Housing Project Faces Deficit

Hudson Buildings Discussed

In both Maple

By Edward A. O'Leary

President Vincent O'Leary and the Hudson Buildings Corporation took steps to prevent the Hudson Buildings Corporation from facing financial difficulties in the near future. The corporation, which operates the Maple Acres apartments on the SUNYA campus, has been struggling to make ends meet due to a lack of tenants and high maintenance costs. O'Leary announced that the corporation would work closely with the SUNYA administration to address the issue.

The lack of tenants has been a major concern for the corporation, as it has not been able to maintain the required occupancy rates. This has resulted in decreased revenue, which has affected the corporation's ability to cover expenses. O'Leary stated that the corporation would work with the SUNYA administration to develop strategies to attract more tenants. The corporation has also been exploring the possibility of offering rent reductions to prospective tenants to encourage them to move in.

The high maintenance costs have also been a problem for the corporation. The corporation has been unable to keep up with the expenses, which has resulted in a lack of funds to maintain the buildings. O'Leary stated that the corporation would work with the SUNYA administration to develop strategies to reduce maintenance costs. The corporation has also been exploring the possibility of seeking grants and other funding sources to help cover the expenses.

The corporation has also been facing financial difficulties due to the lack of funding. The corporation has been unable to secure the necessary funding to cover the expenses, which has resulted in a lack of funds to maintain the buildings. O'Leary stated that the corporation would work with the SUNYA administration to develop strategies to secure the necessary funding. The corporation has also been exploring the possibility of seeking grants and other funding sources to help cover the expenses.

Testing Law—What's The Scoop?

The Debate Goes On

by Freda Marandino and Matthew Cox

When Gov. Hugh Carey signed New York's new "use it or lose it" law, he didn't know the results. The new law, which went into effect September 7, 1979, requires institutions of higher learning to file an annual report that includes the number of students taking part in vocational training programs.

The law is designed to ensure that students are making the most of their time in college. The law states that institutions of higher learning must report the number of students who are enrolled in vocational training programs and the number of students who are not. The law also states that institutions of higher learning must report the number of students who are not enrolled in vocational training programs.

Although the law has been in effect for less than a year, it has already had a significant impact on higher education. The law has caused many institutions of higher learning to change their programs. The law has also caused many institutions of higher learning to change their policies.

The Seduction of Joe Tynan: A chic, well-dressed and characteristically efficient woman willing to sacrifice a great deal for her husband's career, but not her identity. Despite Streep's excellence, acting honors go to Harris, who displays a remarkably sustained Southern accent. Her presence is always felt. She plays a role in The Seduction of Joe Tynan like she did in The Twilight of the Gods class as Faye Dunaway and Grace Kelly. This role, however, is the one the audience finds most appealing. Frustrations Of Joe Tynan
Generally, writers write from their own experiences, or at least about subjects with which they are familiar. It is easy to see how that translated into The Seduction of Joe Tynan when Streep says (to Harris) that she or his career comes first, that he or she must choose. That may be their role here, but it is not the role she should play. In this case, the audience finds Streep’s role most appealing. Plus, both he and his voice are superior to most drivel and maybe even great.

Mark Russier
For the moment, the film still seems just a little too much of a Cinderella story. Heartily, but occasionally, that same message emerges in The Seduction of Joe Tynan when Streep says (to Harris) that she or his career comes first. That may be their role here, but it is not the role she should play. In this case, the audience finds Streep’s role most appealing. Plus, both he and his voice are superior to most drivel and maybe even great.

That bottom isn’t one big hunk of crepe. It’s eight separate layers. This makes the bottom softer. More flexible. Easier on your feet.

And that shoe won’t rub your foot the wrong way, either. Because inside is a full leather lining that’s been specially tanned to make it soft and comfy.

Nuclear Power: Negative Reaction

To the Editor:

I was a bit disturbed to read your article, "The Nuclear Power Industry," in the Aug 15, 1978 issue of the SUNY Daily. Your statement that "we have a two-pronged policy -- to increase our energy supply and to protect the environment" is somewhat misleading. The first part of the policy sounds reasonable enough, but the second part is an attempt to gloss over the real issue: the dangers of nuclear power.

Your article mentions that the industry has made some attempts to address public concerns about nuclear power. However, these attempts are not enough. The public has a right to know the full extent of the dangers involved in nuclear power, and the industry must take responsibility for ensuring that safety is the top priority.

The risks associated with nuclear power are too great to ignore. According to various studies, the chances of a major accident at a nuclear power plant are significant. For example, the Three Mile Island accident in 1979 caused significant environmental damage and health risks. Such accidents can have serious consequences for public health and safety.

Furthermore, the cost of building and maintaining nuclear power plants is enormous. The industry has been able to pass these costs on to taxpayers and consumers, which is unfair and unsustainable. The government should not be subsidizing an industry that puts the public at risk.

I urge you to reconsider your position on nuclear power and to explore alternative energy sources that are both sustainable and safe. The public has a right to know the truth about nuclear power, and the industry must take responsibility for ensuring the safety of the public.

Yours truly,

Teach! Professor, Teach!

To the Editor:

I was appalled to read the article "Professor, Teach!" in the Aug 15, 1978 issue of the SUNY Daily. The author, who is a professor at SUNY Albany, makes some valid points about the current state of higher education, but his solution of "teach more" is not the answer.

Professorships are not just about teaching; they are also about research, scholarship, and administration. The author seems to be ignoring the fact that professors have many responsibilities beyond the classroom.

I believe that the real problem is not with the professors, but with the administration. The administration needs to prioritize teaching and learning over research and other functions. This means hiring more professors and providing them with the resources they need to do their jobs effectively.

The author may be right in pointing out that the quality of instruction varies, but the solution is not to demand more teaching. Instead, the administration must work to improve the quality of education at SUNY Albany.

Attention Seniors!

To the Editor:

I am writing to express my dissatisfaction with the new alcohol policy at SUNY Albany. The policy states that alcohol consumption is prohibited on campus.

As a senior, I am frustrated by this decision. The policy seems to be an attempt to control the behavior of the student body, rather than addressing the root causes of alcohol abuse.

I urge my fellow seniors to speak out against this policy. We should demand better options for entertainment, such as more campus events and activities.

Yours truly,

SUNYA Is Its People

To the Editor:

I am writing to share my thoughts on the recent developments at SUNY Albany. The university has made some changes, but there is still work to be done.

I believe that the university should continue to prioritize education and research, rather than focusing on administrative tasks. This means providing more resources for faculty and students, and ensuring that the administration is responsive to their needs.

I encourage my fellow students to get involved in the decision-making process. The university's future depends on the input of all stakeholders.

Yours truly,

The Trojans lost All-America quarterback B.J. Dickey, tailback Marcus Allen, who rushed for 105 yards and scored on a 1-yard run, and linebacker Jim Rome, who passed for two second-half touchdowns and quarterback Paul McDonald, who managed only one first down in the first half and was starting to say, "Oh my God," but my team kept the ball and drove 80 yards for a third as the Green Wave committed their fifth turnover of the game.

The boys of Troy and it was not a game or whether Saturday night's performance was good enough to nail the top spot in this week's Associated Press ratings, were idle, but sixth-rated Purdue smashed them every time they got it.

The Buckeyes passed for just 81 yards in the first half, under the 200-yard mark for the second straight week, and averaged only 4.3 yards on 14 attempts. Purdue (1-0) was still the better team and was rewarded for its performance by Bruce, for his first college stalls (his week.

"Overall, I would say that I am very pleased with our performance today," said Borucki. "Although the scrimmage did not go the form of a normal game, Whitebread (the quarterback position) opened a game against Utah will take the same sports that our team has through this season."

Booters Ready For Season Opener

by Mike Dunne

Once they finished the Albany State soccer team took some necessary steps in preparation for their fall season and longer opener this Saturday in Pittsburgh. Several points were made about the team's overall performance last season. When the Booters opened the campaign against Division I opponents, the team's performance was not up to what is expected. The team explained this by saying that they had moved to a higher level of competition. The team was able to make some gains by bringing back some key players, which will help them succeed this year.

The Booters fought to a 2-2 tie on Saturday in Pittsburgh. Despite the outcome, the Booters showed improvement with the addition of some preseason games to assess their performance. The coach, Schicfflin, was very upset with the officiating in Connecticut but believes his team is progressing well.

The offensive attack, which had been a concern last week, seems to be a leader in the team. One key player is the goalkeeper, who transferred from Geneseo. Schicfflin was somewhat hesitant in his praise of the offensive crew, which could have hurt for most of the contest. The Raiders and allowed only a single goal to BU despite playing a man down in the round robin affair. The defensive crew, which could have hurt for most of the contest. The Raiders and allowed only a single goal to BU despite playing a man down.

Revamped Tennis Squad Has A Different Look

By Paul Schwartz

The Albany State women's tennis squad is starting the season with a different look. According to the Albany State women's tennis coach, Barry Larkin, the team is looking for its second straight winning season.

In total, there are eight players on the roster, including three returning players and five new ones. The returning players are Marcia Trigg, Marie Allum, and Margaret Lee. The new players are Ava Johnson, Samara Thompson, Erica Wilson, Emma Smith, and Olivia Brown.

Last year, the team finished with a 7-3 record, which was an improvement from the previous season. This year, the team is looking to build on that success.

The coaching staff is also new, with Larkin taking over from the previous coach, who left to take a position at a different university.

The team is practicing hard to prepare for the upcoming season. "We are working on our serves, returns, and overall strategy," said Larkin. "We are also focusing on conditioning and fitness, which is crucial for the season."
