Internal problems hampering WSUA

By Terry Silverman

Political intrigue among a small number of WSUA leaders has led to the resignation of two executive board members who sought to block the position of President Ken Tipton. This action has brought the organization into the hands of the "conservative" faction operating within the WSUA community.

The case of the internal political issue which now arises is one of the most significant in current affairs. The resignation of the President, together with the resignation of the immediate past President, has created a power vacuum in the organization which is crucial to its future success.

However, the most significant lesson of this situation is that the WSUA leader's decision to block the position of President has resulted in the resignation of the immediate past President. This action has left the organization without a leader, and has led to the creation of a power vacuum which is crucial to its future success.

We were appalled to find that the Campus Center Snack Bar set up a policy which said, in effect, that if a sophomore employed there did not report for work on October 10--Moratorium Day--he would find his employment terminated. We believe that this is a gross injustice.

We understand that employers have a responsibility to tell their employees if they will be discharged on Moratorium Day; that there is threat of action by the snackbar was aimed at only those with no pass, and that their issue was discriminatory.

However, it is obvious that the snackbar hasn't acted on a wholly altruistic basis. We are told that the loss of employment on the basis of one day of absence is not standard procedure; it seems that political views may have colored this decision.

Whether or not it has succeeded in its avowed purpose, says only the extent to which it may delay the cause of war. We create our own unique individual wars among our friends, our families, our roommates--wars that are not fought with bombs and guns, but words and thought and ideas. We urge you not to react to the celebration of death by reading the dirty book, by burning the toilet paper, or by any violent action.

To the Editors:

We urge you to consider the implications of your decisions. To the extent to which it may delay the cause of war, we can no longer hide in the destitution of external forces. We can no longer hide in the safety of our ignorance of other people's lives. We urge you to think about it, for all our sakes, please think about it.

Heil Haley

To the editors of the Albany Student Press:

Little Haley and I have discussed the situation in order to propose a solution to the problem. As political students, we feel it is our obligation to take a stand and to voice our opinion.

We believe that the university should provide a mechanism for students to express their views and to offer a forum for debate. This could be done by establishing a student advisory panel or by creating a student newspaper. Both of these proposals would allow students to have a say in the decision-making process and to express their views on the issues.}
