To the Frosh

Once more it is the privilege of the News to dedicate an editorial to several licensed and name-tagged frosh to the benevolence of the State College. We welcome you to State and wish you luck as students and teachers.

There is no formula for success. Perhaps the only advice we can offer is another warning to add to your already numerous load; don't keep your books on top of one another. Research shows that there are the best prepared students to ever enter the college. This attitude gives you the added responsibility of being the envy of your fellow students, the faculty, and the administration.

Although the main facet of your college life should be academic, you will never be educated unless you also learn socially. Do not be embittered. Simple enthusiasm is a rare and valuable quality. With a little extra time and work, you can learn to budget your time and interests. For instance, now before the work load is too heavy, you can avoid the most important students interested in joining the group are asked to sign in up Monday in Room 103 for an interview. Keep in mind the need only one book at a time. If a book becomes damaged, the borrower will be billed for the cost of the book. You may keep books for one week unless the book is needed. This will help us keep the supply of books in the library. This library is yours as long as you are a member of the college. In your turn as a member of the college, you are expected to contribute to the library.

The library houses three floors of books and periodicals. You will find the library at the eastern end of the student center.
