Southern Comfort

You name it, and she's gone. You name the town that helped shape her and you're wrong. She's from no place, and you can't pin her down. She's made her own rules. The town that raised her, to help you imagine, was none other than New York City.

So long, Jane. We never really understood you. We dug deep, we asked questions, we figured you out. But in the end, you are as mysterious as the day is long. And that's just what you like. You like being away, and you like being alone, and you like being bigger than the town that you call home. You like it, Jane, and we're not sure what to make of it. But we know this much: you are a force to be reckoned with. You are a force of nature, and you will always be a mystery to us.

---

Corruption and Nepotism in FSA

By Bob Mears

The Faculty Student Association (FSA), the official student union on campus, has recently come under criticism for alleged corruption and nepotism. Many students have expressed concern over the organization's handling of funds and the use of FSA positions as personal advantages for certain individuals.

The wage issue, naturally, is a major concern. Full-time workers in the food service industry, such as the food service workers and FSA staff, are currently paid slightly above the minimum wage. However, the issue of nepotism has raised eyebrows among students.

The price issue, naturally, is a major concern. Full-time workers in the food service industry, such as the food service workers and FSA staff, are currently paid slightly above the minimum wage. However, the issue of nepotism has raised eyebrows among students.

The issue of nepotism has raised eyebrows among students. The FSA has been accused of using its positions as personal advantages for certain individuals. This has led to concerns over the organization's handling of funds and its use of money for personal gains.

The FSA has been accused of using its positions as personal advantages for certain individuals. This has led to concerns over the organization's handling of funds and its use of money for personal gains.

---

FSA Employees Seek to Unionize

By Robert Schuster

Disgruntled workers at the Albany State University Student Association (SUA) have formed a union to negotiate better working conditions and higher wages. The union, known as the FSA Workers Union, represents the food service workers and FSA staff who have been working under the SUA for several years.

The union's main concern is the wage issue. The food service workers and FSA staff are currently paid slightly above the minimum wage, which many students have criticized as inadequate. The union is seeking a wage increase to better reflect the value of their work.

The union's main concern is the wage issue. The food service workers and FSA staff are currently paid slightly above the minimum wage, which many students have criticized as inadequate. The union is seeking a wage increase to better reflect the value of their work.

The union has requested that the SUA negotiate a contract that includes higher wages and better working conditions for its members. The SUA has yet to respond to the union's request.

The union has requested that the SUA negotiate a contract that includes higher wages and better working conditions for its members. The SUA has yet to respond to the union's request.

---

Bomb Scare on Campus

Amidst reports of more than a dozen bombs in a Newburgh building on Friday afternoon, students and faculty alike were left on alert. The evacuation of the Lecture Center began at 2:21 p.m., according to the Times-Union.

Two calls were made to the Library Security Office, one to a Library Secretary and the other to the Security Office. The calls were reported to have been made by a man named Burtin, who threatened to blow up the building.

The evacuation was ordered by the Lecture Center's management, who said it was a precautionary measure. The center was later determined to be safe, and students and faculty were allowed to return to their classes.

The evacuation was ordered by the Lecture Center's management, who said it was a precautionary measure. The center was later determined to be safe, and students and faculty were allowed to return to their classes.

---

Undergrad Arrested For Stereo Thefts

Arthur Bell, a sophomore at Albany State University, was arrested last Saturday evening on charges of stereo theft. The thefts occurred at several locations on campus, including the Student Union and the Library.

Bell was arrested after a campus security officer spotted him entering one of the buildings with a stereo system. The officer approached Bell and he was found to be in possession of a stolen stereo.

Bell was arrested after a campus security officer spotted him entering one of the buildings with a stereo system. The officer approached Bell and he was found to be in possession of a stolen stereo.

---

Binghamton Government Fights Trustee’s Decision

The recent decision by the SUNY Binghamton board of trustees to cut the number of students by 1,000 has sparked a fight between the administration and the SUNY board. The SUNY board has threatened to take legal action if the SUNY Binghamton board does not reverse its decision.

The SUNY board has threatened to take legal action if the SUNY Binghamton board does not reverse its decision.

---

Additional Articles

- Albany State Student Press
- FRI, OCTOBER 9, 1970
- Volume VIII, Number 26
- State University of New York at Albany
- FSU Employees Seek to Unionize
- Bomb Scare on Campus
- Undergrad Arrested For Stereo Thefts
- Binghamton Government Fights Trustee’s Decision

---

continued on page...
This Albany Student Press insert for October 15, 1970, contains information about a variety of events, announcements, and sections. The content covers topics such as academic activities, student organizations, and social gatherings. The page includes a section on SKI TRIP TO AUSTRIA and an ASP Opinion titled "Cadbury Escapes Tenure Requiem." There is also a notice for Foreign Students Engaged in Community Dialogue. The page is structured with headings, paragraphs, and events listed in a semi-organized manner, typical of a student newspaper layout.
Coalition Fights Bombs, Detentions

Continued from Page 5

[Text continues with details about the Coalition's fight against bombings and detentions.]

Tickerton At Info Desk

Next tickets to "Bat - "Want all the facts about either the Brown School in Portland, the Campus Camp Service? A huge demand for more tickets for the Homecoming Concert has been made over the phone and at the ticket counter. The Show is Saturday night at 7:00, where the Lebanon Band will be performing. Tickets are $2.50 with tax.

Decision Hits SUNY Centers

Continued from Page 1

The action taken by student members at SUNY Buffalo was the first indication of a larger movement that is expected to sweep the campus. The Board of Trustees has voted to establish an advisory committee composed of four faculty members to advise the administration on the development of a new student handbook. This committee will meet in Albany next weekend to discuss the board's proposals and to consider the impact of the student handbook on the university's future. The committee's report will be presented to the trustees at their next meeting, which is scheduled for September 27.

Honeywell Bombs Attacked

By James E. Burtin

Honeywell Bombs Attack!

The student group who had been threatening to bomb the SUNY Buffalo administration, had taken "the last effective power of student government" and had given it to the Board of Trustees, according to the campus newspaper. The board had made the decision to name four members of the university's faculty to serve on a committee to review the student handbook's proposals. The board's action came after a meeting with the faculty members and after the administration had expressed concern about the potential impact of the handbook on the university's future.

Honeywell Bombs

Honeywell, Minnesota's largest private employer, ranks 20th nationally in paying its employees a welfare supplement. The company had "nothing to lose" by attacking the student protest, according to the board of directors. The board has decided to hire a new public relations firm to handle its image problems.

Honeywell Bombs

Honeywell, Minnesota's largest private employer, ranks 20th nationally in paying its employees a welfare supplement. The company had "nothing to lose" by attacking the student protest, according to the board of directors. The board has decided to hire a new public relations firm to handle its image problems.

Honeywell Bombs

Honeywell, Minnesota's largest private employer, ranks 20th nationally in paying its employees a welfare supplement. The company had "nothing to lose" by attacking the student protest, according to the board of directors. The board has decided to hire a new public relations firm to handle its image problems.
Gridders Win 1st Ever 30-21 Over RIT

The Great Danes of Albany upset R.I.T., scored a 30-21 victory over R.I.T.

The Danes' touchdown came early in the second quarter. On R.I.T. 3rd and 7, Butch McGuerty was forced to pass. Butch McGuerty's pass was intercepted by Fine McMahon, and the Great Danes took over on the 25 yard line. On the next play, Mike Piechowski scored on a four-yard run. The Danes added two touchdowns, by Ed McMahon and by Mike Piechowski.

Boots Lose to New Palisades 8-2 by Robert Werm

Boots got into the third quarter with a 7-0 lead, and then the New Palisades offense came to life. In the second half, the score was evened at 7-7. On the Danes' next possession, R.I.T. scored on a 30-yard pass from Wladimir. R.I.T. edged out the Danes in the second half, scoring two touchdowns to take the lead. The Danes scored one more touchdown, but R.I.T. added a field goal to win.

Budweiser

KING OF BEERS.

[Beer advertisement]
Justice Department

On the surface, the doctrine of Anthony Kennedy John Mitchell to weed out representations in the campuses appears in an attempt to stamp out channels and to close down the legitimate organization between the Administration and the campuses. If it is true, however, this is to be regretted as it would mean the surrender of some of the gains made by student organizing, gains which are of political value.

It is true that the Administration, under the guidance of its legal advisors, has tried to close down the routes of communication, but the fact remains that the student organizations are still in existence and that they are fighting for a greater freedom for the students and for a more democratic educational system.

Injustice at Indian Quad

To be on the Indian Quad is to be in a unique and a fortunate place to be. To see the Indian Quad is to be impressed by the beauty of the architecture, by the grandeur of the surroundings, by the excellence of the education. The Indian Quad is a symbol of the excellence of the University of Albany and of the high ideals it stands for.

The recent protest against the Indian Quad has brought to light the injustice that is done to the Native American students who live and study there. The Native American students have been treated unjustly and have been denied their rights.

The University of Albany must take steps to rectify this injustice and to ensure that the Native American students are treated fairly and with respect.

In the future, the University of Albany must strive to be a place where all students, regardless of their race or their background, are treated equally and with dignity.