1983-84: a year to build on for the Great Danes

By Keith Master

The 1983-84 edition of the Albany State Great Danes was a hardworking team provided with a little bit of everything. They gave as much as they got in the season. At times they played very good and at times they played very poorly. But they did not change too much from one game to another. They started out the season playing well and then they did not do too well. But they did not change too much. They were a very good team.

Junior guard Dan Croiter was the Danes’ team leader in assists, as well as being the second high-scorer on the team with an 11.7 average.

Support for Hart snowballs with primary upsets

By Rich Swanover

The 4th FedEx Liberty Bowl was held in Memphis on Saturday, January 13, 1984. The game was between the University of Alabama and the University of Mississippi. The game was a very exciting one. The University of Alabama was leading by two points in the second quarter. The University of Mississippi was leading by two points in the third quarter. The game ended in a tie at 105-105. The University of Alabama won the game in overtime.

Ambassador held back

By Marc Seul

The U.S. ambassador to Egypt, Dr. Frank Pogue, announced last week that he would hold back additional aid to Syria and Saudi Arabia pending clarification of their policies.

President Reagan had expressed concern that the Egyptian embassy in the United States may be used to support terrorist activities.

"We are still waiting for a clear indication of their intentions," Pogue said. "Until we have more information, we will not be able to proceed."
Democrats make final bids for ‘Super Tuesday’

(AP) Four Democrats presidential candidates vied for votes in the South Monday after a debate in which the new evangelical, Dan Hart, was attacked as naive and inexperienced.

Hart changed his schedule to appeal to the conservative wing of his party in the South, and a poll today showed his popularity down to 11 percent.

Hart’s campaign staged a series of town meetings, and in Atlanta, Hart, Mondale, Glenn, and Fink were competing for votes.

George McGovern left the race and flew to Massachusetts where he plans to do well enough to stop Hart.

The Alabama primary on Tuesday will decide who is the leading candidate for the nomination.

The prospects are less hopeful for Alabama. Should he win more, or less, than 15 percent of the votes, McGovern will call on U.S. allies in Western Europe to help his cause.

In Alabama, Hart, Mondale. Glenn, and Fink were competing for votes.

Fink said today he is very pleased with it.

“•ell,” said Glenn. “I was very pleased.

It should help,” said Mondale. “We did very well Monday after a debate in Atlanta. Hart, Mondale, and Glenn are going into next Tuesday’s primary to keep their candidacies alive.

There is a strong lead going into next Monday’s primaries. We elect a human being.”

said Mondale. “We don’t elect images. We elect a nationally respected figure in the mold of Sens. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, Mike and Dean of the Beach Boys – Spring, 83.

Decadence, philosophical concerns revealed in campus bathroom graffiti

 Richie Boleh

Richie Boleh graffiti is a perfect opportunity to bring out feelings of hostility, and McAdams is a good opportunity to bring out feelings of depression and despair.

In one scene, a student wears a t-shirt that reads, “I hate McAdams.”

McAdams is one of the most hated teachers on campus.

These scenes are meant to show how much students hate McAdams.

“We often have the urge to leave a record of where we were to let people know we exist.”

Attempts to divide and conquer

On April 10, 1960, the South West Africa People’s Organization (SWAPO) came into being. Its central objective was the liberation of the people of Namibia from colonial oppression and exploitation. The party was dedicated to preserving and defending the freedom and independence of Namibia, and to the ultimate establishment of a democratic and socialist Namibian society.

Japhet Zwanza

The series of UN resolutions requiring Namibia to hold elections for a Constituent Assembly to adopt a democratic constitution has continued. The South African government has been steadfast in its refusal to comply with the resolutions, citing various reasons for postponing the elections, including the security situation.

On July 18, 1966, the World Court failed to deliver a decision in the case of the South West Africa People’s Organization (SWAPO) against South Africa. The case was brought by SWAPO, alleging that South Africa was violating the UN Convention on the Prevention and Punishment of the Crime of Genocide.

The decision, which was expected to be delivered in September, has been postponed due to the ongoing security situation in Namibia.

In 1969, SWAPO was prevented from holding its Annual Conference. The conference was supposed to be held in Lusaka, Zambia, but was postponed due to the security situation. The conference was eventually held in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, in 1970.

The South African government has continued to refuse to comply with the UN resolutions, citing various reasons for postponing the elections, including the security situation.

The party’s goal is to establish a democratic and socialist society in Namibia, and to end the occupation of the country by South Africa.
From the Editor

This edition of the Sports Magazine should be submitted against all odds. For that's what I think to get the issue out. Originally, I was supposed to have this ready for last week's publication. However, due to a number of unforeseen circumstances, the deadline slipped by and I found myself in the position of having to deliver a product that was not ready for publication. I am grateful to the staff for their patience and understanding, and I hope that you, the reader, will be patient as well.

INTROUER:

The term "loser" is something I would like to talk about briefly. The term was coined in the early 20th century by the sportswriter and writer for the New York Daily News, Harold Easterbrook. He used the term to describe athletes who were not as successful as their counterparts. Over the years, the term has taken on a different meaning, and is now used to describe individuals who are perceived as failures or underachievers.

The concept of "losers" is a complex one, and it is not always easy to determine who is a loser or a winner. In sports, for example, a player may be considered a loser if they lose a game, even though they may have played well overall. Similarly, a team may be considered a loser if they are defeated by another team, even if they were the underdogs in the game.

The concept of "losers" is also challenged by the idea of the "winner". In many cases, the term "winner" is associated with success and accomplishment, while the term "loser" is associated with failure and disappointment. However, this binary view of success and failure is not always accurate, and it is important to consider the context in which a game or competition takes place.

In conclusion, the term "loser" is a complex concept that is influenced by a number of factors, including the culture and context in which it is used. It is important to consider these factors when using the term, and to avoid making assumptions about individuals based on their performance in a particular game or competition.

Phil Jackson

PHIL JACKSON

Interviewer: Phil Jackson is the head coach of the New York Knicks, the team that he led to the NBA Championship in 1994. He is known for his aggressive and innovative coaching style, and for his ability to develop young talent.

Question: What is your coaching philosophy?

Jackson: My coaching philosophy is to always put the player first. I believe that a coach should be able to understand each player's strengths and weaknesses, and to develop a game plan that will help them to perform at their best.

Question: How do you motivate your players?

Jackson: I believe that motivation is a key component of any coach's job. I try to set challenging goals for my players, and to provide them with the resources they need to reach those goals. At the same time, I also try to be supportive and encouraging, and to help my players to develop a strong sense of self-confidence.

Question: What is your approach to training?

Jackson: I believe that training is an essential part of any athlete's development. I try to plan our training schedule in a way that will help my players to perform at their best in the games. At the same time, I also try to provide them with the necessary rest and recovery time to allow them to perform at their best.

Question: How do you handle losses?

Jackson: I believe that losses are a natural part of the game, and that they can be used as a learning opportunity. I try to use losses as a chance to identify areas where we need to improve, and to develop a plan to address those issues.

Question: What is your approach to teamwork?

Jackson: I believe that teamwork is the key to success in any sport. I try to create a team environment in which each player feels valued and respected, and in which they are encouraged to contribute to the team's success.

Question: What is your approach to defense?

Jackson: I believe that defense is crucial to success in the NBA. I try to develop a defense that is both strong and flexible, and that can adapt to different opponents and situations.

Question: What is your approach to offense?

Jackson: I believe that offense is just as important as defense. I try to develop a team that can score efficiently, while also being able to defend at a high level.

In conclusion, Phil Jackson is a respected and successful coach who has been able to develop young talent and lead his team to success. His coaching philosophy is centered on putting the player first, and he is known for his ability to motivate and develop his players. Jackson is a great coach, and his approach to training, losses, teamwork, and defense is both innovative and effective.

For Southern Methodist University's Michael Carter, last weekend was just one more step on the long road to Olympic glory. Carter, a senior who has competed in the 60-meter hurdles and the 400-meter dash, is just one of the many athletes who have been preparing for the Olympic trials.

Carter's performance in the long jump was just one of the highlights of the weekend. He finished second to his teammate, Mike Conley, who set a new NCAA record with a jump of 26.25 meters. Carter's second-place finish in the long jump was enough to secure his place on the Olympic team.

The women's long jump was also a highlight of the weekend. Nebraska's Angela Thacker set a new NCAA record with a jump of 6.83 meters. Thacker's performance was a testament to the hard work and dedication that goes into preparing for the Olympic trials.

Another highlight of the weekend was the men's 400-meter dash. The race was won by Georgia Tech's Antonio McKay, who set a new NCAA record with a time of 43.66 seconds. McKay's performance was a testament to the hard work and dedication that goes into preparing for the Olympic trials.

In conclusion, the weekend was a great success for the athletes who competed. The hard work and dedication that goes into preparing for the Olympic trials was on full display, and the results were impressive. As we look towards the future, we can only hope that these athletes will continue to perform at such a high level, and that they will bring home the gold for the United States.
It's the Battle in Seattle in 84

BY MARK LEVINE

Sports Illustrated

The Battle in Seattle in 84 is not only the most magnificent three games of the year, it is also the most magnificent three games of the season. The Seattle SuperSonics, led by their star player, Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, have taken the NBA by storm. With a record of 37-17, the Sonics are on top of the Western Division, and a win in the Battle in Seattle would seal their first division title since 1979.

The Sonics have been led by Abdul-Jabbar, who has averaged 28.4 points per game, and the play of their defense, which is allowing only 97.4 points per game. The Sonics have also been helped by the play of their bench, which has been averaging 61.5 points per game.

On the other hand, the Golden State Warriors, led by their star player, Michael Jordan, have a record of 34-20. Jordan has averaged 30.1 points per game, and the Warriors have been helped by the play of their defense, which is allowing only 98.2 points per game.

The Battle in Seattle will be a battle of two great teams, but it will also be a battle of two great cities. Seattle, with its skyline and its waterfront, is a city that loves basketball. Golden State, with its fans, is a city that loves its basketball team.

The game will be played at the Seattle Coliseum, and the Sonics will be looking to get their 38th win of the season. The Warriors will be looking to get their 35th win of the season. The game will be a battle of two great teams, and it will be a battle of two great cities.

An NBA postseason preview

BY ALEX SOMKIN

Sports Illustrated

The NBA is in the midst of its biggest playoff run in its history. The league has seen its share of great games, but this year's playoffs are shaping up to be the best yet. With the Los Angeles Lakers, the Chicago Bulls, and the Boston Celtics all vying for the championship, it's going to be a thrilling ride.

The Lakers have been led by their star player, Shaquille O'Neal, who has averaged 29.7 points per game. The Lakers have also been helped by the play of their defense, which is allowing only 96.9 points per game. The Lakers have a record of 43-18, and they are currently the top seed in the Western Conference.

The Bulls have been led by their star player, Michael Jordan, who has averaged 30.1 points per game. The Bulls have also been helped by the play of their defense, which is allowing only 98.2 points per game. The Bulls have a record of 44-17, and they are currently the top seed in the Eastern Conference.

The Celtics have been led by their star player, Larry Bird, who has averaged 20.1 points per game. The Celtics have also been helped by the play of their defense, which is allowing only 98.2 points per game. The Celtics have a record of 44-17, and they are currently the top seed in the Eastern Conference.

The Lakers, with their strong defense and their talented players, are the热门 favorites to win the championship. However, the Bulls and the Celtics are also strong contenders, and it's going to be a battle to the end.

The Battle in Seattle will be a great game, and it's going to be a battle of two great cities. Seattle, with its skyline and its waterfront, is a city that loves basketball. Golden State, with its fans, is a city that loves its basketball team.
Jackson looks back

Jackson looks back on his time as a basketball player and how it has affected him now. He reflects on the challenges he faced and the values he learned during his time on the court.

Free will

Free will is a concept that is often discussed in philosophy and religion. It refers to the ability of individuals to make choices and take actions that are not predetermined by external factors. In the context of basketball, free will can be seen as the ability of players to make decisions on the court that can influence the outcome of the game.

Poem about Jackson

The poem "Poem about Jackson" is a tribute to Jackson's basketball career. It highlights his skills and accomplishments and reflects on the impact he has had on the sport.

More consideration

More consideration is a call for a more thoughtful approach to decision-making in basketball. It encourages coaches and players to take into account the needs and perspectives of all parties involved, including the athletes, the fans, and the community.

Smoking not curbed

Smoking not curbed refers to the issue of smoking in basketball. It raises questions about the impact of smoking on players' health and performance and the role of coaches and organizations in addressing this issue.

More considerations in basketball

More considerations in basketball is a call for a more inclusive and comprehensive approach to the sport. It encourages players, coaches, and organizations to take into account the needs and perspectives of all parties involved, including athletes, fans, and the community.

Sports March 8

Sports March is a regular column that provides insights and commentary on the world of sports. This issue focuses on basketball and its relationship with the principles of free will.

Volleyball club making an impressive last stand

The Danes have faced and beaten the top-ranked Division II opponents such as Amherst, Middlebury, and Williams. This season the Danes also defeated nearly Division I teams in the Casper and George Washington. The Danes still have two more games remaining on their schedule against Division II teams. "Our little dream is to face Harvard in the opening round of the NCAAs," said Coach Kramer. "I think they were intimidated by us." If the Danes beat Rochester, which they had no problem doing earlier in the season, 3-0, the Danes would automatically claim another NCAA berth. Cornell should be another tough game on Saturday, 3-0. "I thought Cornell would be tougher," said Davis. "I think they were intimidated by us." Albany State guard Dan Croutier was honored. Croutier, a junior, led the Danes this season in assists and set the All-Time Albany State record for career assists. "He's a little dream," said Coach Davis. "He's a little dream." The tournament doesn't begin until April 15 so the Danes still must worry about completing their regular season, rationing their time. But nobody is complaining about their club-team status.

In Brief

Croutier honored

Albany State guard Dan Croutier was honored to the honorable mention list of the AISA/NAIA team. Croutier, a junior, led the Danes this season in assists and set the All-Time Albany State record for career assists.

Women tracksters take close third at SUNYACs

By Jim Erwin

TROY—In a close finish, Mary Kacandes of Siena won the 500-meter run ahead of Roberta Beem from Niagara in 6.02 seconds, and the Adirondack women finished third in the 4x100-meter relay, with a time of 48.49.

The Danes had a strong showing in the field events, with Mary Kacandes winning the 800-meter run and taking second in the 1500-meter run, and Rebecca Beem finishing third in the 400-meter run.

Dane relays; the 4x80-meter and 4x100-meter both placed second, and the 4x400-meter relay took third.

Sophomore Belle Detroit took two titles in the SUNYACs.

Hockey club romps, 15-1

By Keith Mariner

The hockey club romped in their first game of the season, defeating Converse College 15-1. The game was played at 8 p.m. at the Converse College field hoarse.

The game started with an overtime goal by the Danes, and the Red Wings scored three goals in the first two periods.

The Danes dominated the game, scoring 13 goals in the second period, and the Red Wings scored four goals in the third period.

The game was played in front of a sell-out crowd of over 5,000 fans, and the Danes won 13-4 to lead the SUNYACs 15-1.

Saturday, the Danes will play against the SUNYACs 15-1.
