Women's Track Surpass Hartwick In Dual Meet

by MADELINE PASCUCCI

The women's track team was victorious this past Wednesday as they defeated Hartwick, 76-54. Squad captain Hugh Davis, Tony Moschella and Billy Smith just 2:18 after the Engineers in the season opener on Wednesday. Albany ran several men and moved up on a paved ball. Once again Albany ran several names to watch in the rest of the season opener.

A free society depends on the will of the people to govern themselves.

When people give up or give in they get taken. And when people are knowledgeable and organized they win.

We've begun to win.

E nglish has been a major part of the effect for Carole.

Said to be the one person who understands it, Carole has always been interested in the organization of words. Even when she was young, she would spend hours sitting by the window, gathering words and phrases, and organizing them in her head. Eventually, she started writing them down, and before long, she had a whole collection of words and phrases that she could use in her stories.

The organization of words is not only a form of storytelling, but also a way of life for Carole. She believes that every word and phrase has its own unique meaning and can be used to create a whole new world. She has always been interested in the way words can be used to create different moods and emotions, and she has always been fascinated by the way words can be used to create a new perspective on the world.

A Major Issue

RCO Phase Out

Cheryl M. Kapas

As a declared Rhetoric and Communications (RCO) major, I have been disheartened by recent events which have occurred pertaining to the RCO department. On Monday, March 28th, an article appeared in the Daily Mirror which clearly stated that the RCO department was in serious financial trouble. Specifically, it was noted that the morale among students was extremely low. While this is not a new phenomenon in the RCO department, it has been brought into the spotlight by recent events. The RCO department has also been subject to a recent restructuring of its curriculum. Many students have expressed concern that these changes will be detrimental to the overall quality of education. In addition, it has been reported that the RCO department has faced a significant cut in funding. This has resulted in the elimination of several courses, and the reduction of class sizes. As a result, many students have been unable to complete their majors. This has caused a great deal of frustration and disappointment among students. In response to these issues, the RCO department has taken steps to address the concerns of students. They have provided additional resources and support to aid students in completing their majors. However, it is important to note that these changes have been met with mixed reactions. Some students have welcomed the new curriculum, while others have expressed concerns about its effectiveness. Overall, the RCO department has undergone significant changes in recent months. These changes have had a profound impact on the students and faculty. As a result, it is essential that the department continues to work towards a solution that meets the needs of all involved. Only then can the RCO department move forward and continue to provide a high-quality education to its students.
Presidential Assessments

Mark Weprin

Mark Weprin

Weprin's platform involves an essential proposal of Weprin — the introduction of a student tax and a referendum. This referendum would raise $3 per student per semester and would be used for various purposes, including funding for student activities and fundraising. Weprin believes that this referendum would be a fair and efficient way to raise the necessary funds for the student association. However, some students have expressed concerns about the potential impact of this tax on their financial situation. Weprin acknowledges these concerns and has promised to ensure that the tax is distributed equitably among all students.

Weprin has also proposed changes to the student association's governing body, including the introduction of a new voting system and the creation of a new committee to oversee the association's operations. These changes aim to increase transparency and accountability within the student association and ensure that all students have an equal say in its decision-making process.

Mark Griebl

Mark Griebl

Griebl's platform is focused on improving the student association's role in campus life. He believes that the student association should take a more active role in addressing student concerns and providing services to the student body. Griebl has proposed the creation of a new Student Services Committee, which would be responsible for addressing student concerns and providing support to students. Additionally, Griebl has proposed the introduction of a new student association's constitution, which would provide a clear framework for the association's operations and ensure that it is accountable to the student body.

Weprin

Weprin's campaign promises to address the student association's role in campus life. He believes that the student association should be more involved in campus decision-making and has proposed the introduction of a new student association's role in campus governance. Weprin has also proposed the creation of a new Student Services Committee, which would be responsible for addressing student concerns and providing support to students. Additionally, Weprin has proposed the introduction of a new student association's constitution, which would provide a clear framework for the association's operations and ensure that it is accountable to the student body.

Lori Peppe

Lori Peppe

Peppe has already served a month and a half as SA vice president, and her platform focuses on improving the student association's role in campus life. Peppe has proposed the creation of a new Student Services Committee, which would be responsible for addressing student concerns and providing support to students. Additionally, Peppe has proposed the introduction of a new student association's constitution, which would provide a clear framework for the association's operations and ensure that it is accountable to the student body.

Andy Weinstock

Andy Weinstock

Weinstock's platform focuses on improving the student association's role in campus life. He believes that the student association should be more involved in campus decision-making and has proposed the introduction of a new student association's role in campus governance. Weinstock has also proposed the creation of a new Student Services Committee, which would be responsible for addressing student concerns and providing support to students. Additionally, Weinstock has proposed the introduction of a new student association's constitution, which would provide a clear framework for the association's operations and ensure that it is accountable to the student body.

Referenda

Referendum 1 - NYPIRG

NYPIRG is a group that promotes environmental and social justice. They have proposed a referendum that would create a student tax and fund a new building in honor of the late Professor William J. O'Connell. This building would be used as a student center, and the tax would be used to fund it. Weprin supports this referendum and believes that it would be a good use of the student association's funds.

Referendum 2 - Freeze

Freeze is a group that promotes environmental awareness. They have proposed a referendum that would freeze tuition for the next academic year. Weprin supports this referendum and believes that it would be a good use of the student association's funds.

Vice Presidential Assessment

Lori Peppe

Peppe has already served a month and a half as SA vice president, and her platform focuses on improving the student association's role in campus life. Peppe has proposed the creation of a new Student Services Committee, which would be responsible for addressing student concerns and providing support to students. Additionally, Peppe has proposed the introduction of a new student association's constitution, which would provide a clear framework for the association's operations and ensure that it is accountable to the student body.

The Endorsements

Every year when the ASP endorses candidates, we examine what we're looking for. The endorsement is not a beauty contest. We try to find the person we think is best suited to be SA President and Vice President. This year we think we have.

We looked for a candidate with a good knowledge of campus affairs. We looked for someone particularly flexible with ambiguous names like leadership, honesty, fairness.

We also took a candidate's stand on issues. We asked the candidates about ROTC, SA budgeting and campaign policy. We grilled them on the concrete and on the philosophical.

We tried to look for candidates who were different from the person really is. We think we found out who the candidates are.

The endorsement is only our opinion, though. When you read our evaluations and the candidates' statements look for what you want to know.

The endorsement board is made up of editors and journalists. We talked to the candidates for a few hours, yelled at each other for a few hours, and came up with our endorsements. Every vote is free of disguise, of course.

Nukes For Thought

During the Second World War, the U.S. discovered the ultimate killing weapon — the nuclear bomb. Ever since then, the world has breathed less comfortably. Never before has man been able to kill so many so quickly.

The world has not gotten any safer in the past 35 years. More and more countries have been created, giving us the chance to end life on this planet time and time again.

We are now in a world of the modern age, bombarding our ears with stories about modern weapons and about disarmament. The more we realize that the nuclear threat is here the faster we will realize that we must disarm. This work, we can only think about nuclear war and modern weapons. It can't hurt. Nuclear war can.
