Wrong Interpretation

In reference to the editorial of last week concerning the Reed Commission report, it was stated that according to this report, the state colleges of education in the state universities were taken by the committee as "merely institutions." We have, however, since last week, secured a copy of the report itself, and find that it was thus prepared by a number of local and state newspapers which we obtained from the Reed Commission report.

It is important that we glance the section of the report relating to the Colleges of Education.

"Among the aspects of education that we can do something about, reaching is a central. The organization of teacher education for our schools is one of the critical areas for improvement and expansion. These fundamental and far-reaching reforms are to be the goals and interests that the curriculum of the state universities should aim at and the state education now is sufficient in this swiftly moving area."

"We believe that the state Colleges of Education be converted into liberal arts colleges, starting immediately. For when we are not to convert a College of Education into a liberal arts college, the institution should pursue a common course. The State should have the right to convert liberal arts colleges into state and local schools.

There is a statement in the above quote or paper of the Reed report which lacks any claim to be a "reaching institution." Why then have some newspapers that we have read only parts of the above quote and, consequently, advertise the facts? Unfortunately we cannot answer this.

We have, however, presented proof that the Reed report did not make any attempt to "undermine the institution of Christmas Commercialism"

Christmas Commercialism

We find a fine article in the Younkers daily that describes the spirit and the resulting tone of good feeling. We feel that a letter to the city board in relation to the sales of the Christmas spirit.

We find that we have many schools such as the Class, serving December last, and constant reminders of the approach of alternating Christmas sale, "the most enjoyable," at the minimum, very repulsive ideas. Christmas is no longer a normal holiday of the nation, a holiday that has its own charm and merits. It is the privilege of each individual to choose his own Christmas spirit. Many children have been deprived of the spirit of Christmas by the continuous commercialism.

COMMUNICATIONS

To the Editor

We have read with interest the recent attempt to "undermine the Christmas spirit," to "Stop the National Commercialism." The only result of this is that the spirit of Christmas is being copied to suit the business of Christmas Commercialism.

STUDENT TEACHING

A Student Teacher's Impression

By KATHRYN FERRARA

My student teaching experience was in an off-campus school. This I feel has many advantages. Getting away from the classroom and really being able to experience it in a certain degree, the life of a teacher is a major part of off-campus student teaching. I did not have this experience because I attended a university that offered a full four-year program in a classroom setting. But I feel that it is an experience that you will always remember.

The off-campus program was a part of the student teaching program. This program allowed me to experience teaching in different settings. It also gave me the opportunity to work with different age groups. I had the chance to teach in a variety of settings, including a nursery school, a junior high school, and a high school. I had the opportunity to teach in different subjects, including math, science, and social studies.

The off-campus program was a great experience. It allowed me to learn more about the teaching profession and how it can affect students. I had the chance to observe some of the brightest minds in education. I had the opportunity to meet some of the most dedicated and knowledgeable instructors. I learned how to be a better teacher and how to make a difference in the lives of my students.

Filters for flavor finest flavor by far!

Here's how the DUAL FILTER does it!

1. Contains a unique vapor filter of RENewed CHARCOAL, delivering pure, rich taste to the very tip of the cigarette.
2. In a separate filter, a powerful combination of RENewed CHARCOAL and RENewed KELP reduces certain substances. The result: A cleaner, lighter smoke with less tar and nicotine.
