Brooklyn, Pratt, State Foes As Squad Travels South

The other day there was a hot discussion between the various members of the Student Senate about the need for a new student union building. The debate was heated and animated, with each side warriors for their cause. The Brooklyn members argued for a larger building, with more facilities, while the Pratt members favored a smaller, more efficient structure. The State students took a middle position, suggesting a compromise that would allow for both improvements. The debate ended with no clear winner, but with a promise to continue the discussion in the near future.

Teachers and Tolerance

Tolerance is an essential characteristic of a well-educated person, a good teacher. In these days of growing war fever, a wave of intolerance is sweeping across the nation, causing anxiety among the conscientious, faithful, and earnest which we as a nation have exhibited in the moments-day coming generation.

The United States, sensing the efforts of all nations, has long proved itself on its liberty, on its principles of freedom to those of all nations, creeds, and colors. We are an brush fire which we set. The way to check that fire is to direct among nations, and even against those nations whose views we do not share or whose governments are with whom we are at war. This hatred must not be directed against all persons of that national family you are invited to share in the spirit of aggression.

It must be shaken out of our lethargy, must be infused with effective efforts, the people of our nation must be aroused, awakened, Americanized.
