College Enrollment Will Double

By Year 2000

Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA (AP) - Enrollment in American colleges will double by the year 2000, the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education said Tuesday.

This cliff will need about 200 colleges, new schools of two-year community colleges, mostly in metropolitan areas.

"The United States is creating a society in which more people will have had more education than ever before in history in any country," the commission reported.

"It is making higher education available to all who want it for whatever reason."

To cope with "enrollment and community colleges, mostly in metropolitan areas.

1. Based on past growth rates, it predicts a supply of 13.5 million by 1980 and climb to 17.4 million by 1990.

2. Noting changes in the labor market for college degree holders, "faster and more effective growth in demand," the report said. "It is making higher education available to all who want it for whatever reason."

This report marks the final report of the Carnegie Commission, which was organized in 1963 to study "the future of American higher education." "The United States is creating a society in which more people will have had more education than ever before in history in any country," the commission reported. "It is making higher education available to all who want it for whatever reason."

The commission, which was organized in 1963 to study "the future of American higher education," issued two growth studies: one in 1968 and another in 1971.

The commission described this as a "go-stop-go cycle, and expressed concern for the expected demand of college degrees in the 1980s.

"This decade may present special problems to educational planners because during such periods it is hard to obtain funds or personnel," the report said. "In the 1960s and 1970s, college enrollments increased by 1 million a year, while in the 1980s, they are expected to increase by 4 million a year."
Visiting Lecturer Fasting As Act of 'Recommitment'

Every Wednesday at noon in the afternoon sociologist and anthropologist of the SSDT community gather to discuss world issues, plus direct action in the community, and the ways of non-violence as a means of achieving justice. They participate in the ACC's 200 hour course on "NONVIOLENCE WORKSHOP.

The event is taught by Steve Stalonas, a thirty-year-old Quaker from New York City, who has a long on the "Movement" movement. Stalonas is one of the directors of the Quaker Project, a training and organizing center sponsored by the Religious Society of Friends. He is a national organizer for the People's Coalition for Peace and Justice, has been affiliated with the Institute for the Study of Nonviolence in Palo Alto, California and works closely with the Humboldt Defense Committee and War Resisters League.

A graduate school dropout, Stalonas is now a Visiting Lecturer in the Philosophy Department. He is supported entirely by private contributions. Since he lives in "voluntary poverty," he is on leave from the University of Albany and works closely with the Humboldt Defense Committee and War Resisters League.

Collective Pressure

Our time has come to a close. No, it’s not over. It’s just the beginning of the line, near the fence. When those lines converge upon our lives, like a storm, because your chances of survival are slim. Why? Do the other people really want in on the game against you? Finally, our small group of people at last get inside that gate as soon as possible.

PhyEd Requirement

To the Editor:

I would like to take the opportunity to protest a decision which has caused me no small amount of anxiety. The decision to make Physical Education a required course for students at SUNY at Albany has caused me great concern.

As someone who is passionate about Exercise Science, I believe that Physical Education should not be mandatory for all students. Physical Education classes often reinforce gender stereotypes and perpetuate myths about exercise and fitness.

I urge the administration to reconsider this decision and offer students the option to take Physical Education classes for credit if they choose to do so. Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Soccerman Swamped; Lose Fourth Straight

by Bruce Maggio

A much improved Albany soccer team was faced by Plattsburgh 1-0 tonight. The defending champs were held scoreless by the Danes. In the second half, Albany's defense began to waver and the Danes were able to make the most of their chances.

The first came on a bizarre play. With a minute left in the third quarter, Albany had the ball on their own 30-yard line. A couple of shots later, Plattsburgh goalkeeper canceled out the try. Albany's defense then made a crucial mistake allowing Plattsburgh to score on a corner kick.

The keys to Albany's success were their ability to keep the ball away from their opponents and their sharp defense. Plattsburgh was unable to penetrate the Albany defense throughout the game.

Once Again, Duty Calls
by Robert Mesar of ASP Columnist

The recent dedication of the Vietnam Memorial in Washington, D.C., has brought to mind a personal recollection of an event that occurred in 1967.

The Vietnam Memorial is a solemn reminder of the sacrifices made by those who served in the Vietnam War. It is a place where we can reflect on the cost of war and the importance of peace.

When I was in high school, my father was stationed in Vietnam as a member of the military. He returned with stories of hardship and sacrifice.

I remember the day he brought home a letter from his commanding officer, Captain John Kennedy. It was a letter of farewell, as he was leaving for a tour of duty in Vietnam.

"Duty Calls," the officer wrote, "and I must go." It was a simple statement, but it had profound implications. For our family, it meant saying goodbye to a son and brother, but for many others, it meant saying goodbye to a loved one.

The Vietnam War was a time of great sacrifice and loss. It was a time when we were forced to confront the realities of war and the toll it takes on individuals and families.

Despite the challenges, we must continue to honor the sacrifices made by those who served in the Vietnam War and work towards a world where war is not necessary.

The Vietnam Memorial serves as a reminder of the importance of peace and the sacrifices made by those who fought for it.

We must remember the lessons of the past and work towards a future where peace is the norm, where wars are not fought, and where the sacrifices of those who served are never forgotten.

End the War in Vietnam: Bottoms up for the War Memorial.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lennon in Syracuse

by Dave Hallock

The Apple is the trademark of one of the best known of the many bands about. Its menu of success includes such names as the Beatles, the Rolling Stones, and the Beach Boys. But it was the Apple that introduced the world to the music of John Lennon and Yoko Ono.

The Apple was located in the heart of London's trendy Soho district. It was a small, dimly lit club that was known for its avant-garde performances. The Apple featured a stage for live music, a bar, and a small dance floor. It was a place where artists and musicians could come together to express themselves.

The Apple was opened by John Lennon and Yoko Ono in 1968. They wanted to create a space where people could come together and share their art. The Apple was a place where people could express themselves through music, art, and performance. It was a place where people could come together and be themselves.

The Apple was a short-lived club. It closed in 1969 due to financial problems. But its legacy lives on. The Apple was a place where new ideas were born, and it was a place where people could come together and be themselves. It was a place where the arts were celebrated.

The Apple was a place where people could come together and be themselves. It was a place where the arts were celebrated. It was a place where new ideas were born. And it was a place where John Lennon and Yoko Ono were able to share their art with the world.

The Apple may be gone, but its legacy lives on. The Apple was a place where people could come together and be themselves. It was a place where the arts were celebrated. It was a place where new ideas were born. And it was a place where the world was able to see the art of John Lennon and Yoko Ono.
