How It Could Have Been SUNYA of the Future
by Diana Cyanovich

1974 would have been a very good year. Originally it was supposed to be a year in which the New York State University at Stony Brook would have included in the plan. This proposal was made with the thought in mind of a large expanding graduate student population.

The SA settlement of the student population caused many to question the plan. Walter Tisdale of Campus Planning explains the situation as possibly a "temporary permanent. The campus could have been accommodating a large number of other grand constructions. This area would have included, amongst other things, enough room for the humanities and social sciences departments to expand and breathe more freely. An expansion of the library and various bookstores and outdoor facilities would also have been included. This enlargement of the library would have been more apt to attract center of attention. Two or three lecture rooms were proposed, although the entire idea is not being pursued.

Across the podium on the east end another extension was planned. An expansion of the space needed for student affairs would have been possible: highly specialized laboratories for three fields and a workshop in one of the bare bones of the physical sciences department .

This year, however, Central Council's relationship with the Executive has been of a somewhat different nature. Under the Chairmanship of Mike Lampert (above, right) the Executive branch has taken a strongly independent position.

Lampert tried to close the fissure by not vetoing the budget. However, it is one of the strongest and most independent Central Councils yet. Last year Central Council's relationship with the Student Association were closely entwined and able to agree on several important questions.

Paint Job to Impress Community

by Claude Weinberg

John Bucko, Director of the Physical Plant, has announced that 100% of the students have been approved for the Dutch Quad work. This is a testament to the community's support and dedication. The work will begin next week.

Lampert's Truce Ineffective

by Ellis Bostrom

The move made in 1 at Central Council leading Ed Lampert last week, to keep the conflict between the Dutch Quad and the administration largely unresolved, has been met with criticism. Many feel that the truce is not strong enough to prevent further incidents.

Record Turnout for Activities Day

by Eugene Brannock

Approximately 60 groups participated in the activities day, held during a Saturday at the Interfraternity Council Smoker. This is the largest turnout in recent years.

Episcopalian Community

For those who missed Saturday's festivities, it was a great success, and we now have our own semi-annual International Eucharist which will be celebrated on campus next month. We also welcome new members to our community and look forward to a bright future together.

Episcopalians are invited to gather at 12 noon in the Campus Center, Room 370, to discuss the formation of a witnessing Episcopal community on Campus.

Starting Sunday, October 1, the Celebration of the Holy Eucharist will take place each Sunday at 10:15 am in the Chapel House.

Environmenral Bond Issue on Nov. Ballot

Vote to Clear the Water

Year, air, water, and land are at risk this November 7. The environmental bond issue, $1.15 billion in funds for environmental projects, is on the ballot.

The bond issue is important and needs your vote. The Pure Waters bond issue of 1965 is drying up dry. Money is needed for projects that will improve the quality of our air, water and land. If the bond issue passes, the bond issue would provide $1.15 billion in funds for environmental projects. This would include

- $650 million towards new sewage treatment facilities
- $150 million for fighting air pollution from schools
- $175 million to help communities begin recycling their waste

The bond issue is needed to improve our environment. It is important for our health and the health of future generations.

The bond issue is also needed to improve our economy. It will create jobs and stimulate economic growth.

Please vote yes on the environmental bond issue on November 7.

The presidential campaign has so seriously compromised that-if they demand, say, our prisoners are returned fore end must be strategically possible. But recent events have cast doubt on the feasibility of such a move. The U.S. has been asking for an agreed schedule of troop withdrawals in Vietnam for months, but the Vietnamese have refused to negotiate. The Vietnamese government has consistently stated that it will not withdraw its troops from the country unless the U.S. agrees to a comprehensive peace settlement. This has made it impossible for the U.S. to establish a clear link between the return of prisoners and troop withdrawals.

The U.S. has been using the issue of prisoners as leverage in the negotiations, but this strategy has not been effective. The Vietnamese have shown little interest in the U.S. demands and have continued to insist on a comprehensive peace settlement. This has made it impossible for the U.S. to force the Vietnamese to agree to a troop withdrawal.

The U.S. has also been faced with increasing domestic pressure to negotiate a settlement. The anti-war movement has been growing in strength and has put pressure on the U.S. government to end the war. This has made it difficult for the U.S. to continue to insist on a comprehensive peace settlement.

The U.S. has been forced to consider the possibility of a partial troop withdrawal. This would allow the U.S. to withdraw some of its troops while maintaining a military presence in Vietnam. However, this would require a great deal of political capital, and it is unlikely that the U.S. would be able to secure the necessary support to implement such a plan.

The U.S. has also been faced with increasing economic pressure to end the war. The war is costing the U.S. billions of dollars, and this has been a major factor in the anti-war movement's efforts to force the U.S. to negotiate a settlement.

"O Wow, man, you mean you reviewers get all of those records for free?"

"Yeah, Dya wanna be a reviewer? Here, take a pile, gimme a listen, write something up, and come back next week.

ONE WEEK LATER:

"Hey, man, that pile of junk was only the worst, most terrible shit I've ever heard.

What kind of a joke was that?

The joke, of course, is that it's not a joke at all.

Music might save your mortal soul, as Don McLean claimed (though I doubt it) or get to you that you have to work through the recording industry, most of which is run by people either by Kenny Parking Lot (now renamed Warner Leisure Services, so that the tail wouldn't appear too long) or the Gulf & Western Oil Conglomerate, might expect, the usual corporate philosophy (to which there are a few happy exceptions but not nearly enough) of such conglomerates has a great deal to do with funding, there being more "production"--alleged more of which turns out to be "the worst, most terrible shit." To much of a reviewer's ear winds up being playing through the skin looking for the pearl of two to recommend, so that there aren't a few, but that there's a lot of the other stuff

The SUMMER'S WORST:

There are a lot of LPs out on record when you're only doing your own job and "playing in the sand"-- either by Jorma Kaukonen (now with Jefferson Airplane) singer/guitarist/violinist and well-deserved star Jorma's style; in fact, he sounds more than a hit like Hendrix. He bit off more than he could chew by writing, singing, and playing all the guitar lines on his first album, the over-all effect is quite nice. Another instantly objectionable fellow is King, who's been physically by a disgusted audience at the Wollman Skating Rink this summer.

On Saturday afternoon, the Albany Soccer team opened its season at unbeatable Ohio State. The Danes were the first to make the trip to Columbus, Ohio, for a game of the national soccer season. But the Danes were not able to contain the pressure as they went down to defeat by a score of 5-0.

The Danes were led by Reda, who scored four goals in the first half. Reda showed his skill and determination in front of the goal, scoring two goals on the right side of the field. His third goal was a penalty shot that he converted into a goal. The Danes continued to battle despite the score, and they were able to put pressure on the Ohio State defense.

The Danes were able to capitalise on their opportunities and scored two goals in the second half. The first goal was scored by Henry Obwald, who was partially off the ball. The second goal was scored by Ivan Alvarez, who deflected a shot from the Ohio State defender.

Although Albany lost the game, they demonstrated their skill and determination in front of the goal. They were able to put pressure on the Ohio State defense and create opportunities to score. The Danes will now look to regroup and prepare for their next game against the University of Buffalo on Saturday.

The combined efforts of the SUNYA Peace Project and the "peacefully" phone and letter campaign has brought about a small but palpable decrease in support for the war in Vietnam among students attending SUNYA. As the war continues to drag on, the student body is growing increasingly restless about the war and beginning to seek ways to end it. Students have been writing letters to the paper, expressing their concerns about the war and asking if they knew about how the film was promised to be driving ruin.

"Learn from the mistakes of the past?"

"As people left the theater, the light drizzle had become a steady downpour. Nevertheless, the emotions of the students remained high by another still drizzle. On the other side were two "dead" Vietnamese and a sign which read "Uncle Sam beats his drum to rune of Viet Cong kazoos.
