WHAT TO DO ABOUT IT?

The State College News on February 22, 1934, presented a prop-osal for the adoption of a new ring design. This proposal was made after a thorough investigation of the rings worn by previous classes. A ring committee, consisting of the four class treasurers, a representative of the Student Association, and a representative of the Editorial Board representing the Student Association, was formed to investigate the rings of previous classes. They found that the rings were quite varied in design and did not reflect the tradition of the college.

The proposed change in tradition would be to adopt a standard design for the class ring. This design would be simple and elegant, and would reflect the tradition of the college. The proposal was made in the hope that it would be adopted by the class of 1934, and would be a symbol of their tradition and unity.

The proposal was presented to the Undergraduate Assembly, and was approved by a vote of 44-4. The junior ring was standard-ized, and the ring requirements became a tradition at that point.

Books

The Shadow of the Thin Dark Pool, by H. G. Wells. This novel, published in 1901, is a science fiction classic. It tells the story of a man named John Morewood, who discovers a way to create a perfect woman. However, his experiments go awry, and he finds himself in a dangerous situation. The novel is a critique of society and the pressures of conformism.

What to Do About It, by Arnold Bennett. This novel, published in 1930, is a social commentary on the values of the upper class. It tells the story of a young man named Cyril Allingham, who is trying to make a name for himself in the business world. The novel is a critique of the values of the upper class and the pressures of conformism.

The Book of the Damned, by H. G. Wells. This novel, published in 1920, is a science fiction classic. It tells the story of a group of scientists who discover a way to create a perfect society. However, their experiments go awry, and they find themselves in a dangerous situation. The novel is a critique of society and the pressures of conformism.

The Red Peril, by H. G. Wells. This novel, published in 1918, is a science fiction classic. It tells the story of a group of scientists who discover a way to create a perfect society. However, their experiments go awry, and they find themselves in a dangerous situation. The novel is a critique of society and the pressures of conformism.

The book opens in the kitchen of the small cottage where the man and his family live. The man is a writer, and he spends his days writing stories. His wife is a housewife, and she spends her days cooking and cleaning. Their children are young, and they spend their days playing in the fields.

The novel is a critique of society and the pressures of conformism. It tells the story of a man who is trying to make a name for himself in the business world. The novel is a critique of the values of the upper class and the pressures of conformism.

CORRECT CAMPUS WEAR—This week we present three patterns, two ensembles and an "all-day" school dress, that are outstanding in their simplicity and attractiveness. At the left is a complete ensemble that can be purchased in 12 to 20-year-old sizes, with 35 to 38 bust. The smart dress illustrated in the center comes in sizes 14 to 20 years, with 34 to 44 bust, while the combination shown on the right may be had in small, medium and large sizes for the 12 to 18-year-olds, with 24 to 36 bust.
Steady Smokers turn to Camels

Anton LeKang, a man of over 40 titles and trophies, smokes Camel steadily—without a sign of jangled nerves. He says:

"The most important elements in and quality of a steady smoker are correct timing and healthy nerves. In fact, they add up to the same thing because you cannot have correct timing without healthy nerves. I have been jumping in championship ski runs for years. And I have continued jumping because I never get tired of Camels. They are the only cigarettes that I don't get tired of. A day's last Camel tastes just as good as the first, and Camel never interferes with healthy nerves."

Countless thousands are changing to Camels. And they are urging others to join them! Camels are milder. They have a rich, satisfying flavor. And they leave your nerves smooth and unruffled.
Most Rev. P. A. McGovern
Creighton University '91

A member of Creighton's first graduating class, the Rev. Mr. McGovern was named to the See of Cheyenne, Wyoming, in 1912. He has served for 20 years. Known throughout the nation as a champion of education, he has done outstanding missionary work in a diocese comprising 101,340 square miles. He was elevated to the hierarchy in 1912 by Pope Pius X.

James E. Scrugham
University of Kentucky '00

Kentucky's outstanding alumnus occupied positions of high trust in the fields of education and government. He served as engineering dean of the University of Nevada, public service commissioner of New York State, Governor of Nevada, and editor of Nevada State Journal. He is at the present time Congressman from Nevada and a member of the House banking and currency committee.

Cube E. Parker
University of Tulsa '99

Now a trustee of his alma mater, Mr. Parker has done outstanding work in education among the Indians of the southwest. From superintendent of Armstrong Academy for Choctaw Indian Boys to superintendent of five Indian tribes under President Wilson, he has been a constant friend of Indian education. He was registrar of the U.S. Treasury from 1913 to 1915.

CAMELS—SMOKE AS MANY AS YOU WANT…THEY NEVER GET ON YOUR NERVES!

Jangled nerves make you throw away vital energy!

Jangled nerves are like a leak in your reserve of energy. And if you could count the units of energy a normally high-spirited person wastes each day—the result would astonish you.

So if you find yourself drumming on your desk or table—or indulging in any other nervous habits—start protecting your nerves.

Get enough sleep—fresh air. Make Camels your smoke. You can smoke as many Camels as you want. Their costlier tobaccos never jangle your nerves.

COSTLIER TOBACCOS
Camels are made from four, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS than any other popular brand of cigarettes!

How are YOUR nerves?
Each year Turkey and Greece ship us thousands of bales of fine tobaccos.

But why send 4,000 miles for tobacco?

...because spicy, aromatic Turkish is the best seasoning there is for a cigarette. It adds something to flavor and aroma that no other tobacco can give. Chesterfield uses Turkish tobacco—from Samsoun, Smyrna, Cavalla and Xanthi.

Then it blends and cross-blends them with various kinds of choice home-grown tobaccos in the right balance to give you a cigarette that's milder, a cigarette that tastes better.
