Tonight's The Night

Wrestling Season Ends; Mims, Horn in NCAA

by Kenneth Asinone

The Daily Alumnae was in bed well before the 3 a.m. curfew. The evening ended quickly after the 7-6 loss to the Yale Bulldogs. The team arrived in Brockport, N.Y., after a grueling match against the Bucknell Bears. The Bears had been previously ranked 20th in the nation, but the Danes were able to overcome them with a strong team performance. The score of 7-6 left the Danes with a record of 2-1 in the season.

The Danes will also have to overcome the loss of several key players due to injuries. The team's main concern is the size of the tournament and the possibility of a rematch with St. Lawrence. Despite being underdogs, they are determined to prove they are capable of winning.

The Danes' next match is against the Binghamton Bearcats, and they are looking to build on their recent success. The team is working hard to prepare for the upcoming matches and is confident in their ability to compete at a high level.

COMMUTERS FIND PROBLEMS & PLEASURE IN OFF-CAMPUS LIFE

by Mike Paladino

Commuters are one of the most important groups on the campus, and some commuter issues are being tackled by the Budget Committee at last week's meeting. But there are still a lot of questions that need to be answered before we can say that commuter concerns have been addressed. Some students are concerned because the committee's problems are not being adequately addressed. For example, there is a lack of communication between the commuter community and the university administration. This lack of communication makes it difficult for students to know what is happening on campus and for the university to know what students need.

In addition, there is a lack of representation on the Budget Committee. For example, there is only one commuter member on the committee, and this may not be enough to represent the needs of all commuters.

Overall, there is a need for more cooperation between the commuter community and the university administration. This will help ensure that the concerns of commuters are taken into account and that their needs are being met.
Council Bows to EOPSA Demands

by Barry Stein

Would you welcome a walk down memory lane? Residents of the Albany area will have occasion to do just that via their television sets throughout next week as residents of 1974 re-enact the events that led to the resignation of Student Council President Ernie Sproule.

At a meeting on Tuesday night, Student Council members voted to approve the EOPSA demands, including a 1.5% increase in student fees and the establishment of a new student government. The vote was 11-0, with 2 abstentions.

The meeting was held at the student center, with approximately 50 students in attendance. Student Council President Ernie Sproule opened the meeting by stating that the council was prepared to discuss the EOPSA demands and that the council had met with representatives from EOPSA earlier in the week.

Sproule stated that the council had received a letter from EOPSA demanding a 1.5% increase in student fees, as well as the establishment of a new student government. Sproule said that the council would consider the demands and make a decision at its next meeting.

The council then went into executive session to discuss the EOPSA demands. When the council returned to the business meeting, it was announced that the council had voted to approve the EOPSA demands.

Councilman John Smith said that he did not agree with the decision of the council, but that he respected the council's decision.

Student Councilman David Johnson said that he was pleased with the decision of the council and that he believed that the council had made the right decision.

The meeting concluded with the approval of the minutes from the previous meeting and the adjournment of the meeting.

The next meeting of the Student Council is scheduled for Tuesday, November 7th.
“Black, White, and Green”

Somewhere, behind the veil of “student,” the illusion, the delusion, the emotional speeches, are the essential issues of funding EOPSA (Equal Opportunity Program Student Association). As events in the Campus Center last night have proved, these issues are not really discussed, nor is it likely that they ever have been, or ever will be.

By closing the Assembly Hall and not permitting entrance or exit without a vote on their budget, EOPSA seized a core conflict of American fundamental rights: freedom of speech and democratic action. These mass action tactics on the part of black EOPSA students can only be aimed at pressuring SA to agree to the procedures that have been mutually set up to handle just the funding disagreements that were in evidence last night.

And to vary that we are intimidating SA by temporarily imposing them in our terms.

The Budget Committee's vote was based on what they thought EOPSA is: a black student group. Their pitch should be handled as a black group rather than as an integrated programming group. Their decision, an immense philosophical issue that may be in their charge as a committee, was based on some information that they have learned of, but is not misleading. One budget committee member was named to hear Speaker's Forum Chairperson Sandra Bodner say that the EOPSA people would get publicity at the University if a black student group is not here. "We never told anyone," he said.

But regardless of the wisdom of their decision, what justification is there for circumventing the democratic process? After all, Budget Committee is simply an advisory committee to the SA President, and Pat Corrigan happens to be in favor of funding EOPSA at the level they want to be funded. He would simply change the EOPSA budget to his liking before Council ever would look at it.

There are two official and one unofficial reason for this circumvention, which has resulted in the rejection of half the committee's Fulk and that of a large part of the SA student body. There was no such thing as "hassling with student groups when there is no more important fight to be had with the administration, FSA, and other organizations that deal with student rights. It has also been argued that such a major policy change that would indeed represent the end of EOPSA as it has been known does not deserve immediate attention, without even waiting two days for the next regular Council meetings. The unofficial reason is that Council did not because it more or less added up to the extent that the latter was involved in the decision to hold a Council meeting last night to discuss the constitutional amendment of blacks SA. Whereat the students were there.

They eventually got tired of their efforts at getting their publicity and in the end seeing weeks their demands were discussed in a far more rational manner. Maybe SA would have done something similar.

Next year's EOPSA is very similar to last year's, and while that may have been what should have been expected at some time in our history, the spirit and atmosphere of the EOPSA feeling that essential last night was not something one could point to with pride.

Living in a democracy that's close to 200 years old sounds like an ideal place for a free and independent person to make a home. In theory, one can live a life with all the freedoms and "inalienable rights" associated with such a land. In reality, there are civil rights issues that are not even close to being resolved. Democracy began as a means of treating all people as women rather than human beings, and native American Indians are still being treated like foreigners who have no claim to the land. So maybe our country isn't such a fertile place for freedom after all, as the articles on pages 4 & 5 seem to indicate.

Case Closed

by Curt Koehler(CPS)

Four months ago the Justice Department closed its investigation into the Kent State tragedy. Now the inquiry has given up on another student shooting—the time of Southern University.

The Department, in concluding its investigation into the Kent shootings of two students at the predominantly black Louisiana school, said it could not link specific individuals to specific violations of federal civil rights laws.

Proficient evidence was not previously available and could not be developed, the agency said, to determine whether any specific individual had violated the federal criminal civil rights statutes.

The authorities occurred in November 1972 following a short meeting between students and Southern President G. Leon Netterville concerning grievances at the school—then undergoing class disruptions and arrests of students. The shootings occurred in the midst of the investigation into the fatal shootings at Kent State University.

"The rule was passed last spring by the college's board of trustees after it decided that the Holiday precedent would cause other colleges and schools to adopt and affect their policies toward student children," Arbitrator William Green said when the decision and said, "In the Justice Department's decision to close its civil rights investigation—a type of investigation often pursued when state law is unanimously preclusive of both local and federal justice—efforts were made to develop the specific evidence to result in indictment of specific individuals.

State police and school officials were called by the Southern administration in an attempt to dispel students in the college's police and the campus leading to the law it was feared that they were involved in a plot.

Accounts also agree that the police officers were on the scene and were probably shot the victims.

A Special Commission of Inquiry was formed by the Louisiana Attorney General shortly after the shootings were reported. The commission found that there were no violations of any laws or due process rights.

Cafeteria Ethics

by David Walden

The latest fad I discovered was the Quad Cafeteria as an investing vehicle. I put my cowpokes in a 20-cent piece and they emerged with a cornucopia of exotic fruits, nuts, seeds, and gourmet delights beyond my comprehension. As I passed through the eighteen rigorolls security procedures, however, I was taken aback to see some armed bull-dogs despondently heading down a walkway which wept away into another section. Naturally, I was leashed by the huge, gaping breath, the screeching, indentation mufflers and his wild, disheveled riding. But more than this, I was appalled, disgusted, horrified—on any champion of Truth, Freedom and justice in this level of brotherhood would be the greatest benefactor. Discovered! One of a Colonel Stetson was the Kittelback Tet! I sat a little glow of grief, for the barren countryside, the eighty armaments of the Kitchen Field... I continue on my very own.

I quickly decided not to go to class. It required the impossible trying task of getting out of bed. I went to the cafeteria. I was appalled. The events that actually took place today.

I noticed that the food was not as good as before, I was appalled. The smell of food was not as appetizing. I was appalled. The service was not as swift, I was appalled. The selection of food was not as varied, I was appalled. The cafeteria was not as clean, I was appalled. The atmosphere was not as pleasant, I was appalled.

I approached the cafeteria manager and informed him of my concerns. He assured me that the cafeteria was working hard to improve the situation. However, I was appalled. The promises were not kept. I was appalled. The situation did not improve. I was appalled.

To the Editor:

I found this new line of crime fiction by Senator Johnstone very interesting. The author depicts a world in which the police and the political establishment are corrupt, and the only people who are able to bring about justice are the criminal themselves. The plot is well-crafted and the characters are well-developed, making for an engaging read. I highly recommend this book to anyone interested in crime fiction.

Sincerely,

Major Modern Art Show

by Tally Kerner

What made the exhibit at the Martha Jackson Gallery major? At the Jackson Gallery, the major exhibited event was a major show in the broad sense, not in the narrow sense. The gallery itself was a major art institution, not a minor one. Therefore, any show at the Martha Jackson Gallery could be considered major in the broad sense of the word. There is no need to specify that the show was major in the narrow sense.
