The Andrew Sisters Wow C & W
With Swing, Swish and Sway

by Bernie Corinne, "Chief"

They were swinging and swaying to Anora—those three sisters of song (and by the way they are sisters) Patty, Maxine, and LaVerne Andrews, as we watched them complete their act—from back stage at the Palace Theatre and then return to a packed audience for three encore.

After watching them skin past us and rush up to their dressing room, we heard them sing and hum as they changed into their street clothes. Patty wore soldier blue tailored slacks, a natural silk blouse, and brown moccasin-type shoes, while LaVerne was dressed fit to kill in a fur jacket over a beige mink.

Patty, still in her stage make-up, plumped herself down on the stairs to her dressing room, and said in a friendly tone, "What'll you have, kids?"

The three of us riddled her with questions until their tall, dark, and handsome manager, Matty Melcher, set a one minute limit. And here's what we found out:

Round Town With Lo-Lo

"Hi there! Have you been invited to the Junior High School's Bonnie Blue Ball? Do you know that it is going to be great fun? Jeannette Price is chairperson of the decoration committee, and she said she had some good ideas, but she wouldn't tell. All I know is that there's going to be some pumpkins and stuff. Gee, I wonder what you're supposed to wear. Do you know?"

"I heard that it's a sport dance. That ought to be fun!"

"And you're going to have some special events?"

"Yes, I heard that the Beethoven Serenade will be performed. And there'll be dancing."

"That's great!"

"But what about the music?"

"Well, they're going to have the sax, piano and drum solos will put you on the dance floor. Inspired soloing by every lead man in the crew. The steady, solid base with a fast beat and backs up some of the "big name" bands, but new words have built it into a love song. The tune is the same as it was in the classic treatment by some of the "big name" bands, but new words have built it into a love song. Trumpet solo by Ziggy Elman is as usual a beauty and Krupa, is another. Let Me Off Uptown, Ray Eldridge's trumpet is really sizing."

Concerto For Two — This song is slowly but surely filling the air. It's really Tschaikowskis's (whew!) piano concerto which you all probably recognize as the theme song of Orson Welles, but now it is done in the form of it's for so far in Claude Thornhill's rendition of it on Columbia records. The tune is the same as it was in the ian music world. Really easy."

 HALLOWEEN — This is T. Dorsey's latest release to date and one that really gives Dorsey and company a terrific "ride." This is a real "jump number" that overflows with lively rhythm. The band gives it a steady, solid base with a fast beat and backs up some inspired soloing by every lead man in the crew. The trumpet solo by Ziggy Elman is as usual a beauty and the sax, piano and drum solos will put you on the dance floor. "PALE MOON" is sung ably by Frank Sinatra and the band plays fluently.

Why Do We Do It?

"Complaining, explaining, and still more complaining, that's all the Milne students seem to do in their spare time. When told of the half day holiday we have today, instead of being happy they complained—because the public schools had off yesterday, and all day today, besides Columbus Day on Monday. They seem to forget that we at Milne returned from vacation only a few weeks later than those schools, and that we have a few more days off at Christmas time and at Easter vacation. In May we have Moving-Up Day, which the other schools do not have, and we have Armistice Day off the same as any other school. Why then, must we start complaining as soon as another school has a day's vacation that we don't have? Why?"
York Announces A Cappella Choir

Group Plans to Sing Before Christmas Vacation Assembly

Mr. Roy York, Director of Music, states that the A Cappella Choir will be in fine enough shape to sing in assembly sometime before Christmas. He has already ordered several compositions for the Christmas assembly. After all, he says, that the members are doing very well for beginners.

Mr. York has no plans in view for the band yet as some of the instruments which have been ordered will not come for some time, and now there is not enough variety to sound well.

Band Members

Shakespearean Actors To Visit Albany Soon

The Chekov Players, well-known Russian dramatic group, will appear in Albany for three successive weeks beginning Monday, October 20, through Wednesday, October 23.

"King Lear" Shakespeare's famous tragedy, will be presented on the stage of Page Hall auditorium on Monday, October 20 at 8:30. Student tickets are $1.00.

"Twelfth Night", one of Shakespeare's early comedies, will be presented Tuesday evening, October 21, at the Albany Academy for Girls auditorium. Saturday, October 23 at 8:30. Student tickets are $1.00.

When asked if she thought Albany audiences were to blame, Patty answered quite to the contrary. "Why, they're not to blame," she drawled. "We think they're wonderful!"

"It wasn't for the way we love to sing and work, we wouldn't be able to do what we do—we because we are on the go almost every minute," said peppy Patty, the blonde, always in the center of the trio. And in case you're wondering which is which—LaVerne, the oldest of the three, is on the left; and it's cute little Maxine who's on the right.

Hartley Lauds Motion Pictures in the Classroom

by Inez Warshaw

Dr. William H. Hartley comes to Milne and with him comes Audio-Visual Education.

This innovation brings the use of sound and pictures in the classroom, a more effective way of learning.

Dr. Hartley has a long list of accomplishments. He has written several books and articles on Shakespearean Actors. He is Audio-Visual Editor of Social Education Magazine and is Educational Advisor for the Columbia School of the Air.

"I think Milne is swell," said Dr. Hartley. "but what impresses me so far is the way the school is run and the splendid reaction of the students. I also like Milne. I still saying: "I like Milne very much but I like Milne students best."

Chairman and author, editor and adviser, teacher and physical director, Dr. Hartley still finds time for his hobby, photography.
