COFFEE BEAN BAGGED

Recently, a shipment of choice Brazilian coffee beans, bound for processing in New York City, was lost. The True Blend Coffee company had wasted three weeks in fruitless searches for the lost beans when an official for the company, Mr. Harvey Schnauz, stumbled upon a lone coffee bean outside the Milne School.

Mr. Schnauz entered the building to search for the beans and promptly discovered a fragrant odor of coffee wafting down the stairs. Unfortunately, as Mr. Schnauz attempted to climb the stairs, classes began to change so Mr. Schnauz was accidentally pushed off the second floor landing and struck beneath several seventh grade boys as he lay outside of the Boy's Locker Room. However, nothing could deter Mr. Schnauz, so he picked himself up, albeit with caution and followed the aroma to its source.

Mr. Schnauz discovered himself in the third floor Social Studies office. Inside were several teachers grouped around a desk steadily drinking their way through the entire shipment of coffee. Mr. Schnauz ordered them to stop, but their hunt for coffee was too great so Mr. Schnauz was forced to take desperate measures. He stole their coffeemate.

April fifth has been set as the date of the initial hearing to investigate the teachers' actions. As one African studies teacher stated, "When I saw all that coffee, I don't know what happened, it was just too much force of habit is stronger than I thought."

Air Conditioning Installed

Last Friday, a rock was thrown by a frustrated member of the Albany High School student body through a window of the guidance office, barely missing Jordan Meliaides, a junior majoring in the office's materials. A bomb scare at Albany High had forced all students outside where one of them found a conveniently placed Spell book, and drove a red MGB and has fingerpaints on the steering wheel. "I might not be here today if it was not for sea salts," said the new despout, as he was cleaning the blood off of the rapier with which he had impaired the noble Pruden.

Coup D'Etat: Fossieck Out, Wollner Seizes Power

On Monday, April 1, 1970, David Wollner, president of the Student Council, leading a force of armed and enraged students, overthrew the prevailing government of the Milne School. King Theodore Fossieck and His Apparent Charles W. Bowler were forced to flee to the neighboring kingdom of Albany High School where Dr. Fossieck has assumed the title of King in exile.

Meanwhile, Wollner has set about creating a benevolent anarchy with himself as absolute dictator. His first action while in office was, as expected, not calling a student council meeting. He next awarded himself with the Royal Order of Milne—a black velvet cord with a paintbrush tied on to the end. He then applied for his driver's license. The overthrow was quick and relatively bloodless.

There was one major battle which began on the steps of Stage Page where there was a brilliant fencing duel between King Wollner and Mr. Donald Pruden, King of the tennis courts. "I might not be here today if it was not for sea salts," said the new despout, as he was cleaning the blood off of the rapier with which he had impaired the noble Pruden.

The battle continued out into page courtyard where there was a brilliant confrontation between the renegade baseball team who were hurling projectiles at the loyal archery.

From there the violence waged in the science building, where the chemistry department hurled chemical experiments and into the biology department, where the loyalist forces were attacked by thousands of rebells.

The final body count registered four hundred and thirty-three dead students, forty-three dead superiors and administrators, four junior, seventeen pigeons, lota pickled frogs, millions of dead cockroaches and thousands of rebels (why should today be any different?), and several student teachers who weren't worth counting, much less burying.

For the future, Dave plans to open a chopped meat concession to compete with the cafeteria, in conflict with ex-King Fossieck's orders against bakesales.

He also plans to shorten the school day so that we don't have to come until 2:20; repair all of the clocks; and declare Milne independent of the State of New York.

Due to Lack of Interest the Seventh Grades Have Been Cancelled.

COFFEE BEAN BAGGED

Recently, a shipment of choice Brazilian coffee beans, bound for processing in New York City, was lost. The True Blend Coffee company had wasted three weeks in fruitless searches for the lost beans when an official for the company, Mr. Harvey Schnauz, stumbled upon a lone coffee bean outside the Milne School.

Mr. Schnauz entered the building to search for the beans and promptly discovered a fragrant odor of coffee wafting down the stairs. Unfortunately, as Mr. Schnauz attempted to climb the stairs, classes began to change so Mr. Schnauz was accidentally pushed off the second floor landing and struck beneath several seventh grade boys as he lay outside of the Boy's Locker Room. However, nothing could deter Mr. Schnauz, so he picked himself up, albeit with caution and followed the aroma to its source.

Mr. Schnauz discovered himself in the third floor Social Studies office. Inside were several teachers grouped around a desk steadily drinking their way through the entire shipment of coffee. Mr. Schnauz ordered them to stop, but their hunt for coffee was too great so Mr. Schnauz was forced to take desperate measures. He stole their coffeemate.

April fifth has been set as the date of the initial hearing to investigate the teachers' actions. As one African studies teacher stated, "When I saw all that coffee, I don't know what happened, it was just too much force of habit is stronger than I thought."

Air Conditioning Installed

Last Friday, a rock was thrown by a frustrated member of the Albany High School student body through a window of the guidance office, barely missing Jordan Meliaides, a junior majoring in the office's materials. A bomb scare at Albany High had forced all students outside where one of them found a conveniently placed Spell book, and drove a red MGB and has fingerpaints on the steering wheel. "I might not be here today if it was not for sea salts," said the new despout, as he was cleaning the blood off of the rapier with which he had impaired the noble Pruden.

Coup D'Etat: Fossieck Out, Wollner Seizes Power

On Monday, April 1, 1970, David Wollner, president of the Student Council, leading a force of armed and enraged students, overthrew the prevailing government of the Milne School. King Theodore Fossieck and His Apparent Charles W. Bowler were forced to flee to the neighboring kingdom of Albany High School where Dr. Fossieck has assumed the title of King in exile.

Meanwhile, Wollner has set about creating a benevolent anarchy with himself as absolute dictator. His first action while in office was, as expected, not calling a student council meeting. He next awarded himself with the Royal Order of Milne—a black velvet cord with a paintbrush tied on to the end. He then applied for his driver's license. The overthrow was quick and relatively bloodless.

There was one major battle which began on the steps of Stage Page where there was a brilliant fencing duel between King Wollner and Mr. Donald Pruden, King of the tennis courts. "I might not be here today if it was not for sea salts," said the new despout, as he was cleaning the blood off of the rapier with which he had impaired the noble Pruden.

The battle continued out into page courtyard where there was a brilliant confrontation between the renegade baseball team who were hurling projectiles at the loyal archery.

From there the violence waged in the science building, where the chemistry department hurled chemical experiments and into the biology department, where the loyalist forces were attacked by thousands of rebells.

The final body count registered four hundred and thirty-three dead students, forty-three dead superiors and administrators, four junior, seventeen pigeons, lota pickled frogs, millions of dead cockroaches and thousands of rebels (why should today be any different?), and several student teachers who weren't worth counting, much less burying.

For the future, Dave plans to open a chopped meat concession to compete with the cafeteria, in conflict with ex-King Fossieck's orders against bakesales.

He also plans to shorten the school day so that we don't have to come until 2:20; repair all of the clocks; and declare Milne independent of the State of New York.

Due to Lack of Interest the Seventh Grades Have Been Cancelled.
Course Guide

The Drama Club is bracing for its spring performances. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 23-25, tryouts will be held in Mr. Weeks' office for OH Calcutta, the club which the school will present in late May. There will be plenty of talent, and there are many students who could spend time teaching some of their unique abilities. Below is a fragment of the list drawn up. Any student could doubtlessly figure out more.

Trust in your own kitchen or on your own sewing machine. A good course for "eligible" males.

How to win a basketball game by Coach Phillips and Miss Brown. Trial and Error method stressed.

Swahili, by "Bwana" DeLong. Sometimes called Math 12X.

How to pass the "Bwana" DeLong math course—taught by the little DeLongs (Peter, Ellen and Roger).

Advanced Embezzling—Mr. Mueller. Cost of course, $300,000, of course.

Oh? Calcutta

The Drama Club is bracing for its spring performances. This complaint is no longer restricted to members of the senior class, and we believe it to be legitimate. Therefore, the members of the C&W Editorial Board have compiled a list of courses that would draw upon existing Milne talent and would not have to create a new class of our own.

This plan would utilize the skills of the existing personalities, but would not be limited to purely academic talents. It seems that every supervisor has one or more un-utilized proficiencies that are more or less going to waste. There are many students who could spend time teaching some of their unique abilities. Below is a fragment of the list drawn up. Any student could doubtlessly figure out more.

Seniors Slump

The guidance office wishes the class of 1971 "rois of rock."