The dispute began when SUNYA students were denied voter registraton in 1980, subject to the approval of the local Boards of Election. The SUNYA appeal was rejected by a press official from the Attorney General's office. SUNYA is appealing the Attorney's decision in an effort to have the 1984 McCurn decision which overturned a similar case of a SUNY New Paltz student, for which McCurn also ruled in favor of the SUNYA student, for which McCurn also ruled in favor of the SUNYA student. Campus women's groups experience rebirth

By Linda Greenberg

"Women's issues are always on the rise," said Martha Schumacher, coordinator of the President's Task Force on Women's Safety. "That's why we're seeing a new focus on women's issues among student groups on campus."

According to Schumacher, campus women's groups are experiencing a renaissance in interest and activity, with a particular focus on women's safety and empowerment.

"We've seen a lot of growth in the past few years," said Schumacher. "Students are becoming more aware of the importance of women's safety and are taking action to make their campus a safer place."

Schumacher noted that the Women's Studies department at the university has played a key role in instigating this renewed interest in women's issues. "The Women's Studies department has been instrumental in raising awareness of women's issues on campus," said Schumacher. "They've helped to create a space for students to discuss and address these issues in a meaningful way."
Roots of student activism planted in history

By Karen E. Beck

Recently, the role of "SUNY Albany" changed across campus. These were the sounds of student activism—sounds that once again are being heard on college campuses across the nation.

"Students are starting to see what's going on around them, and they are starting to see that they can do something about it," said Student Action Committee chair Larry Hartman.

"People are starting to realize how important, for example, the nuclear issue is," said Hartman. "They are starting to realize that by putting political pressure in the proper place they can effect change."

"Activism is a lot more restrained than it was in the eighties," he added. "Students have learned how to work within the system instead of against it. Instead of demonstrations, instead of sit-ins, we're learning that we can be a lot more effective through lobbying, petitioning, and letter drives."

Many people view the recent resurgence of student activism as a return to the ideals of the sixties, but I think it's a more effective way of organizing and methods of change, said Stacey Young, vice president of SUNY Albany's New York Public Interest Research Group.

"The sound of student activism is even more pressing now," said Young. "The activism now isn't as exciting as it was, but it's more effective and more restrained than it was in the late sixties."

"People are starting to see what's going on around them, and they are starting to see that they can do something about it," said Hartman. "Students have begun coalition building with community members, minority groups and especially with other student activists."

"Today's activism is different," said Young. "Students have begun coalition building with community members, minority groups and especially with other student activists. This gives students a much broader base in unity, there is strength."

"They are not trying to undo what conservatives did," she said. "It's a lot of ways, that's good, because when you got things in a state of flux, people have to come together to try to shape positive change, to make change, to get the world to the way that we want it."

"People don't feel that the media coverage dictated what students were involved in," said Hartman. "There was still activism here on campus. It just wasn't as active," he said. "The media didn't play up the role of the students."

"Conservatives have always been particularly well-funded, and therefore particularly well-organized," she added. "Today's activism is different," said Young. "Students have begun coalition building with community members, minority groups and especially with other student activists. This gives students a much broader base in unity, there is strength."

According to the Department of Communications, we will see an increase in the number of students choosing telecommunications as a major. This increase is due to a number of factors, as Dr. William Salerno, chair of the Communications Department, explains:

"The rise in popularity of telecommunications is due to several factors. First, there is a growing recognition of the importance of communication in all aspects of life. Second, the field of telecommunications is expanding rapidly, offering students a wide range of career opportunities. Finally, there is a greater emphasis on the development of communication skills in general education courses."}

Dr. Salerno continues: "With the rise in demand for telecommunications skills, we expect to see an increase in the number of students choosing this major. This is a positive development, as it will help to ensure that our students are well-prepared for the workforce."

Lorena Verde occasionally takes a break from the education scene to write about the benefits of pizza. "Pizza is a perfect meal," she explains. "It’s quick, easy, and delicious. You can find a slice of pizza at almost any price point, from a $1 slice at the local pizzeria to a $30 slice at a fancy restaurant."
Fan appreciation

The Fat Cat has received a number of letters over the past few weeks from students who have written to express their appreciation for certain individuals. In this issue, we would like to highlight the appreciation expressed by the students for two faculty members: Mr. Johnson and Mr. White.

Mr. Johnson, who has been with the university for over 30 years, has been a beloved faculty member known for his teaching excellence and dedication to his students. He is well known for his ability to connect with students on a personal level and his commitment to helping them achieve their academic goals. His students have often expressed their gratitude for his guidance and support, and this issue features a letter from one of his former students expressing their appreciation.

Mr. White, a renowned researcher in the field of psychology, has been recognized for his significant contributions to the field. He has authored numerous papers and has been awarded several prestigious grants for his research. Despite his busy schedule, he has always made time for his students and has been instrumental in helping them succeed in their research careers. This issue includes a letter from one of his students expressing their gratitude for his mentorship and support.

We encourage our readers to share their appreciation for faculty members who have had a positive impact on their academic journey. Whether it’s through mentorship, guidance, or simply by being a role model, faculty members play a crucial role in shaping the lives of students. Let’s take a moment to recognize and appreciate the contributions of those who have made a difference in our lives.

A point of history

The Vietnam War

The Vietnam War was a conflict fought between 1955 and 1975, involving the United States, North Vietnam, South Vietnam, and their respective allies. The war was characterized by its duration, the involvement of multiple countries, and its impact on global politics.

The conflict began in the early 1950s, after the French colonial occupation of Vietnam was ended by the French defeat in the Vietnam War (1946–54). The war escalated in the 1960s as the United States became involved in the conflict, with its goal being to prevent the spread of communism in Southeast Asia. The war ended in 1975 with the fall of Saigon to North Vietnam.

The Vietnam War had a significant impact on the United States, altering public opinion, changing American foreign policy, and influencing the course of the Cold War. It also had a profound impact on the Vietnamese people, leaving a legacy of displacement, pain, and rebuilding.

The War in Iraq

The War in Iraq began in 2003, initiated by the United States and its allies, with the goal of removing Saddam Hussein from power in Iraq. The war had significant consequences, including the displacement of millions of people, the destruction of infrastructure, and the ongoing conflict in the region.

The War in Afghanistan

The War in Afghanistan began in 2001, in response to the September 11th attacks on the United States. The war was fought against the Taliban and al-Qaeda, with the goal of removing the Taliban from power and stabilizing the country. The war has been characterized by its length, casualties, and the ongoing presence of foreign troops in the region.

In conclusion, the Vietnam War, the War in Iraq, and the War in Afghanistan are examples of the complex and often controversial nature of modern warfare. These conflicts have had significant impacts on the countries involved, as well as on the global political landscape.

Music Council

The Music Council is an organization dedicated to promoting music and arts on campus. The council organizes various events and activities, including concerts, recitals, and workshops, to provide opportunities for students to engage with musical pursuits. The council also supports students in their musical endeavors, providing resources and guidance to help them achieve their goals.

The council is open to all students interested in music, regardless of their level of experience or background. Members of the council have the opportunity to develop leadership skills, gain experience in event planning and management, and contribute to the cultural life of the university.

If you are interested in joining the Music Council or in learning more about its activities, please contact the council through its official email address or visit its website for more information. The council looks forward to welcoming new members and continuing to foster a vibrant musical community on campus.

Letters

To the Editor:

I am writing this letter to express my appreciation for the dedication and hard work of the Student Government Association (SGA) during the past academic year. The SGA has played a crucial role in addressing the concerns of students and in ensuring that their voices are heard on campus.

I would like to commend the SGA on their efforts to improve the student experience, particularly in areas such as housing, dining, and transportation. Their initiatives have made a positive impact on the lives of students, and I believe that their efforts are truly making a difference.

I am looking forward to continued collaboration with the SGA in the upcoming academic year and to seeing the continued growth and development of this important student organization.

Thank you for your hard work and dedication to the improvement of the student experience.

Sincerely yours,

Sorensen measures success by faith in God

By Craig Wortman

Sorensen's message resonated strongly with many SUNY students. Despite the simplicity of his message, he was able to reach a large audience. His presentation was well prepared and it was clear that he had done some research on the topic. He started by introducing his topic and then proceeded to give a brief history of the town of Newton and its significance in the Bible. He then went on to talk about the importance of faith in God and how it can help people to overcome difficulties in their lives. His speech was well-organized and he was able to keep the audience engaged throughout.

The audience was captive as Sorensen spoke about the importance of having faith in God. He shared personal anecdotes and examples of how faith has helped him in his life. His message was one of hope and inspiration, and he was able to connect with many of the students in the audience.

Sorensen's message was one that spoke to everyone, regardless of their religious beliefs. He encouraged his listeners to have faith in God and to believe in themselves. He emphasized that success is not just about having money or material possessions, but rather about having a strong foundation of faith and a sense of purpose in life.

In conclusion, Sorensen's message was one that was both inspiring and thought-provoking. He was able to touch the hearts of many with his message of faith and the importance of having a strong foundation in life. His speech was a reminder to all of us that we should never give up hope and that we should always strive to be the best that we can be.

March

"As a lobbyist, I run the risk of not only rape, but also rape of our own. It's not just a woman's issue," said Cindy Severinghaus, Chairwoman of the New York State Legislative Alliance (NYSLA).

"Not a little disappointed," she added. "But the fact that the march was good because more people came out than we expected," said Mickey Alford, a member of the New York State Legislative Research Group (NYSLR). The purpose of the march was to raise awareness and to rally more people for the cause.

"We hope the march will serve as a catalyst to expand the movement," said Edith R.C. of the National Women's Rights Project. The Women's March to End Violence Against Women is one of the fastest-growing professions in America.

NEW ISN'T ALWAYS BETTER.
This Simchas Torah we begin to read the Torah anew for the 3298th time. It is a time for singing, dancing and rejoicing.

Torah is both old and new. It goes back thousands of years, yet is current to this very day. Timeless and eternal, the Torah remains as relevant today as ever. As we celebrate in the "Shema", "Which I command you this day", "Each day it is regarded as it was just given to us for the first time."

Sounds old-fashioned? Would you prefer something more modern and current? Then look to Coke—they made a big mistake by tampering with a true and tried formula. People of all ages just can't get enough. Take it. So what else is new?

That isn't to say that there is nothing new about Torah. Every day and age offers new insights into its wisdom, and new opportunities for growth within the Mitzvos. Torah draws on new parables and parallels from our new opportunities for growth within the Mitzvos.
Netmen humiliate RPI, 7-2.

"This is the best game of the year," said Bosworth. "We've had three losses in a row, but we played well tonight. We did everything we needed to do.

The game was a complete domination by the Great Danes, who scored seven goals to the RPI's two. The Great Danes led 7-0 at halftime and cruised to the victory.

"We played well in all aspects of the game," said Bosworth. "Our defense was solid, our midfield was strong, and our attack was effective."

Danes Whip Springfield for Third Straight Win

By Mike Macrander

The combination of a maligned offense and a 3-6 record against them as their record plunged to 3-6 after their 43-27 whipping of the normally services New Comer, field head coach Mike DeLong. "Mike Milano is an outstanding athlete, and of course they're well-sure how good. I think we have a solid team."

"Must the RA stop the drinking of students under age 16?" asked Jenkins, adding "What is the RA's role in enforcing the law?"

"The Danes retaliated on the next drive, a seven­

"We don't play really badly," Kidder admitted. We were well aware of the situation before we had taken the field, and we knew what we had to do. We played a good game, and we won the game."

"It's important to get the ball away from the defense, because we haven't scored many goals this season," Kidder said. "We were able to use the ball effectively and score
several times."

"We were able to control the game and prevent Springfield from scoring."

"We've been working hard in practice, and we expect to continue our success in the future."
