Poverty Marks Life of S.U.N.Y.A.ʼs Foster Child

GRACIELA GARCIA CORN, a part of her household chores while her younger brother Guillermo helps her.

GRACIELA GARCIA CORN, S.E.N.Y.Aʼs “adopted” ten-year-old daughter, is shown here in a series of pictures displaying an “average” day in the life of the bright-eyed little girl from Bogota, Colombia.

“Garcia,” as her name has been Anglicized, lives in a small section of Bogota, and she, along with a sister and four brothers, dwells in a tiny, run-down home with her mother and father. Her father is a carpenter by trade, and makes the few pieces of furniture which can be seen in the pictures.

Garcia has been S.E.N.Y.Aʼs foster child since December, 1963, through the Foster Parents plan, serves free food, clothing, and medical care for herself and her family. Because of this, she has been able to attend school for the past year, and does quite well.

In spite of the help they receive, however, the family is still a long way from having a complete unawareness of the importance of student life. If there is dissatisfaction with these policies, or with the student representatives in the committees, the student is free to take the complaint.

It is true that “Sena” is not carrying out its obligations. But the fact remains that a government is only as good as the people it represents want it to be.

Lines Result From Poor Planning

Several days ago the line phenomena appeared in the Peristyles again. Perhaps, when the University is not able to handle the unexpected situations, the Peristyles are overtaxed full of hopeful waiting hours to obtain a ticket.

Pete Seeger next weekend, attends a production of the University Theatre, or reads this paper on Tuesdays and Fridays has a small section in a student government.

Student Teachers Relate Experiences

Of Their Harrowing Eight-Week Test

by Cynthia Goodman

One raucous day in his Senior year, a student teacher will stand awkwardly in front of a brick structure and wish fervently that it weren’t too late to change his course.

For some students, the time may never come when they will be able to make the steps to the right of their education. It is possible that we are driving them away from the profession, but that doesn’t mean that we don’t want them to become teachers.

The student calls Magnify Matter of Indiscipline

Matters of indiscipline and discrimination have never been more important than they are in today’s society. The teacher’s role today is to create an atmosphere in which all students can learn.

The administration is now more concerned about the quality of education than they ever have before. As a result, they are forcing teachers to work harder than ever before.

In order to get a job, a student teacher must first pass the state board examination. The examination tests the student teacher’s knowledge of the subject matter and their ability to communicate with students.

Student Teaching can be hard, but the best advice for this type of experience is the following:

1. Be honest with yourself.
2. Be open to criticism.
3. Be prepared to learn.

COMMUNICATIONS

Roser Clayton AEP Moderator Forum Speaker

To the Editor:

An article appearing in your paper on February 12, regarding the “First Annual” meeting of the Academic and Professional Students, Mr. Walter G. Moore, a junior at the University, wrote the following:

“Many students have asked me to write a letter to the editor, and so far I have not been able to find one that was acceptable.”

Mr. Moore raised some valid points about the lack of communication between the University and the students. He suggested that the students should form a forum to discuss their concerns with the administration.

I, too, have asked for a forum, and I believe that it is long overdue. It is important for the students to have a voice in the decision-making process of the University.

The administration has not been responsive to the students’ concerns, and it is time for the students to take matters into their own hands.

We, the students, must stand up for our rights and demand a voice in the decision-making process of the University.

Sincerely,

John Haluska

There are two types of tactics practiced by the leader, whether the opponent is a team or an individual. Each has a different goal, and each one must be used, and saved, where the opponents are heavier and the methods are different. Only men are allowed to participate in singles fencing.
