State College News: The King and I, which is completely designed and presented by the students, will present Rodgers' and Hammerstein's musical play, "The King and I," at 8:30 tonight and Saturday in Page Hall. Based upon a 1944 novel by Margaret Lindsay called "Anna and the King of Siam," the play portrays an episode in the life of the present King of Siam, the late Rama V.

A Letter

To The Editor:

I cannot completely agree with the statements made by the Editor and the Board of Education. The general consensus seems to have been opposed to the bill. Students at other state schools have been in a state of silence — not because we believe the school should be closed or that the students are not interested, but because we probably would be in another school, if tuition were charged. In our case, we are going to Pasadena, and we would probably be in another school. For this reason, I would like to give Grants to private school students who want to go to the University of New York. This is fine for Geneseo, but we are fighting for the right to attend the University of New York.

Dr. Stokes in Page Hall. We would like to complete our education in the University. We believe that when given the chance to study, we can make the pointed comment: "This is fine for Geneseo, but we want the right to attend the University of New York."

Here, in Albany, they can SEE us. Will they HEAR?
