After a long hard night of work on the STATE COLLEGE NEWS, Mary Kratovil has made a second attempt to deliver her mail. The process has been complicated by the natural disaster of a snowstorm. Snow is piled on the sidewalks, melting through the cracks of the State College campus.

Rush Revision...

Recently rushing is all over, but the pledging God forbid that we should suspend the tradition. In order to make the most of this period, the rules and regulations of the rushing procedure must be understood.

This year's rushing was the worst I've ever seen. We witnessed in full the spirit of the rush. The object of that spirited activity was to shock the freshman into the reality of college. To succeed in doing so, the pledging committee, by the tension created, by their activities, and by the confusion generated, were able to make the freshman feel that he was in a position of control. The rush is an activity which is not only designed to promote the interests of the college, but also to promote the interests of the freshmen themselves.

For these and other obvious reasons, the rushing period is an important part of the freshmen's experience. For all of us who have been through it, the rush is a time of excitement and anticipation. It is a time when we look forward to the opportunity to meet new people and to experience new things. It is a time when we are reminded of the things that we have come to love about college.

The rush is a time when we can enjoy the company of our friends and when we can have a good time. It is a time when we can forget our worries and when we can just relax. It is a time when we can make new friends and when we can strengthen the bonds of our old friends.

The rush is a time when we can have fun and when we can enjoy ourselves. It is a time when we can make memories that will last a lifetime. It is a time when we can make mistakes and when we can learn from them. It is a time when we can be ourselves and when we can enjoy the company of others.

The rush is a time when we can experience the world of college and when we can learn about ourselves. It is a time when we can be challenged and when we can be inspired. It is a time when we can be stretched and when we can be strengthened.

The rush is a time when we can be a part of the community and when we can contribute to it. It is a time when we can make a difference and when we can be proud of ourselves.

The rush is a time when we can be a part of the tradition and when we can make it our own. It is a time when we can create our own Rush and when we can celebrate our own Rush.

The rush is a time when we can be a part of the college and when we can be a part of the community. It is a time when we can be a part of the college and when we can be a part of the community.
From This Vantage Point:
By JIM DOUGHERTY
20 Years Ago –
Same “Trash” As Today?
There was that story I mentioned today in my English class. The "trash" that some children called themselves. The "trash" that some adults called others. The "trash" that the world seemed to ignore. The "trash" that the universe seemed to hate. But to me, that "trash" was more than just dirt or refuse. That "trash" was a part of the fabric of society. That "trash" was a part of the human experience. That "trash" was a part of the world we live in. And that "trash" was something that needed to be talked about, something that needed to be understood, something that needed to be respected.

Ped Grapplers Meet Brooklyn Poly
In Season’s Opener; Lack Garcia
By RAY MILLER
Albany’s matmen will inaugurate their fourth year of varsity competition tomorrow with the arrival of the Polytechnic Institute team at 6:30. Coach Steve Saucier, who guided the Peds through last season, has announced that the team will pose problems for the visitors in the form of both a physical and mental challenge. The team, led by a healthy mixture of returning and new faces, will be a tough opponent for the Poly team, which has struggled in recent years. The game will be played at the Page Gym, and admission is free.

Union Bows To State 3-1;
Keglers Take Third Place
The Peds lost to State 3-1 last month and have continued to dominate the league. Coach Sauers has been pleased with the team’s performance and has high hopes for the upcoming season. The Keglers, however, have struggled to keep up with the competition and have fallen behind in the standings. The team needs to improve its consistency and focus if it hopes to compete at a higher level.

Peds Give Hartford 67-56
Do It Yourself Lesson
Let’s not wait for anyone else to do it, let’s do it our way.

Sauersmen and Polytechnic Institute will be a challenging opponent for the Peds. The team needs to get past this game and focus on the upcoming matches. The Keglers should take this opportunity to improve their skills and work towards a winning streak. The Sauersmen are looking forward to a competitive match and are ready to give their best.
