"Montezuma is the cross-country car,
The familiar road going, boring, so idle."

In a modest office hidden deep inside the Administration Building on the Albany State campus on a recent busy day, a staff of nine is activity working away the next day of the day problems arising between students, faculty, staff and the administration.

The organization's present name was not such a big name for the organization. The organization was known as the Student Activity Program for many years until its name was changed to the Student Activity Program Office in 1969. The organization is mainly centered around the social and cultural customs and traditions of the organization. The organization's programs. Today the organization is known as the Student Activity Program Office.

Bette Herzog, former Secretary to the Student Activity Program Office for the past seven years, now in the role of campus commissioner. The office is open from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Students who have questions about the organization can be used discretely without much effect.

Faculty members have been asked to be discreet in the use of the facilities for official and personal reasons. The president of the office can be used discretely without much effect.

Infirmary Service?

The Albany Student Press

After reading the Student Health Service's policy on comprehensive care in the Spring, I am extremely concerned that it will not be changed. The current policy of the Student Health Service only allows for medical care for students under the age of 18. This is a problem because it forces students to seek medical care outside of the office, which can be costly and time-consuming. The policy also limits the amount of care that can be provided to students who are over the age of 18, which is a problem because students need care for many reasons. I am calling for the Student Health Service to change its policy to allow for medical care for all students, regardless of age.

Republicanca Strikes Again

The New York State Senate for 1971-72 was passed by the State Legislature in one of the best examples of the ol Our tradition, the one-party system. Because the Republican party controls most houses of the legislature, they will have a strong majority, which will give them the ability to pass legislation. The Democrats will have a minority, which will give them the ability to oppose legislation. The Republicans will have the ability to pass legislation, which will give them the ability to control the State of New York. WHAT'S THE SOUTH MALL?

The South Mall is a new commercial area in Albany, New York. It is located on the site of the old State Capitol, which burned down in 1961. The mall is being built to replace the old State Capitol and to provide a new business area for the city. The mall is being built under the direction of the State Capitol Commission, which is a group of architects and engineers. The mall is expected to be completed in 1972, and it is expected to be a major feature of the city.

CORNING AND THE S. MALL
ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Albany Mayor Erastus Corning II denied rumors that there was a conflict of interest involved in his heading an insurance firm that sold policies to a contractor on the South Mall state-office building project here.

"There is no ethical or improper conflict of interest involved from my standpoint," said the mayor, acknowledging that he is a shareholder of Albany's National Commercial Bank.

It was scheduled to he com­plete in less than a year and a half when the full cost of financing is included.

As much as $1.5 billion when the Comptroller's Office, it may cost 20 years.

Originally planned at the cost of $1.25 billion, the project was now officially estimated at cost $1.5 billion.

A 40-seat movie theater will seat 40 seats, a full-size gymnasium will seat 40 seats, and a shareholder of Albany's National Commercial Bank of Albany, the State Bank reportedly re­financing of the South Mall appeared in the Wall Street Journal.

In the USSR, Jews are being sentenced to long prison terms for wanting to leave the Soviet Union and be Jews! Their families are left without any means of support. HELP SEND A PACKAGE OF FOOD, CLOTHING, MEDICINE to Rostov.
Once upon a time there was a movement. The movement was founded by people who wanted to change things about the world they saw. This generation of the movement was young, idealistic, and full of enthusiasm. It was a group of people who wanted to make the world a better place, to change its policies to suit everyone's needs. They wanted to make the country offer the same advantages for everyone.

They faced many obstacles. They had to deal with the coldness and poverty of society. They had to deal with the bureaucracies and the big banks in California. Someone else wanted to add some light to an already existing movement. They had to deal with the frustration of the movement. This apparently worked, but ultimately, it did not. The movement had been frustrated, but more important than this, it got an education.

Many of the movement's activists flocked to where the inequality was most acute. They faced many obstacles. They had to deal with the coldness and poverty of society. They had to deal with the bureaucracies and the big banks in California. Someone else wanted to add some light to an already existing movement. They had to deal with the frustration of the movement.

And when they sensed impending defeat, they went to Chicago to make their country offer the same advantages for everyone. They faced many obstacles. They had to deal with the coldness and poverty of society. They had to deal with the bureaucracies and the big banks in California. Someone else wanted to add some light to an already existing movement. They had to deal with the frustration of the movement.

Washington: From everything I read and hear—especially in being cross-questioned by campus observers—I have some conclusions about today's students.

1. Most students are definitely tiring away from extremist left or right. Only a small percentage are truly radical or conservative, though some support their causes.

2. In growing numbers young people believe they are and should work through the political process—rather than outside—to achieve their goals.

3. Those who remain active, though annoying sometimes, are largely concerned with being able to make the democratic process work for them and not just to the ends of their particular aims.

Driving force

On balance, I find a generally more mature mind on campus. But, in talking with young people, who is to say? I also discover that they really do not realize how much they have harvested political policy in the last few years.

Young people have seen that the driving force for a society is widely distributed in many groups today. They seem to be more aware of their own power and influence.

I think they have no need to despair about their ability to influence public policy.

Students have decisively won on the issue of Vietnam. Withdrawal is an achievement. I can think of nothing to match it in so short a period of time.

By any standard of political action, this is a remarkable sum of young people, which is quite frequent, I also discover that they really do not realize how much they have harvested political policy in the last few years.

This is not one of those—this President intends that anti-Vietnam shall be as continuous and as substantial that voters of the President will have to face.

The suggestion that most young people are not putting a high enough value on what they have already done that cannot be done in the future is that they have too much to do to cope in the present.

By any standard of political action, this is a remarkable sum of young people, which is quite frequent, I also discover that they really do not realize how much they have harvested political policy in the last few years.

Political power

This means to me as one who understands how democracy works. By any standard of political action, this is a remarkable sum of young people, which is quite frequent, I also discover that they really do not realize how much they have harvested political policy in the last few years.

I bet you're really pleased to be able to vote
