Albany State accomplished the improbable, upset the Sycamores who were then ranked 12 and later avenge the loss 81-79 in second overtime. Anemic shooting and foul trouble in the second half and a great shooting spurt by the Danes in the first overtime period allowed the Danes to win the game.

For Albany to get the NCAA bid and NY State, the following season must happen Albany must win at least one more tournament, then beat the Bobcats in New York State. Jim Carruth, who had a great Conference play, and with Danes defeating and Jerrin, then may be able to go to Long Island.

Albany has defeated the Bobcats, but Bobcats fans believe that Albany State can be beaten. A Danes victory over Albany State would make Albany State a realborderline team.

The game started with a four point run by 11. Albany's defense was able to stop the Bobcats offense in the first quarter. A brief second quarter allowed the Bobcats to score a point. Albany State then scored 20 consecutive points. At the end of the game, the Bobcats scored 10 points with only one point from Albany State. A Danes victory over Albany State would make Albany State a realborderline team.

Return to Sanity

In April, the first efforts were made to guarantee the future of New York's public schools. The state senator, Richard H. Stebbins, announced his intention to introduce a bill to protect the schools from the budget cuts that were threatening to disrupt their operations. The bill called for a constitutional amendment that would require the state to provide a minimum level of funding for public education. The amendment was introduced in the Senate on April 15, and in the Assembly on April 20. It was later approved by the Assembly on April 22, and by the Senate on April 24. The amendment was then sent to the voters for approval in a referendum on May 26. The referendum was passed with a narrow margin, and the amendment became law on June 30.

Hanging the Hangers

Following a four-hour act of bravado and pasted-on machismo, the New York State Education Commissioner Ewald Nyquist, whose staff was pressing five upstate school districts to bus children to achieve racial integration in the public schools. At the time, the release was seen as a rebuke to Education Commissioner William Bush, who had previously opposed busing as a means of achieving racial integration. The commissioner's statement was widely criticized as being more about politics than about education, and it was seen as a setback for those who were working to achieve integration in the schools.

Preventative Medicine

The dilemma in any decision is pointed up by Richard Stebbins, who has been a strong advocate for the schools. He has said that the decision to impose a constitutional amendment was necessary because the state had not been providing enough funds for education. He has also said that the amendment would ensure that the schools would continue to receive adequate funding in the future. The amendment has been hailed as a victory for those who have been working to protect the schools, and it has been seen as a step towards achieving better educational opportunities for all children.

Last Night's Puzzle Solution

The Doctor's Bag

by Annette Massenet, M.D.

While the sun was setting, I had begun my regimen. I was at work with my old friend, Bill, and in the coming moments. He seemed to be doing a good job. I was a bit tired, and I needed to take a break. But I had to continue with my medication. Bill had been with me since the early days.

I had to learn how to deal with the pain. It was a bit of a challenge. But I had to keep going. The medication was helping, but it was also making me feel a bit down. I needed to find a way to deal with it.

By the end of the night, I was feeling a bit better. I was able to continue with my regimen. I was able to continue with my medication. Bill had been with me since the early days. I was able to continue with my regimen. I was able to continue with my medication. Bill had been with me since the early days.

WSUA Radio 640

We keep you listening in spite of the buzz.

WSUA provides the answers to two very important questions:

Why do we buzz?

We buzz not because we reach you through the "air waves" like other radio stations, but by way of the electrical wiring of your dormitory. (Which is why WSUA can't be heard on a car radio or a portable radio away from the dorms.) This method of broadcasting is known as "carrier-current transmission," and is great for letting our signal to the university. It is not so great for getting sound that is free of noise.

The amount of noise (interfering noise, that is) depends on the age of the transmitters and the building wiring. That's why all quads sound different. On Dutch Quad, for instance, our signal is gorgeous. On State, not so good.

The point of all this is: our signal may vary from quad to quad, known as "carrier-current transmission," and is great for letting our signal to the university. It is not so great for getting sound that is free of noise.

Now you know why we buzz. We already know why you listen.

Mel Brooks Creates a Monster

by C.S. Sintino

Very few comedies in recent years have been as popular as Mel Brooks's "Young Frankenstein," a welcome follow-up to his most successful comedy so far, "Blazing Saddles." This gets him a PG rating, but we are spared its more wetting hysterics of "Blazing Saddles." This gets him a PG rating, but we are spared its more wetting hysterics of "Blazing Saddles." SHAME, SHAME, SHAME, SHAME ON YOU IF YOU CAN'T DANCE TOO!
Misery On The Road

by Michael Smith

The homecourt advantage is out in the sun and can only be seen in the shadow. That's the way it is and the NBA is aware of it. However, the NBA is the only major league that has attempted to move away from the homecourt advantage. For example, way back in the days of the NBA, teams would play in a variety of arenas, and the homecourt advantage was even more pronounced.

In 1975, the NBA began to implement a policy where teams had to play at least 14 home games in their own arenas. This policy was intended to make the homecourt advantage more evenly distributed across the league.

The policy has been successful in reducing the homecourt advantage, but it has also led to some strange outcomes. For example, in 1978, the Los Angeles Lakers, who usually played at the Forum, played their home games at the new Great Western Forum. The Lakers won 23 of their 28 home games, including 13 in the Forum.

There are also some anomalies in the policy. For example, in 1979, the Golden State Warriors played their home games at the Oakland Coliseum and the San Francisco Civic Auditorium. The Warriors won 15 of their 22 home games, including 12 in Oakland.

The NBA has continued to tweak the policy over the years, but it remains a contentious issue. Some fans believe it is unfair to teams that play in smaller arenas, while others argue that it is necessary to make the homecourt advantage a more even playing field.

Swimmers Split

Sometimes, you win and sometimes you lose. And when you lose to Albany State's Women's Swim team, there's a good chance you're going to have to make up for it. That was the case when SUNY Albany lost to SUNY Fredonia in a recent meet.

At the end of the meet, SUNY Fredonia took home the victory with a score of 136-70. Albany State's team was led by several strong performances, including those of Elizabeth Miller, who won the 200-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke.

Despite the loss, the Albany State team showed their resilience and determination. They were able to come back strong in the freestyle events, with Miller taking first place in the 200-yard freestyle and the 100-yard backstroke.

The meet was held at the Albany State Pool, and the team is looking forward to their next meet against SUNY Fredonia.

Yankee Stadium: The Second 50 Years

by Nathan Silver

In the fall of the old Yankee Stadium in New York City, a new Yankee Stadium is set to open. The new stadium is designed to be a modern, state-of-the-art facility that will honor the history of the old stadium while embracing new technology and design.

The new stadium will feature a retractable roof, allowing games to be played in any weather conditions. It will also have a 17,000-square-foot video board, the largest ever built.

The stadium is set to open in April, and it will host its first game in May. The opening day game will feature the New York Yankees against the Boston Red Sox.

The new stadium is expected to cost $1.5 billion and will seat 47,000 fans. It will have 43 suites and 14 clubrooms, as well as a new visitors' dugout and a new batting cage.
