Minnesota-Duluth in the NCAA championship game. The Falcons rallied twice from a 2-0 deficit to win the title with a 4-3 victory over the Bulldogs.

Bowling Green's victory was significant because it marked the first time in the school's history that a team from Bowling Green had advanced to the NCAA championship game. The Falcons had previously appeared in the regional tournament, but had lost in the first round both times.

Coach Jerry York was euphoric about the win. "It was just what the doctor ordered," he said. "I think we're going to be winners from now on." Michigan State, before they ordered," said Bowling Green's athletic director, "is going to be winners from now on." The Falcons afterward were on a mad dash to their hotel, where they celebrated with champagne and pizza.

Group shows interest in Indians

(AAP) New York lawyer David Lefevre will say he's interested in buying the Houston Astros of the American League. Lefevre, along with a group of investors, will complete the sale of his 10 percent share in the Astros next week. He has declined to identify his partners, but only the 1984 game had multiple bidders, 16-10 credit. "I think it's a good deal," said Mr. Lefevre. "I think it's a good deal for the city and the state." The Indians are not interested in selling their team, however.

Banquet honors athletes

By Keith Marder

As a reward on Monday night to honor Albany State's tennis team's championship, the team was presented with a memorial trophy by the assembly. The trophy is engraved with the winning team's name. The Indians' 1983-84 team won the Division III title in its first championship.

The other teams that were represented at the banquet were the men's and women's volleyball teams, the women's basketball teams, the swimming team, and the women's tennis team. The best athletes were presented with a resolution by order of the assembly that recognized them for being the finest Indian athletes in the nation. The assembly also thanked them for their dedication and hard work.

The banquet was a success, with more than 500 people in attendance, including many of the team's family and friends. The program included introductions of each team, awards for individual achievements, and speeches from the assembly members.

Dinner wear heo Evans was presented a resolution by order of the assembly that recognized him for being the Division II National Champion in the weight class.

Coach Lewis is back and ready to serve again

By Marc Berman

The Albany Mayor's Sports Wall of Fame now has a new member. Coach Bob Lewis. This year's inductee, representing SUNY Albany, was enshrined on Monday night with the others for his contributions towards the university and community.

Coach Lewis is still coaching people, but he's not coaching undergraduates anymore. Instead, he's coaching high schoolers. He's taking over for Fred Gaber, who's taking a job with the sharphshooter program in the city of Albany.

The announcement was made during the opening ceremonies at the SUNY Albany Basketball Center, where the 1978 SUNYAC coach of the year and now state's winningest football coach was honored.

Coach Lewis has been with the team for four years, and in that time, the team has never lost a game.

The team's success can be attributed to Coach Lewis' leadership and his ability to motivate his players. The coach is known for his tough love approach, but his players love him for it.

Coach Lewis is a man of few words, but his actions speak louder than his words. He's been with the team for four years, and in that time, the team has never lost a game.
