Council Engaged
In Paper, Workshop

The third annual meeting of the student council workshop is scheduled to take place at Bethlehem Central high school late in March. The workshop is a relatively new project of the nine schools participating in the Federation of Student Councils in this area. It started three years ago when the school students decided to meet together and discuss mutual problems in order to help one another. The workshops were the result of these discussions, and now one is held every year.

Representing Milne will be Tom Nathan, president, and two other members of the senior student council. This year, the workshop date has been set for April 14.

Nathan to Lead Forum Discussion

It has been decided that Milne will look into the subject of a handbook and at the workshop a discussion will be held as to whether or not such a publication would be beneficial to the participating schools. Several questions will be proposed: How will it benefit the schools? What will the cost be? What will the students contribute? What will it be worthwhile? And lastly, will it be used and enjoyed by everyone?

In preceding years, two of the topics presented for discussion were being a smoker, and standard prices at games. In the past, the workshop has been a great help and it is the hope of the Milne council that this project will grow better each year and be more beneficial to the schools involved.

Council to Publish Interschool Paper

The senior student council has begun work on the April 1 issue of a paper that will contain the reports of the student councils of Bethlehem Central high school, Altamont, Bern-Knox, Castleton, Columbia, Ravena-Coyne-man, Van Rensselaer, Voorheesville, and, of course, Milne. The publication, issued monthly since November 1, 1954, is written by the student council of a different school every month for the benefit of the other student councils. Its purpose is to spread ideas concerning school activities and government from one school to another.

Kilough to Edit News

Some of the articles that will appear in the mimeographed newsletter will be on the following topics: Tom Nathan, president of the student council, a "Did You Know That" column, and a column related to general criticism on school functioning. Both of these columns will be assembled by a senior who is the editor of the forthcoming Milne edition. There will also be a "Have You Met..." article, featuring (Cont. on Page 4)
Its Time Not to Be Tardy

Ever since the period of history when people began to be concerned with promptness, the idea of tardiness has evolved.

The symbol of tardiness in Milne is recognized on the daily bulletin by an asterisk. The identifying marks transmit to all who see, the knowledge that many Milne students are subject to correction.

In the past few months, the number of asterisks has increased greatly. The administration, since the beginning of second semester, has allotted five extra minutes per day before school starts to encourage promptness and make the schedule less pressing. However, tardiness still persists.

Along with the unexcusable reasons for being late, come unavoidable instances. These exceptions, however, are irregular and their validity should be judged by the administration.

Other problems imposing promptness are the school buses. To help the buses meet their schedule less pressing. However, tardiness still persists.

In short, this is one time when we don’t want a star before our name!

Riding Club Formed

A horseback riding club has been offered for after-school activities. The riding will be done at Fort Orange Stables on the Western Turnpike. The stables offer both outdoor and indoor riding rings. G.A.A. credit is given for intramural sports. The stable manager will therefore have to certify the riding. Many girls have signed the list and have expressed an interest in the sport.
YOUNG PEOPLE REBEL AGAINST PARENTAL BAND

By ALMA BECKER

In the course of human events, it becomes necessary for the younger generation to dissolve parental bonds, which have connected them to their mother's apron strings, and to assume, in the society of our civilization, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them. However, a decent respect to the opinions of parents require that they should declare the causes which compell them to the separation.

This preceding paragraph might well be used by the present younger generation as a Declaration of Independence from their parents. Of course under no circumstances is it necessary to dissolve completely those bonds which hold a family together. It is merely necessary to cut those ties which do not foster a sense of responsibility and a feeling of initiative.

Teen-ager Treated As Child

One of the causes of rebellion in the younger generation is the treating of teen-agers like tiny children. Once upon a time when Jimmy was a tot, his mommy said to him, "Remember to chew your food 20 times before you swallow it." Jimmy is now a huge pile of humanity. I'll lay a few million pounds of soot that his mother still says, "Remember to chew your food 20 times before you swallow it." At this point the little man with the horns and the pointed tail who resides on Jim's shoulder says, "Are you going to listen to that half-dead? You're a big man now. Swallow that mouthful whole." Jim might have an acute attack of indigestion, but at least he feels he made the decision that caused it.

Clothes Present Problem

Another gripe of the younger generation concerns the clothes problem. When girls go shopping with their mothers, they usually purchase some outfit that resembles something the mother wore when she was their age. You can easily visualize this costume in your mind. It looks something like the dress between "the flapper days" and 1940's big football shoulders. Well, the usual outcome of this situation is a sales talk by mother and the purchase of this historic little work.

A few months later, a big dance is coming up, and a new dress is very much in order. "Mother," she says, "May I have a new dress?" "Why you have a new dress full of clothes," the mother says. "Does little does mother know that her daughter's closet full of clothes would interest no one but a museum?"

This article is not meant to bring war upon the two camps of a family, but merely to point out problems in this age-old argument.

CAROL BECKER

Respectfully submitted, Carol Becker, Secretary of the what you find written on all the student council minutes. Besides this activity—too "childish." Miss Becker is a member of C.W., B.S.I, Sigma, and was a Q.T.S.A. Council member, Senior Play usher, and secretary of F.H.A. and Red Cross.

Carol likes friendly people, also pizza, and open houses. Tall handsome guys in charcoal slacks and wool sweaters definitely appeal.

On the other hand, people who bring wet umbrellas into stores and lay them on the counter to drip, really antagonize Carol. To this she's sure to mutter, "Cheese Louise." Miss Becker is headed for Becker Junior College, but she'll miss, "All those student teachers that you can't hardly find no more."

The thing she likes most about the dear old Alma Mater is the democratic system of volunteering, applied by the teachers, "I want you, you and you."}

PETER HOPPNER

Friendliness and a terrific sense of humor, that's the first thing you'll notice about our Spotlighter, Peter Hoppner.

Born in Alkony, September 6, 1937, Pete is one of our most artistic members of the senior class. He's played freshman jayvee and varsity hoop and varsity tennis for two years, is Adelphi's vice president and a member of inter-society council.

It's natural that basketball is one of Pete's main likes. Other naturals are food (any 'ole food) and dancing. He dislikes eggs and cheese (what a combo), people who talk too much, and writing short stories for English. What do you suppose he likes most about Milne? Math classes! "How 'bout that?", as Pete would say. He doesn't quite know what he'll miss most at Milne when he graduates, but guesses it will be the "atmosphere" in general.

Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., is the next stop for Pete. He hopes to become an architect, or else dig ditches.

ANN GAYLE

This bundle of knowledge first saw the light of day on January 4, 1937, here in our fair city. "Donnan" attended P. S. 19, after returning to Albany from Texas, and came to our alma mater in the seventh grade.

Ann is quite an "all round" girl. She is a member of Sigma, president of F.H.A., a member of the Bricks and Ivy literary staff, and the Union's youth page reporter for the Crimson and White. She quite talented too, being a song leader, and playing both the piano and organ.

"Gabby-Gayley" greatly admires people who can talk more than she can, which is quite a feat. She is very fond of both her southern heritage, and her favorite dish—steak and French fries, but she greatly dislikes answering the telephone and people who call her Gayley.

After graduation Ann says that she will really miss those locker room antics, and noon hour rushes.

Her main ambition is to "get through Milne," and then become a math teacher.

JERRY THOMAS

Stepping into the Senior Spotlight, this is one of the more artistic members of the senior class. Jerry was born in Dayton, Ohio and came to Milne on February 14, 1937, and came to Milne in the ninth grade.

Since his arrival, Jerry has been the Art Editor of the Bricks and Ivy for two years, a member of Theta Nu and the Intra-Society Councils, as well as a former president of his class. Jerry was also a delegate to the C.S.P.A., a graduating officer, and a campaign manager.

Jerry Thomas is one of the many ardent skiers in this year's senior class. In addition he loves to figure skate, eat coffee ice cream with dill pickles, and paint. He speaks much of his time pretending to be an intellectual, by reading books on Greek civilization and bird watching. His favorite saying happens to be "Quibis, Quibis, Quibis!"

After graduating from either St. Lawrence or Middlebury, he plans to become a multi-millionaire by writing surrealistic plays.

Eighth Grader Solves Problem

Robert Talham, a contractor, and a mathematics student teacher for the second semester of this year, made a transit, complete with level and height adjustments. He also devised a problem of measuring a door on the first floor by using the instrument and asked for entries to be submitted. In order to prevent the measuring of the door directly and the submission of this as an answer, he invented a new unit which the student had to use.

The best entry was submitted by Mike Ungerman, an eighth grader.

Dunn Teaches Group Literature Course

Miss Anita Dunn of the Milne English department, has for the duration of this semester, will teach a course on the selection of high school literature to a group of teachers and librarians.

The course is given in Poughkeepsie each Tuesday night from 7 to 9.

Tri-Hi-Y Activity

Milne's Tri-Hi-Y organization will present two movies, March 4 in Page Hall auditorium at 7:30 p.m. The first and main feature is entitled "The Milkman," starring Donald O'Connor, Piper Laurie and Jimmy Durante. The other film, "Fighting Men of the Plains," stars Randolph Scott. The price for this entertainment is fifty cents per person.

Supervisor Returns

Miss Mary Lynch, formerly of the Mathematics department, has taken Dr. Snyder's position as supervisor of the Social Studies department. Last semester, she was a representative of four copies.

Miss Lynch, a graduate of State College, taught geometry as a student teacher in Milne. She did undergraduate work in social studies. After graduation she taught in Schoharie and in the Dutch West Indies.

Miss Lynch's home is in Cohoes. She feels very happy to be back in Milne.

Council Engaged

someone from our student council. Mary Killough is also in charge of this feature. A "human interest" story of unknown character, by Carl Epplen and Steve Greenbaum, will undoubtedly bring tears to the eyes of its readers.

The entire paper will be typed by Sue Hershey, Elise McNamara and Carolyn. There will be only one copy printed to supply the student councils, each council receives about four copies.

The idea for such a joint paper originated at a meeting at B.C.H.S., of the Association of Student Councils. Becks, with a representative of B.C.H.S. as secretary of the venture. This school published the first edition, November 1, 1954.
