New Hampshire
McGovern Predicts Close Race

By Walter Moss
Associated Press Writer

In a last-ditch effort to boost his chances for the New Hampshire presidential primary, former Sen. George McGovern is making a strong showing in the state. The candidate, who has hightailed it over to New Hampshire, has been campaigning aggressively and has attracted a number of key endorsements. McGovern is currently polling at about 40 percent, with his nearest competitor, Sen. Eugene McCarthy, at 35 percent. The other candidates are lagging significantly.

McGovern's strategy is to appeal to the working class and labor unions, who have traditionally supported him. He has been especially successful in the textile and manufacturing industries, where he has been a strong advocate for worker rights.

McGovern also plans to focus on issues such as the war in Vietnam, civil rights, and economic justice. He has been critical of the Nixon administration's policies and has called for a more aggressive approach to foreign policy.

Despite the tough competition, McGovern remains confident that he can capture the New Hampshire primary. "I think we're doing well," he said. "I'm really proud of our campaign. We've got a lot of energy and we're going to keep fighting.

Supporters of both McCarthy and McGovern believe that the race is far from over. "We're going to keep fighting," said McCarthy. "We're not going to give up. We're going to keep fighting until the very end."

Senators Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota and George McGovern of South Dakota are among the top candidates in New Hampshire. Humphrey has a 30 percent lead over McGovern, but both candidates are working hard to win the state. Humphrey has been particularly successful in the rural areas, while McGovern has been more successful in the urban centers.

The New Hampshire primary is the first in the nation, and its results will help shape the course of the Democratic party's nomination race. Both Humphrey and McGovern are expected to fare well, but neither candidate is guaranteed a victory. The race is expected to be close, with both candidates working hard to win.

Republican strategists, looking ahead to the New Hampshire primary, have predicted a clear-cut winner. However, they believe that the race will be very close, with Humphrey and McGovern both vying for victory.

If Humphrey wins, he is likely to go on to win the Democratic nomination. However, if McGovern wins, he may be able to challenge Humphrey in the later primaries. Both candidates are expected to focus on the issues of the moment, such as the war in Vietnam, civil rights, and economic justice, in their campaigns for the Democratic nomination.
The legislature's two most vocal opponents of an increase talked today about the problems of the pension system. Sen. Tom Campo of Waterbury called it "a sensuous mess with no end in sight." While the State is $17,200. It has been learned thai his a salary of $28,200. Thus, his total income from tor of the budget, with a to a maximum of $15,000.
equal (he amount received for the posl-relirement prior to retirement have been introduced by Bills Would Derail Pension Gravy Train by Vicki Zeldin

CHRONICLE — Bob Considine. King features Syndicate

Bills Would Derail Pension Gravy Train by Vicki Zeldin

CHRONICLE — Bob Considine. King features Syndicate

The legislature's two most vocal opponents of an increase talked today about the problems of the pension system. Sen. Tom Campo of Waterbury called it "a sensuous mess with no end in sight." While the State is $17,200. It has been learned thai his a salary of $28,200. Thus, his total income from tor of the budget, with a to a maximum of $15,000.
equal (he amount received for the posl-relirement prior to retirement have been introduced by Bills Would Derail Pension Gravy Train by Vicki Zeldin

CHRONICLE — Bob Considine. King features Syndicate

The legislature's two most vocal opponents of an increase talked today about the problems of the pension system. Sen. Tom Campo of Waterbury called it "a sensuous mess with no end in sight." While the State is $17,200. It has been learned thai his a salary of $28,200. Thus, his total income from tor of the budget, with a to a maximum of $15,000.
equal (he amount received for the posl-relirement prior to retirement have been introduced by Bills Would Derail Pension Gravy Train by Vicki Zeldin

CHRONICLE — Bob Considine. King features Syndicate

The legislature's two most vocal opponents of an increase talked today about the problems of the pension system. Sen. Tom Campo of Waterbury called it "a sensuous mess with no end in sight." While the State is $17,200. It has been learned thai his a salary of $28,200. Thus, his total income from tor of the budget, with a to a maximum of $15,000.
equal (he amount received for the posl-relirement prior to retirement have been introduced by Bills Would Derail Pension Gravy Train by Vicki Zeldin

CHRONICLE — Bob Considine. King features Syndicate

The legislature's two most vocal opponents of an increase talked today about the problems of the pension system. Sen. Tom Campo of Waterbury called it "a sensuous mess with no end in sight." While the State is $17,200. It has been learned thai his a salary of $28,200. Thus, his total income from tor of the budget, with a to a maximum of $15,000.
equal (he amount received for the posl-relirement prior to retirement have been introduced by Bills Would Derail Pension Gravy Train by Vicki Zeldin

CHRONICLE — Bob Considine. King features Syndicate

The legislature's two most vocal opponents of an increase talked today about the problems of the pension system. Sen. Tom Campo of Waterbury called it "a sensuous mess with no end in sight." While the State is $17,200. It has been learned thai his a salary of $28,200. Thus, his total income from tor of the budget, with a to a maximum of $15,000.
equal (he amount received for the posl-relirement prior to retirement have been introduced by Bills Would Derail Pension Gravy Train by Vicki Zeldin

CHRONICLE — Bob Considine. King features Syndicate

The legislature's two most vocal opponents of an increase talked today about the problems of the pension system. Sen. Tom Campo of Waterbury called it "a sensuous mess with no end in sight." While the State is $17,200. It has been learned thai his a salary of $28,200. Thus, his total income from tor of the budget, with a to a maximum of $15,000.
equal (he amount received for the posl-relirement prior to retirement have been introduced by Bills Would Derail Pension Gravy Train by Vicki Zeldin

CHRONICLE — Bob Considine. King features Syndicate
WAGINON, April 26 - Robert C. Kennedy had a good laugh at yesterday's banking conference, a gathering of bankers to discuss the state of the national economy. The conference was convened at the New York Stock Exchange by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE).

Kennedy, in his opening remarks, said it was a pleasure to see so many of his colleagues gathered here today. He noted that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was attended by over 1,000 bankers from all over the country. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was hosted by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The NYSE is the world's largest stock exchange, and is home to over 1,000 companies.

The conference was well attended, with over 1,000 bankers from all over the country in attendance. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was hosted by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The NYSE is the world's largest stock exchange, and is home to over 1,000 companies.

The conference was well attended, with over 1,000 bankers from all over the country in attendance. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was hosted by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The NYSE is the world's largest stock exchange, and is home to over 1,000 companies.

The conference was well attended, with over 1,000 bankers from all over the country in attendance. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was hosted by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The NYSE is the world's largest stock exchange, and is home to over 1,000 companies.

The conference was well attended, with over 1,000 bankers from all over the country in attendance. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was hosted by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The NYSE is the world's largest stock exchange, and is home to over 1,000 companies.

The conference was well attended, with over 1,000 bankers from all over the country in attendance. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was hosted by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The NYSE is the world's largest stock exchange, and is home to over 1,000 companies.

The conference was well attended, with over 1,000 bankers from all over the country in attendance. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was hosted by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The NYSE is the world's largest stock exchange, and is home to over 1,000 companies.

The conference was well attended, with over 1,000 bankers from all over the country in attendance. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.

The conference was hosted by the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE). The NYSE is the world's largest stock exchange, and is home to over 1,000 companies.

The conference was well attended, with over 1,000 bankers from all over the country in attendance. The keynote speaker was Robert C. Kennedy, who spoke about the importance of banks in the economy.

Kennedy said that banks played a crucial role in the economy, providing money and credit to businesses and individuals. He noted that banks had been able to weather the storm of the past few years, and that they were now in a position to help the economy grow.

Kennedy also spoke about the importance of regulation. He said that banks needed to be regulated to ensure that they were not taking unnecessary risks.

The conference also included a panel discussion on the future of the economy. The panelists agreed that the economy was not as strong as it had been in the past, but that it was still growing.
Mock Senate Session

By David Snowden

The item long for twenty-second annual intercollegiate Mock Senate of the New York Student Press; held Sunday afternoon at noon. Fifteen colleges and university representatives attended the session and debated the merits of bills introduced by the visiting individual schools. The fifteen colleges were divided into two divisions representing the majority and minority parties.

The school board under the "Majority Party" included Albany College of Pharmacy, College of Mount Saint Vincent, Baldwin Community College, Iona, Queens Community College, Johnson State College, New Paltz Colleges, CUNY City College, and New York University. The "Minority Party" consisted of SONY Student Body, Binghamton College, Union College, SUNYA Speaks, SUNY Plattsburgh, and New York State University at Albany.

Petitions introduced by either: Bruce DoChary, SUNYA Speaks; Thomas Grady, SUNY Plattsburgh; and John West, Albany Student Press.

Senate Submissions

By Duval Snowden

Academic Freedom Threatened

Faculty and administration may face interesting new York Times editorial questions about the college's efforts at developing university, including Albany State, to reduce discrimination against minorities and women. The paper criticized this, saying it was a "lame duck" measure and that the student body would be forced to vote on the issue.

The Senate passed a resolution in the last day of the session by a slim margin. It was voted at a point where a student was just ahead and that all unlimited business and further observation on Albany State's bill was proposed to win the until the next Mock Senate Session. Finally, a bill introduced by Massachusetts College, dealing with the State Corporation Commission, was introduced by the delegates.

SUNYA Students

A student called for expanded curriculum to give students four degree options were introduced by State University of New York. These include: math, science, business, and social science. The new curriculum was approved by the delegates.

The Mock Senate continues to be an annual event held for the past nine years in the Albany Student Senate chamber, was moved.

Let's get rid of Smokey Bear

By James Smith

Although the Smokey Bear campaign has been successful in preventing forest fires, its success has come at a cost. The bear has become a symbol of safety and has been featured in countless ads and promotions. But is it time to retire the bear and find a new mascot for the National Forest Service?

Smokey Bear has been associated with the National Forest Service since 1944. He is known for his campaign to prevent forest fires and for his catchphrase, "Only you can prevent forest fires." However, critics argue that his image is过时, and that the National Forest Service needs a new mascot.

Some argue that Smokey Bear's image is no longer relevant in today's world. The bear is often seen as a symbol of innocence and purity, which may not align with the realities of modern forest management. Others argue that the National Forest Service needs a new campaign strategy to reach younger audiences who are more likely to engage with social media and online platforms.

While Smokey Bear has been an effective symbol for many years, it may be time for the National Forest Service to consider a new mascot. A new campaign could focus on the importance of conservation and the need to protect our natural resources, regardless of whether or not Smokey Bear is involved.

McGovern Gets Chance Today

To Stop Muskie Momentum

By Walter B. Nears

Associated Press

McGovern is running in a crowded primary contest, are virtually certain winners. The impact of Nixon, on the ballot in a three-way Republican primary race on his "hegemony." Nixon, the Republican in a role he hopes to carry with him to the rest of the country the values of northern New Englanders. He campaigned door-to-door in Nashua and Manchester, and said he would try to win the primary by reaching his goal.

On the Democratic side, McGovern and Muskie are running for president of the United States, and the National Broadcasting Co. will be reaching his goal.

The National Broadcasting Co. (NBC) will be reaching his goal.

McGovern is running in a crowded primary contest, as the other three names on the Democratic ballot. Muskie is running for president of the United States, in a contest, are virtually certain winners. The impact of Nixon, on the ballot in a three-way Republican primary race on his "hegemony." Nixon, the Republican in a role he hopes to carry with him to the rest of the country the values of northern New Englanders. He campaigned door-to-door in Nashua and Manchester, and said he would try to win the primary by reaching his goal.

On the Democratic side, McGovern and Muskie are running for president of the United States, and the National Broadcasting Co. will be reaching his goal.

Mutual Student Press

March 17, 1972

PAGE 6

McGovern Gets Chance Today

To Stop Muskie Momentum

By Walter B. Nears

Associated Press

McGovern is running in a crowded primary contest, are virtually certain winners. The impact of Nixon, on the ballot in a three-way Republican primary race on his "hegemony." Nixon, the Republican in a role he hopes to carry with him to the rest of the country the values of northern New Englanders. He campaigned door-to-door in Nashua and Manchester, and said he would try to win the primary by reaching his goal.

On the Democratic side, McGovern and Muskie are running for president of the United States, and the National Broadcasting Co. will be reaching his goal.

Mutual Student Press

March 17, 1972

PAGE 7
OPINION

Editorial

Fight the Hike

Several students travel to Albany State from Oneonta, this past weekend to show up for an anti-tuition lobbying campaign scheduled for next Tuesday at the legislature. It seems that Oneonta has emerged as a campus that is spreading the resistance movement against the projected tuition raises and board fees. The political nature of the situation is well known to the press. College offices are now being made to take more care in the way they talk about the hike than to the press because they know that the hike is an issue that is being used against them.

What about the student body? Don't over look the distinction, as we all know that the student body is truly representative. True, all sorts of suggestions on what to do with the hike were invited news services. True, we are all aware of the fact that we are all in the same boat. The political nature of the situation is well known to the press. College offices are now being made to take more care in the way they talk about the hike than to the press because they know that the hike is an issue that is being used against them.

FSA Student Workers

to the Editor

[In the subject, ask the article with the FSA or Student Workers to the focus of the essay. Describe the political nature of the situation, and the importance of the student body in representing the needs of the students. The student body is truly representative. True, all sorts of suggestions on what to do with the hike were invited news services. True, we are all aware of the fact that we are all in the same boat. The political nature of the situation is well known to the press. College offices are now being made to take more care in the way they talk about the hike than to the press because they know that the hike is an issue that is being used against them.

Dear Rich,

Greetings from the land of stone and mortar! How've you been? I would have written sooner but work's been piling-up and I can't seem to get organized. If it isn't one thing, it's another, you know?

I imagine you've heard about the tuition and room hikes. I can't believe it. Tuition has doubled since I got here: $400 to $800 in two years! Where's it going to stop? And the really sad thing is, what are we getting for the extra money? I couldn't get half the courses I needed this semester because they just weren't offered. There's no way I can change my major now, I'd be afraid of not being able to get in the required courses before graduation.

March 7, 1972

Dear Rich,

Greetings from the land of stone and mortar! How've you been? I would have written sooner but work's been piling-up and I can't seem to get organized. If it isn't one thing, it's another, you know?

I imagine you've heard about the tuition and room hikes. I can't believe it. Tuition has doubled since I got here: $400 to $800 in two years! Where's it going to stop? And the really sad thing is, what are we getting for the extra money? I couldn't get half the courses I needed this semester because they just weren't offered. There's no way I can change my major now, I'd be afraid of not being able to get in the required courses before graduation.

I almost died when I walked into Ms. Office that morning. You should have seen the place-plush or what! I'd heard rumors that the second floor of the Administration Building was well-to-well elegance, but I guess I never quite believed it. His personal office is fantastic, it reminded me of some executive's suite in one of those old Doris Day movies. At least I think it was Doris Day.

The President himself is a nice enough guy. I got the feeling that he was as nervous about my presence as I was about being there. He was very helpful; he outlined the day's plan of action for me and explained that there were some things I just couldn't sit in on. For the most part, I had to agree with him, but I was kind of disappointed that I couldn't have joined him for an executive luncheon. I guess he went to the Hudson River Club, or something like that, for a get-together with the boys (the boys being the "upper strata" businessmen, administrators, and the like). Aside from being too ritzy for me - no females allowed! Well, you know my old motto, Rich: I've been thrown out of better places.

Back to the events of the day. I set in on meetings, eavesdropped (with his permission) on telephone calls and witnessed dictation. Through it all, the President explained just what he was doing and the significance of it. I must say that man is on the go all day. All in all, it was a fascinating experience.

Aside from enjoying the novelty of the day, I learned a lot. One of the President's chief concerns seems to be the gulf between students, faculty, and administration. One meeting was totally taken up with a discussion of alienation, both on-campus and off. Our public relations are not the best. Even though Fowler himself came up in conversation, you remember, I told you about Barney Fowler and the Sayles Hall scandal last year, didn't I? Well, I guess Fowler "mouth" and the disruptions of Spring 1970 have done little to endear us to the community. Anyway, the committee talked this over and came up with a few suggestions for bettering relations. It all sounded kind of ineffectual to me - the problems are so immense. I guess you've got to start somewhere, though.

Another meeting I attended was primarily concerned with policy-making. The problems there were in the same vein. They are so hampered by red tape, the bureaucratic hierarchy and financial constraints that I don't see how anything ever gets done. They are plagued by organizational problems like you wouldn't believe.

I guess I got kind of carried away with the details, but what I understand that day really got to me. What gulf exists between people on all levels, Rich? You see it everywhere. We're so hampered by the whole system, it's just too big. Priorities get lost somewhere, red tape is strangling us, we are drowning in a world we can't handle. I don't know if you can understand what I'm trying to say. I guess I can sort it up by quoting a fellow-prisoner, "What we have here is a failure to communicate."

Take care of yourself and write soon. This can get to o lonely place.

Ciao,
Ann
in the sky and periodically
in the sky and periodically
in the sky and periodically
in the sky and periodically
A Review of Peckinpah's Movie

by Maria Oskaros

Sam Peckinpah's Straw Dogs is a riveting, gripping film that explores the themes of violence, brute force, and survival. The story follows the protagonist, David Sumner, a simpleton who has accidentally killed a village girl. When David returns home, he finds his wife, Ann, deserted by her friends who see her as one of their own who has deserted them. They spend more time harassing the couple than in fixing the garage roof. The tension builds as David is forced to confront the men after they break into the house, leading to a climactic confrontation that tests his courage and willpower.

David Sumner is no killing joke. In his isolated country home, David doesn't get the solitude he needs to spend time with his blackboard, nor is hunting considered a healthy pastime. After the body of a victor is found near the garage, David is identified as the culprit. He is pursued by his wife's friends and must fight for his life. Despite the odds, David ingeniously combats his foes and greatly enjoys the fight. His resourcefulness and courage are tested in the face of violence and brutality, and over-flow of blood in this film will turn the audience into a fierce animal ready to kill to save the sanctuary of his home.

The defining moment of the film comes when David, determined to protect his home and family, attacks the men who have broken into the house. This moment is pivotal in understanding the character of David and the themes of the film. It highlights the struggle between man and nature, and the relentless screen-play shows it all. The unrelenting nature of the violence against David's house is palpable. The physical education program is embellished with scenes of David's passion for hunting, but hunting does not prove manhood. While David is out hunting, his wife Ann has refused to acknowledge the killing of a cat and the rape of another woman. When David returns home to find Ann with another man, he turns his passion into a fierce animal ready to kill to save the sanctuary of his home.

Peckinpah's Straw Dogs is a masterpiece. Incredibly beautiful, it is a film that defies easy categorization. It is a love story, a survival tale, and a commentary on the nature of man and society. The film explores themes of violence, brutality, and over-flow of blood in a way that is both disturbing and compelling. It is a film that will leave you questioning your own beliefs and assumptions about the nature of violence and the human condition.
Danes Set Six Records; Finish Ninth in Tourney

by Jim Murdoch

"We did fairly well," Coach Bruce Kelly said after the State University of New York Athletic Council swimming championships. "We swam as best as we could, and we knew what we were up against." The Danes, however, did not know what they were up against in Buffalo, Sunday, with hopes of placing in the individual events rather than taking a high place in the team standings. However, a simple error in scheduling the meet cost them dearly. The story continues next week with hopes of setting some new records.

Les Van Ryn placed fifth in the 100 yard backstroke, ninth in the 100 yard breaststroke, and 20th in the 100 yard butterfly. He placed sixth in the 100 yard backstroke.

Other Albany places were Mark Gerstenhaber, Les Perrett, and Pat Kelly captured eight in the 100 yard backstroke. Gerstenhaber also placed eighth in the 100 yard breaststroke and 16th in the 100 yard butterfly. Van Ryn captured eighth in the 100 yard breaststroke and 16th in the 100 yard butterfly. Gerstenhaber, Les Perrett, and Van Ryn captured eighth in the 100 yard breaststroke. Van Ryn captured eighth in the 100 yard breaststroke and 16th in the 100 yard butterfly. Gerstenhaber, Les Perrett, and

Due by Friday, March 10, 1972

TUESDAY, MARCH 7, 1972
ALBANY STUDENT PRESS

PAGE 19
Legislator Pushes For Legalization of Marijuana

by Maida Oringher

If the bill eventually introduced in the New York Assembly by Frances Leichter (Democrat- Manhattan) should pass, marijuana dealers could become a protected profession, or at least a legal one.

The bill, to be sponsored by Representative Leichter, would make it legal for a person over twenty-one to purchase marijuana cigarettes at his local liquor store.

The bill is not expected to go far in the Committee on Government Operations. The House, according to Leichter's sources, is generally opposed to the measure. But the legislation is considered for the first time in light of the growing interest in the legalization issue.

The measure would also provide for a state tax to be levied on the sale of marijuana products.

The bill would also provide for a state tax to be levied on the sale of marijuana products.

Harsh Laws Undergo Change

In some states, the laws against marijuana are being relaxed. In California, the sale of marijuana is allowed at liquor stores, and in New York, the possession of marijuana is allowed for medical purposes.

In Massachusetts, the state government has introduced a bill that would legalize the possession of marijuana for medical purposes.

In Michigan, the state government has introduced a bill that would legalize the possession of marijuana for medical purposes.

In Wisconsin, the state government has introduced a bill that would legalize the possession of marijuana for medical purposes.

In Texas, the state government has introduced a bill that would legalize the possession of marijuana for medical purposes.

In New York, the state government has introduced a bill that would legalize the possession of marijuana for medical purposes.

In New York, the state government has introduced a bill that would legalize the possession of marijuana for medical purposes.