Cor. Washington has been a member of the baseball club and played on one year of basketball, and both the basketball and baseball as a senior year, he was captain of the team and contributed a factor in the success of the team.

The causes for the increased participation are many. Primarily, for the first time our women’s teams will be provided with appropriate uniforms and equipment. Women’s teams will be able to attend the end-of-the-year banquet, and a system of awards will be given to those who merit them. The awards will involve fees especially appropriate for women, for example, bracelet, charm, or other gifts.

Secondly, there will be an increase in the number of scholarships. For outdoor sports, there is a $2 to $3 game schedule and 10 to 12 games for approved loading, and in the last few years, women have participated in only two or five contests each for their four activities, field hockey, basketball, softball, and tennis. Thirdly, competitive swimming will be included in the roster of 1967-68.

With the increased facilities of this University, women team members are able to attend regularly and vigorously, increase their skills, and earn the right of recognition as representative of their University. We also feel that they can, and indeed, do play under conditions that reflect the University’s appreciation of their efforts.

The women’s physical education staff at SUNY Albany, has spent considerable time discussing what we believe to be the best conditions for the women’s intercollegiate on this campus. We appreciate the work of the committee and their constant support of women’s sports programs wholeheartedly. We find that many of the recommendations of the committee are the kind of program that the entire University community and students have long advocated.

It is our hope that the programs for the highly skilled women can continue to improve, both in the quality of experience offered and in the number of women students involved.

Madej Speaks

Henry Madej is chairman of Political and Social Positions Committee which met several times to write the referendum. His views on the events coincide with ours so he is present.

The results of the Student Association Referendum on the War in Vietnam are in and with the inevitable controversy over the wording of the statement, though many complaints do not distort the result of honest inability to identify with one of them, a larger number are more profound on post factum criticisms.

The referendum was held as a direct result of the refusal of our delegates to the Vietnam conference in Cornell to vote for a strong denunciation of the war as misleading of our students and the desire of Central Council to confirm or disprove this.

The statement, no doubt, is not the sort of the combined effort of the P.R.S. committee and Central Council and the need for a protest against the major school of thought, which is not yet practically prohibited. If any group of students feels that its proposal has been ignored or "excluded," the blame for this must lie at least in part with that group.

With this liberalized system, the rule that has been formulated would be to have the rule strictly enforced according to a scale that would provide for careful and understandable consequences for the few.

There will be enforcement but punishments for some of the same things that existed before like improper signing of and tardiness. It is possible to be late if you sign up for a regular 11:00 class and just happen to come in at 11:01, not excuse for "ignorance.""Cooperation Needed"

The Women's House proposal makes it clear that it is to be a matter of cooperation and understanding. The women will have only seven members at this time and the plan is to form an alliance with the men in the latter part of the semester.
