A Rev of Sports

by Roy Minsky

Last night our student-athletes opened their 1966-7 campaign with an away contest with Central Connecticut College. Although this was the first match-up available for publication, a couple of their previous contests were available. Here's a look at what we collected from the games:

Cagers Face Pratt In 'Home' Opener As Injuries Present Key Problem

Coach Richard "Doc" Sauer's Albany State baseball team swung into action last night at 8 p.m. at Schoellkopf Field and then departed to the south for the following weekend's series. The Colonials met Pratt in the first game of the doubleheader. The Colonials won both games, 7-3 and 7-1, to remain undefeated on the season.

CAGERS FACE PRATT IN 'HOME' OPENER AS INJURIES PRESENT KEY PROBLEM

by Roy Minsky

As the Colonials prepare for another home game against Pratt in the next week, the team faces several key injuries that may affect their performance. The Colonials are currently on a four-game winning streak, but injuries to key players have raised concerns about their ability to continue this streak.

COMMUNICATIONS

Thanks To ASP,

“TI'm extremely grateful for the Association Students’ financial aid program. Each year, I receive $200 to help defray the costs of my education. It is a great help, and I hope to be able to contribute to it in the future.” - Student

A Modest Proposal

The author of this amusing and thoughtful column is a student at the University of Albany. He suggests that the University should provide a free meal for all students, as a way of encouraging healthy eating and reducing the incidence of obesity. He argues that the cost of the meal could be covered by a small fee on each student's tuition bill, and that this would be a reasonable compromise between the need for nutrition and the desire for a better dining experience.

Building Better Bridge

Building Better Bridge is a column that explores the art and science of bridge, offering insights into the strategies and techniques of successful players. The column is written by experts in the field, and provides tips and advice for players of all levels, from beginners to advanced players.
